Introductory Note

THE HISTORY of the building of any book is interesting. It is an index to the thought and purpose which have controlled in the undertaking. The merit of the production is best reflected in the spirit guiding its accomplishment.

It may be said, with pardonable pride and justification, that during the last three years the Society, Sons of the Revolution, in the State of California, has gathered unto itself greater energy and stronger enthusiasm. These reinforcements have given it a strength and vigor not at all reflective upon its previous distinguished course of many years but certainly resulting in an increase of membership, extension of activity and enlargement of support, all tending to make it a very strong and forceful organization. During the year 1913 it was recommended by the writer to the Board of Directors that a special campaign be inaugurated for new members as a basis for securing the achievements in prospect. This was adopted as the policy for that year and every energy invoked to make the matter a success. This resulted in the influx of a large number of new members, composed of the most representative citizens of the City of Los Angeles. As a complement to this work, the next step was in the direction of increasing the library facilities of the Society. Much thought, time and money were then expended in the procuring of additional volumes and more recently printed Revolutionary records which were placed in the library at an expenditure of approximately one thousand dollars. This in itself soon placed the library upon a very complete foundation and brought about its recognition as one of the accredited libraries of the State. Its effect upon the work of the Society, particularly with reference to the admission of new members, was vital and important. The library has sixteen hundred volumes, including practically everything in print relative to the Revolutionary Period, and provides within itself all available sources of information tending to establish Revolutionary service, with the sole exception of the lines of inquiry and search which must be made at times with respect to the records of the United States Government. Further, the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of California maintains its offices and headquarters, together with a magnificent library of five hundred volumes, devoted to genealogical research and Colonial records, all in conjunction with this Society and its library.

In addition, while heretofore the work of the Society had been carried on in a very thorough and competent manner by previous administrations, the increase of membership, with new blood and new ideas, as it were, resulted in the development of a social life and enthusiastic co-operation in the Society which had not formerly existed. Several notable dinners and banquets have followed which have had their direct effect in making the Society of positive value to its membership and at the same time crystallizing both effort and plan for a continuation of its growth and prosperity.

As a result of the campaign for new members which had theretofore been inaugurated, in the short space of eighteen months, the membership in the Society was doubled, which of itself placed it upon an assured foundation of financial support and made possible the greater library and other resources for future achievement. In this connection it is quite proper to record that this newer activity in the Society was started under the leadership of Mr. Bradner Wells Lee, the capable and enthusiastic President of the Society for a period of two years. It was quite natural that he should have in mind, and also that the need should become immediately apparent, the publication of a Year Book or Register of the Society which should exhibit this new order and progress of affairs in a positive way. Almost coincident in point of time and without previous conference with each other, the same thought took form in the minds of Mr. Edward Thomas Harden and the editor. Each then took it upon himself to place the motion in concrete form as a recommendation to the Board of Directors, with the result that it was received with enthusiastic approval.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held Tuesday, August 19, 1913, a motion was regularly made, duly seconded and carried, that a committee be appointed by the President for the purpose of taking into consideration, preparing and procuring the publication of an annual Register of the Society, Sons of the Revolution, in the State of California, for the year 1913. The President appointed on the above committee Mr. Orra Eugene Monnette and Mr. Edward Thomas Harden; and this was the inception of the undertaking.

Without giving the chronological order or, in detail, the succeeding steps taken in this matter and the several enactments of the Board of Directors, suffice it to say that the committee entered upon its work with much enthusiasm which has continued throughout and has at all points received the earnest and enthusiastic co-operation of the members of the Board of Directors, to which regular reports of progress of the work have been made and received full approval.

The greatest problem, of course, has been the financing of the publication. The membership has responded to several calls for advanced subscriptions to the book, the Board of Directors has pledged funds to the extent of at least one hundred copies of the edition and certain members of the Society have generously agreed to finance the undertaking as individuals.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors on January 14, 1914, Mr. Bradner Wells Lee was formally added to the membership of the committee on publication. At the annual election of officers in January, 1915, Mr. Arthur Jay Waters, having been elected to the Presidency of the Society, by virtue of his office likewise became a member of the committee. At a meeting of the Board of Directors held on February 10, 1915, for the purpose of assisting in matters involved in the financial support and distribution of the publication, Mr. James Rathwell Page, Treasurer of the Society, was duly made a member of the Publication Committee.

The proposed publication was originally designed to become a Year Book or Register, first for the year 1913, then for the year 1914, but necessary delays and time occupied in securing funds for the publication have changed each of these conceptions in turn. In the fall of 1914, when it became apparent that the book would certainly be published, the Publication Committee adopted an entirely new plan and decided to depart from the previous idea of making the same a Year Book or Register in the sense of attempting to issue it as the Register of any particular year date. At this time it was determined to place Mr. Orra Eugene Monnette in charge of the publication as its editor, and with the approval of the committee, Mr. Leon Le Lanne French was selected as assistant editor, and to them were committed the duty and labor of preparing the actual manuscript and defining the limits and contents of the publication, subject to the final approval of said committee.

In the announcement made in January, 1914, to the membership, the following was stated in a circular letter as being the standard of purpose to be followed in the publication:

“1st. THE SCOPE AND VALUE OF THE PROPOSED REGISTER.

It is intended to make this Register the most complete and attractive piece of work ever issued by this Society. It will contain a complete list of the membership of the Society, together with the Revolutionary services of the ancestors, from whom eligibility is derived, and a complete table of lineal descent from such ancestors, who will be thus honored, those noble men and women, through whom you descend and whom it should be your pride and pleasure to see recorded in history; for this is history.

2nd. DISTRIBUTION OF THE REGISTERS.

It is intended that every member of the Society shall have a copy of this book, in addition to which a copy will be placed in each of the important libraries of the United States and in some of the foreign countries. The number of copies which will be required for distribution to the General and State Societies and libraries will be large.

3rd. FINANCING OF THIS PUBLICATION.

The scope and contemplated new features (for this Committee has new and very interestingly new features in contemplation) place the financing of this work upon the generosity of our individual membership which has never yet failed the Society. The Committee appeals not only to your sense of generosity and good will, but as well to your patriotism, which will be exhibited by your doing your part in the enrollment on the pages of history, of the names of your patriotic progenitors, as well as your own record and lineage."

As a result of this scheme of publication and this scope of the work which was so early outlined to the membership and which has been conscientiously adhered to, the completed work is herewith presented to the membership of the Society, Sons of the Revolution, in the State of California, with an earnest hope for its sincere approbation in every quarter and a generous reception at every hand. It is committed to your care and thought with a reasonable pride in accomplishment and with the hope that its demerits may be generously overlooked.

With reference to the matter included in the book, which is not wholly indicated in the general prospectus as originally outlined in the above, it should be stated that the special features of this book are the lists of Revolutionary Soldiers and Sailors which are placed in the closing pages of the volume. Animated by the thought and desire to make the book of permanent and extended value as a reference book and to preserve it as a standard of usefulness in patriotic research there have been included a list of Revolutionary Soldiers, appearing only in scattered sources, of the State of Maryland; the same of South Carolina; and, special lists of Sailors of the Revolutionary War, some of which have only been given to the public in the last few years through the meritorious publication of the Naval History Society, with headquarters at 247 Fifth Avenue, New York City. The limited issue of its books prevents their availability to members of all patriotic societies and, on that account and by the courtesy of that Society, one list of Sailors is herewith presented. The other lists were compiled from other sources.

The title of the book has been chosen with the idea that the active life of the book would be the longer sustained if it were not coupled with a year date which would be rapidly relegated to the past. In addition to this the contents of the book have been guided, both in the matter contained and in the order of presentation, together with the valuable and exhaustive index, so that, as a reference book, its life might be the further prolonged.

The absence of illustrations is explained by the fact that the extensive matter included made it necessary to keep the cost of publication at a minimum, and while many attractive and illustrative features might have been added, yet it is believed that the judgment of the committee in this connection will be fully approved.

As appears, only two illustrations have been included in the book, viz: The frontispiece, entitled "Three Real Sons of the Revolution," and that of the Monterey Mission.

The former has been inserted because of the fact that this Society has a special distinction in having had as members three whose fathers served in the Revolutionary War, and two of these members are living at the time of this publication. This is unique in itself and, for that reason, a cut of each of these "Honorable Sons" appears in illustration in the frontispiece.

Further prompted by the desire to make this book as distinctly Californian in character as might be possible, and having in mind that many of the sister Societies of the Sons of the Revolution are located in the States comprising the original thirteen Colonies and, on that account, possess locations and history immediately connected with the events of the War of the Revolution, the Publication Committee has deemed it to be both proper and significant to include in the book a "Chronology of California," which has been carefully compiled by the editor. This will bring to the reader and student positive knowledge and information concerning the splendid history belonging to the Western Coast of the United States, on the points of early discovery, exploration, and romantic adventure, which do not so frequently receive prominent notation as with the early history of the Atlantic seaboard; and while high tribute must be paid to the adventurer and colonist who made the settlement of the Eastern Coast of the American Continent both possible and permanent; likewise to the intrepid and courageous Spanish romancer and to the patient and zealous Franciscan Friar must be given similar honor and credit for the like development of the Pacific Coast.

The discovery and history of California are almost contemporaneous in chronicle and event with the exploration and colonization upon the shores of the Atlantic. Christopher Columbus antedated Vasco Nuñez de Balboa, in his discovery of America as compared with the discovery of the Pacific Ocean, by approximately twenty-one years. Hernando Cortés was on the Pacific Coast six years later, and California properly dates her history from the notable voyage and discovery of Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo in 1542.

The first settlement on the Atlantic Coast was Saint Augustine, now in Florida, in 1565, but which was not continuous. The Jamestown settlement of 1607 and the landing of the Mayflower in 1620 are the early dates of American history; but the founding of the town of San Gabriel in later New Mexico in 1598, though not permanent, antedates the former by nine and the latter by twenty-two years. And, Santa Fé, New Mexico, is the second oldest and permanent city in the United States. Therefore, California history and that of the Great West are just as ancient as that of Virginia and the New England States. Further, there was a romance, founded in the spirit of adventure, eager conquest and search for treasure, which commenced as the inspiration of early Spanish voyagers and continued even until the gold excitement of 1849, which is unequaled in comparison with the more commonplace trials and adventures of the early colonists in eastern North America.

While the American Revolution was in progress in the original thirteen colonies, the foundations of California were being laid in most positive and permanent form. The boasted achievements of the Pilgrim and Puritan, and of the Huguenot are merited, but the Californians will ever have a treasured memory of the Spanish Cavalier and of the Franciscan Friar. Their priceless heritage was the gift of Cabrillo and Father Junipero Serra, together with a faithful and zealous train of romantic adventures and pious neophytes. Therefore, truthfully measuring Californian history, this is distinctively a California book.

Considering further the preparation of the material appearing in the book, the compilation of the matter, including the correspondence, and the time and labor expended, have been prodigious. A large part of this has been contributed by Mr. Leon Le Lanne French, to whom the credit should be given. Further, the members of the Publication Committee and the officers of the Society have each and all given their splendid co-operation and support in the publication work.

In the knowledge that the work has been conscientiously performed and in the hope that it shall serve its high purpose, the publication labors are now drawn to a close. May this expression of the activity, the earnest life of the Society, find a larger fruition in the stimulation of a newer and stronger patriotism in the hearts of its members and in the hearts of those who may hereafter seek the benefit of a relationship with the Society.

Why a

Recognition and Support

Why a Revolutionary Patriotic Society Should Secure Recognition and Support

THE TRADITIONS of a people are more impressive than historic fact itself. In the Revolution the most cherished traditions of Liberty became incarnated in the birth of the American Republic.

The spiritual life of a nation is essentially founded in its elemental expression of the love of law, and with this naturally follows the loftiest ideals of liberty and truth.

The preservation of these ideals should be the dominating note in American life, in American government, in American diplomacy.

The decimating influences of a material age, an ever increasing alien element in our society, born and bred abroad in an atmosphere of sedition and anarchy, make it a vital obligation of every American with a background of lineage, to formally ally himself with those stable and enduring influences which were fundamental in the beginning of this government.

In an epoch when history is making in such tragic and gigantic form; when the bonds of international treaty and agreement are held so lightly; when the sophistry and the specious demand of material growth and power are made the impelling and domineering philosophy of imperial expansion; when international differences, in the very presence of the most enlightened, refined and Christian civilization of history, can find a basis of settlement only in an archaic and barbarous resort to human slaughter and the annihilation of all that is beautiful in life and art: we may well ask ourselves in America whether the throes by which this Republic came into life were not hallowed by a more just and righteous cause.

Since, in all history, Liberty never was so sweetly and tenderly cradled as on the shores of this western world, America has cherished the hope that her love of country was the type of the purest and most vital patriotism. In the asylum she has consistently offered to all who truly suffered oppression and who, by self-effacement and merging into the spirit of our national life, loyally became a part of the fibre of our civilization—in these great offices of brotherhod and helpfulness we have believed this nation has earned the right to endure.

If in the evolution of our national life there has developed an aristocracy of lineage, we may know that it had its beginning in the character and genus of those ancestors whose great minds conceived and strong hearts defended, the principles of liberty and law that have made and kept this nation great. Because they lived and died that we and all who may come after us may be free, the patriotic societies which keep our minds reverent of the matchless achievements of those noble men should receive the cordial support of every American of family.

Historical Sketch of the General Society

The first patriotic society in the United States to base its membership upon hereditary succession was the Society of the Cincinnati, which was formed on the banks of the Hudson River May 12, 1783, by some of the officers of the American Army during the period of the Revolution. Membership is based upon an official service only and is established on the law of primo-geniture. As a result of this policy that Society has remained very small and will of necessity decrease in its membership. This remained as the only patriotic Society of that character based upon Revolutionary service for very nearly a century of time.

However, in December of 1873, several efforts were made by Mr. John Austin Stevens of New York to induce the Society of the Cincinnati, through its President-General, Honorable Hamilton Fish, to change the policy of that organization so as to provide for admission to membership upon more extended lines so that the doors of the organization should be open to a larger number of Revolutionary descendants. These efforts were not met with any response. As a result of this rebuff, the ideas and thoughts of Mr. Stevens were crystallized in a purpose to organize a new Society to be carried on upon broader lines of membership than the older organization.

At this point it is proper to record that to California belongs the proud distinction of having been the home of one of these earlier efforts to found a new patriotic Society. Many of the descendants of Revolutionary Sires were living in San Francisco, California, in 1876. Several of the public spirited of these issued a call for a meeting and organized; and, on July 4, 1876, a permanent organization was entered into and called "Sons of the Revolutionary Sires." It soon gathered to its membership quite a number of men who have been distinguished in the history of California. The organization was, however, short lived and such few records as were established were destroyed in the great San Francisco fire and earthquake in 1906. While this effort cannot be linked in the history of any patriotic organization now in existence, yet it is given this reference because it belongs peculiarly to California history. Further, it is interesting to note that one of the originators of this movement was the Honorable Joseph Sharon, of the same family as ex-Senator William Sharon of Nevada, both of whom in former years figured quite largely in the activities of San Francisco. Mr. Sharon qualified in that Society under his own grandfather, the Revolutionary Soldier Joseph Eaton, one of whose descendants, Mr. George Harold Janeway, has become a member of this Society, qualifying under the same ancestor.

Returning to the history of these early efforts to found a distinctive Revolutionary Society, there is one man only to whom the greatest honor must be given.

Mr. John Austin Stevens is truly the founder of the Society, Sons of the Revolution. He gathered about him a number of associates who adopted and supported his cause, and on the 18th day of December, 1875, in the rooms of the New York Historical Society, a meeting was held to determine the possibilities of the new organization. Mr. Stevens there proposed a definite organization and the name, "Sons of the Revolution," was adopted at this preliminary meeting.

Later at a meeting held at the same place on January 15, 1876, a constitution presented by Mr. Stevens was unanimously adopted and signed by all who were present. The new organization was launched with much hope and certain confidence in its future growth and prosperity.

Unfortunately, this attempt did not come to a full enjoyment of its possibilities at that time.

One of the charter members and founders of the California Society is Colonel Holdridge Ozro Collins, who has been for several years the General Historian of the General Society. In 1905, as appears from the publication of the General Society for that year, a very exhaustive account appears concerning the general organization, which was prepared by Col. Collins. The facts recited therein are adverted to here as the foundation for this sketch and for the greater portion of the following language Col. Collins should be given the credit:

Referring to the adoption of the name "Sons of the Revolution," the committee chose an appellation significant of its purpose to conserve those eternal principles of honor, patriotism, liberty and justice, the heritage from "The Sons of Liberty," and which name we most devoutly believe will endure until time shall end.

Such was the institution of the Society, Sons of the Revolution, and Mr. Stevens was requested to make such public announcement of the fact as he might think suitable. He issued the following circular letter:

"SONS OF THE REVOLUTION:

The Society of the Cincinnati, founded at West Point by the officers of the army of the Revolution in 1783, originally limited its membership to descendants of officers in the elder branch, and with a temporary and short variation from the rule, has ever maintained its restriction.

The approach of the Centennial Anniversary of American Independence is an appropriate time for the formation of a Society on a broader basis, which may include all descendants of those who served with the Army of the Revolution.

The undersigned have formed themselves into a Society under the name of

"SONS OF THE REVOLUTION,"

and invite the membership of all who, like themselves, are descendants of officers or soldiers of the Revolutionary Army.

The object of the Society is to take part in the Centennial Exhibition at Philadelphia.

A meeting will be held for organization at the rooms of the New York Historical Society on the morning of Tuesday, the 22nd of February next (1876) at 12 o'clock. All persons having a right and desire to become members may send their names and the names of those they represent to the undersigned (Box 88, Station "D," New York Post Office).

JOHN AUSTIN STEVENS."

But few acceptances of this invitation were received, and, deferring further action, Mr. Stevens awaited with patience a more propitious occasion to present the features of this new Society.

At the close of the year 1883, the Centennial Anniversaries of the evacuation of New York, and of Washington's last meeting with his officers, were events which indicated to Mr. Stevens and his associates that the time had come for a successful and permanent establishment of the Order.

Elaborate preparations were made for a dinner at Fraunce's Tavern, to be given on December 4, 1882, in commemoration of the close of Washington's military career, in that affectionate and pathetic farewell to his officers, "With a heart full of love and gratitude, I now take leave of you; I most devoutly wish that your latter days may be prosperous and happy as your former ones have been glorious and honorable."

Here, at the time indicated, in the identical "Long Room," assembled a company of representative New York citizens, gentlemen distinguished in the mercantile world and in the walks of science, literature, medicine, jurisprudence and the church.

The Constitution of the Society, Sons of the Revolution, was presented by Mr. Stevens and his associates, and it was received with enthusiastic acclaim. The original document was brought from the Archives of the Historical Society where it had been deposited, and it was signed by all present who were eligible by Revolutionary descent, more than forty gentlemen affixing their signatures, and the New York Society was organized by the election of John Austin Stevens, President; John Cochrane, Vice-President; Austin Huntington, Secretary; and George H. Potts, Treasurer.

On the 29th day of April, 1884, a certificate of incorporation was executed by the following gentlemen: John Austin Stevens, John Cochrane, Austin Huntington, George H. Potts, Frederick S. Tallmadge, George W. W. Houghton, Asa Bird Gardiner, Thomas H. Edsall, Joseph W. Drexel, James Mortimer Montgomery, James Duane Livingston, Alexander R. Thompson, Jr., and John Bleecker Miller, and on May 2nd, 1884, Judge George C. Barrett signed the certificate of incorporation.

Public attention was immediately attracted to this new Society, and an increase of membership followed, not alone from New York, but from the adjoining states. At the annual election of 1884, Mr. Frederick Samuel Tallmadge was elected President, in which office he was continued for the remainder of his life, and George Washington Wright Houghton was chosen Secretary, serving until 1886, when he was succeeded by James Mortimer Montgomery. Upon the organization of the General Society at Washington, on April 19, 1890, Mr. Montgomery was elected General Secretary, but the great prosperity of the New York Society, resulting from his energetic labors, had been so marked that its members insisted he should continue in the charge of its affairs. In 1893, however, the accumulation of work in the General Society made it impossible for him to retain both positions, and he declined a re-election by New York.

On April 3, 1888, Mr. John Wolf Jordan and fourteen other gentlemen, of Philadelphia, all qualified by Revolutionary ancestry and some of them previously admitted to the New York Society, assembled at the office of Dr. Herman Burgin, in Philadelphia, and organized an independent Society of Sons of the Revolution for the State of Pennsylvania.

The founders of this Society were Oliver Christian Bosbyshell, George Horace Burgin, Herman Burgin, Richard McCall Cadwalader, James Edward Carpenter, Robert Porter Dechert, William Churchill Houston, Jr., John Wolf Jordan, Josiah Granville Leach, Elon Dunbar Lockwood, Charles Marshall, Samuel Whitaker Pennypacker, John Biddle Porter, William Brooke Rawle, and William Wayne.

The adoption of an insignium early engaged the attention of the Pennsylvania Society, and in October, 1888, a committee consisting of Col. Oliver Christian Bosbyshell, Mr. John Wolf Jordan and Dr. Herman Burgin was appointed to secure designs, with instructions to consider those submitted by Major L'Enfant to the Society of the Cincinnati in 1783. Finally, on January 14, 1889, the present design was accepted, and subsequently adopted by the New York Society, and since by the General Society as the insignium of the Sons of the Revolution. During the same year, committees were appointed to consider designs for a rosette and a certificate of membership. On November 11th, the rosette of the New York Society was accepted, and has since been adopted by the General Society. The beautiful seal of the New York Society was also unanimously adopted.

Considerable diversity of sentiment had been manifested in the discussion relating to the selection of society colors.

The Cincinnati had taken the colors blue and white for the distinctive ribbons suspending their order, as descriptive of the union of America and France, and the very intimate association of Sons of the Revolution with the Cincinnati in all patriotic celebrations and the large number of those gentlemen who had participated in the organization of the societies in New York, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia, forbade the great discourtesy of appropriating colors which belonged to them by so long a prescription, and the buff and blue were selected, as being distinctive marks of the uniform of the Continental soldiers.

Acting under a special dispensation from the New York Society, granted in response to their application therefore, presented on March 11, 1889, certain gentlemen, residing in the City of Washington, organized in the month of April, 1889, the District of Columbia Society. The founders of this Society were David D. Porter, John Lee Carroll, C. R. Rodgers, S. R. Franklin, Nicholas Longworth Anderson, Robley D. Evans, J. G. Walker, Theo. B. M. Mason, Richard Rush, W. K. Van Reypen, Daniel Morgan Taylor, John Schuyler Crosby, Arthur Henry Dutton, and Archibald Hopkins.

In the early part of 1890, the large increase of membership in New York, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia, and the unanimous manifestation of a desire for a closer bond of association between these societies, and the establishment of some general rules under which their proceedings might be harmonized, resulted in the appointment of committees from New York and Pennsylvania, to consider the feasibility of a union, and report their joint action to their several societies.

At a conference of these committees in Philadelphia, February 12, 1890, to which was added Mr. Arthur Henry Dutton from the District of Columbia, the fundamental principles for a General Society were evolved, and to Judge Sims was given the honor of drawing a constitution.

Clifford Stanley Sims was a Justice of the New Jersey Court of Errors and Appeals, and, for many years, President of the New Jersey Society of the Cincinnati. In the draft of a constitution for the Sons of the Revolution, he took as a model, the institution of the Cincinnati. A comparative analysis of the two instruments will disclose how closely he followed such of the sections of the institution as were appropriate for the new Society, adopting, in many portions, the exact language of the original document; and in submitting the result of his labors, he stated that he had omitted provisions for amendments, believing the course pursued by the Cincinnati, for such emergencies, to be the best.

Within less than two months after its submission, the constitution prepared by Judge Sims and reported by the Joint Committee was unanimously approved and ratified by the three original Societies of New York, Pennsylvania, and the District of Columbia. Delegates from these Societies were at once appointed to meet in joint convention to establish the more perfect union contemplated in the Constitution drawn by Judge Sims.

At Washington, on the nineteenth day of April, 1890, in Chamberlin's Hotel, the deputies from the three Societies of New York, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia were called to order by Mr. Frederick Samuel Tallmadge, President of the New York Society, and that assemblage of distinguished gentlemen effected the consummation of the union so ardently desired. The General Society, Sons of the Revolution, was established upon the broadest foundations of fraternal and ancestral association, and State equality, and the following gentlemen were the first officers elected:

General President,

Ex-Governor John Lee Carroll, of Maryland.

General Vice-President,

Mayor William Wayne, of Pennsylvania.

General Secretary,

James Mortimer Montgomery, of New York.

Assistant General Secretary,

Timothy Matlack Cheesman, of New York.

General Treasurer,

Richard McCall Cadwalader, of Pennsylvania.

Assistant General Treasurer,

Arthur Henry Dutton, of District of Columbia.

General Chaplain,

Daniel Cony Weston, D.D., of New York.

To the energy and persistence of those who were thus early inspired to found and establish a distinctive organization, the honor and credit of the Society, Sons of the Revolution should be given. That it has so grown and prospered must be likewise placed upon the same spirit of earnestness accompanied by conscientious belief in the principles of the American commonwealth. The Society occupies a unique position in a lengthy list of similar organizations and certainly has attained to the standard of credit and distinction so early established.

At the eighth Triennial meeting held in Washington, D. C., on April 17-19, 1914, delegates from nineteen State Societies were in attendance, and thirty-two Societies, with a total active membership of 6832, were reported as continuing upon sound foundations.

In all there have been sixteen meetings of the General Society since its formation in April, 1890. The dates and places of these meetings are as follows:

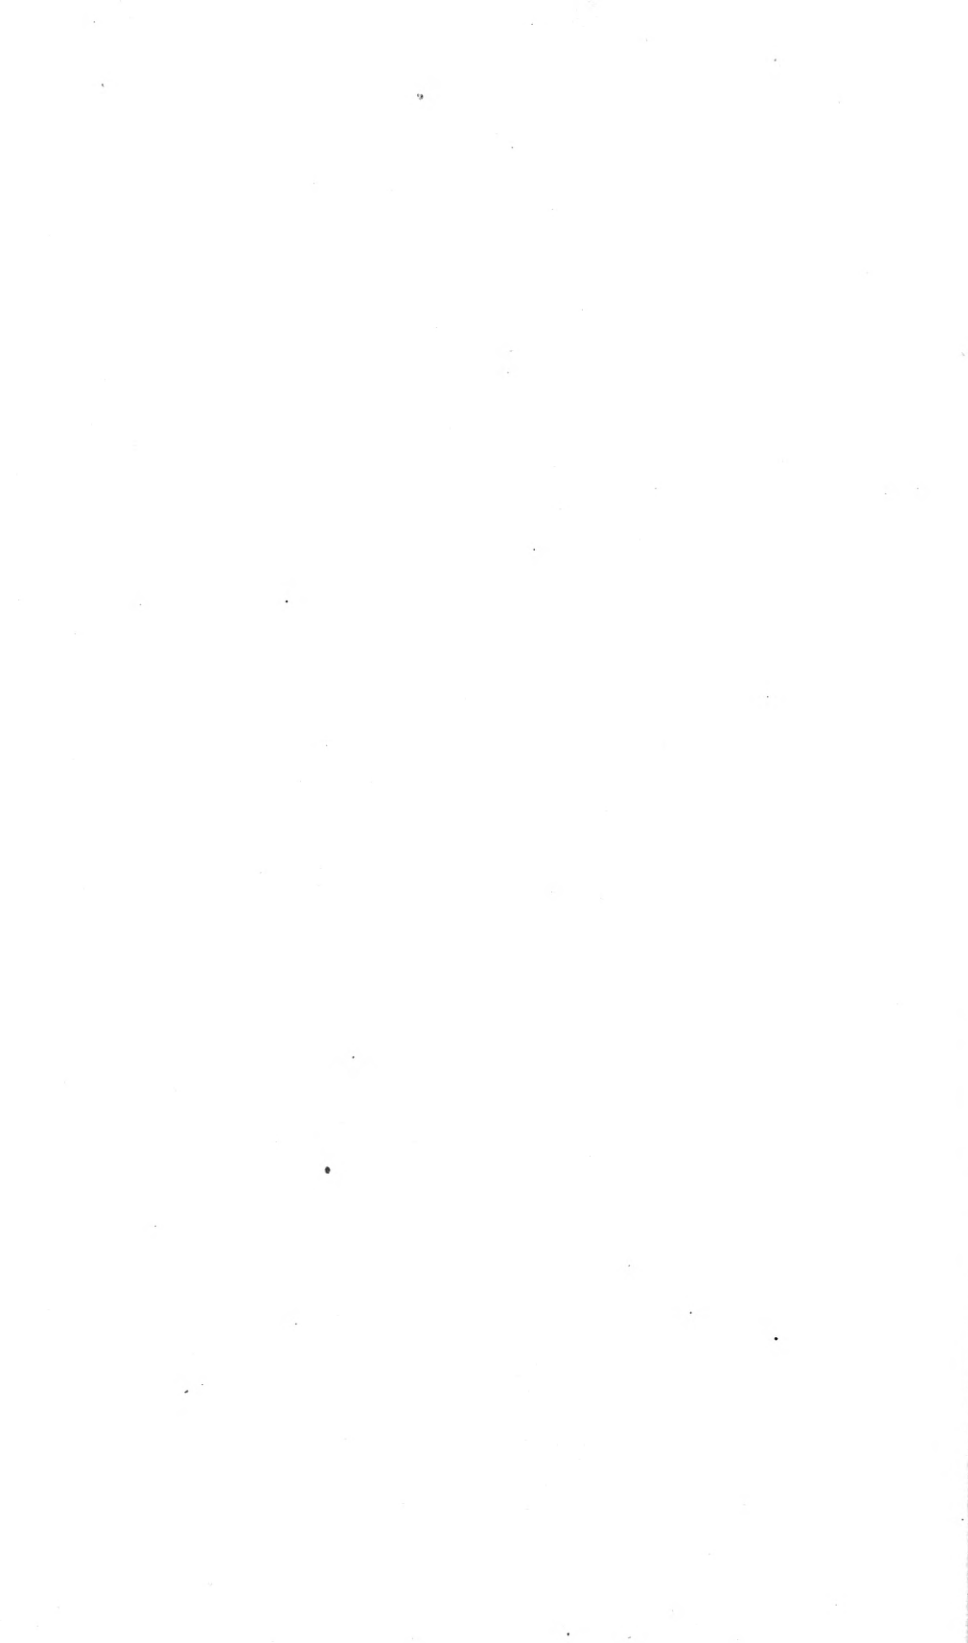

SPECIAL AND TRIENNIAL MEETINGS OF GENERAL SOCIETY

1. Organization Meeting at Washington, D. C., April 19, 1890.
2. Special Meeting at Philadelphia, Pa., April 4, 1891.
3. Special Meeting at Trenton, New Jersey, April 23, 1892.
4. Special Meeting at New York, N. Y., February 16, 1893.
5. First Triennial Meeting at New York, N. Y., April 19, 1893.
6. Special Meeting at Annapolis, Maryland, April 19, 1894.
7. Special Meeting at Boston, Mass., April 19, 1895.
8. Second Triennial Meeting at Savannah, Georgia, April 20, 1896.
9. Special Meeting at Philadelphia, Pa., April 19, 1897.
10. Special Meeting at Cincinnati, Ohio, October 12, 1897.
11. Third Triennial Meeting at Denver, Colorado, April 19, 1899.
12. Fourth Triennial Meeting at Washington, D. C., April 18-19, 1902.
13. Fifth Triennial Meeting at Annapolis, Maryland, and Washington, D. C., April 19, 1905.

14. Sixth Triennial Meeting at Washington, D. C., April 27-28, 1908.
15. Seventh Triennial Meeting at Washington, D. C., April 18-19, 1911.
16. Eighth Triennial Meeting at Washington, D. C., April 17-19, 1914.

In conclusion, it should be suggested that while the Society is founded upon a reasonable and pardonable pride in ancestry, it caters to no false spirit of aristocracy. It is founded upon the broader and more high-minded thought of a preservation of the records and history of those men who gave both civil and religious liberty to the early colonists of America, and who, in founding and establishing a new Republic, rendered a distinguished service to those of that time and generation, as well as to all posterity. To true Americans the spirit of patriotism should enter into the very fiber of manhood and womanhood. The continuation and perpetuation of a loyal citizenship are dependent upon the true love of country and on the beneficent institutions of America. It is believed that no organization is better fitted to keep alive, upon the altars of the heart, the fires of exalted patriotism, and to enshrine in the memory of each member the honorable and distinctive careers of the founders of this glorious commonwealth.

Constitution
of the

The Constitution

Done at the City of Philadelphia, on the 12th day of February, 1890, and of the Independence of the United States the one hundred and fourteenth.

Adopted in the City of New York, March 8th, 1890.

Section III amended April 23rd, 1892.

Section VIII amended April 21st, 1896.

I.

It being evident, from a steady decline of a proper celebration of the National holidays of the United States of America, that popular concern in the events and men of the War of the Revolution is gradually declining, and that such lack of interest is attributable, not so much to the lapse of time and the rapidly increasing flood of immigration from foreign countries, as to the neglect, on the part of descendants of Revolutionary heroes, to perform their duty in keeping before the public mind the memory of the services of their ancestors and of the times in which they lived; therefore, the Society of the Sons of the Revolution has been instituted to perpetuate the memory of the men who, in the military, naval and civil service of the Colonies and of the Continental Congress by their acts or counsel, achieved the Independence of the country, and to further the proper celebration of the anniversaries of the birthday of Washington, and of prominent events connected with the War of the Revolution; to collect and secure for preservation the rolls, records, and other documents relating to that period; to inspire the members of the Society with the patriotic spirit of their forefathers; and to promote the feeling of friendship among them.

II.

The General Society shall be divided into State Societies, which shall meet annually on the day appointed therefor in their respective by-laws, and oftener if found expedient; and at such annual meeting the reasons for the institution of the Society shall be considered, and the best measures for carrying them into effect adopted.

III.

The State Societies, at every annual meeting, shall choose by a majority of the votes present, a President, a Vice-President, a Secretary, a Registrar, a Treasurer, a Chaplain, and such other officers as may by them respectively be deemed necessary, together with a board of managers consisting of these officers and of nine other members, as may be provided by their respective Constitutions and By-laws.

IV.

Each State Society shall cause to be transmitted annually or oftener, to the other State Societies, a circular letter calling attention to whatever may be thought worthy of observation respecting the welfare of the Society or of the general Union of the States, and giving information of the officers chosen for the year; and copies of these letters shall also be transmitted to the General Secretary, to be preserved among the records of the General Society.

V.

The State Societies shall regulate all matters respecting their own affairs, consistent with the general good of the Society; judge of the qualification of their members, or of those proposed for membership, subject, however, to the provisions of this Constitution; and expel any member who, by conduct unbecoming a gentleman or a man of honor, or by an opposition to the interests of the community in general or of the Society in particular, may render himself unworthy to continue in membership.

VI.

In order to form funds that may be respectable, each member shall contribute, upon his admission to the Society and annually thereafter, such sums as the by-laws of the respective State Societies may require; but any of such State Societies may provide for the endowment of memberships by the payment of proper sums in capitalization, which sums shall be properly invested as a permanent fund, the income only of which shall be expended.

VII.

The regular meeting of the General Society shall be held every three years, and special meetings may be held upon the order of the General President or upon the request of two of the State Societies, and such meetings shall consist of two Delegates from each State Society and one additional Delegate for every one hundred (100) members or major fraction thereof; and on all questions arising at meetings of the General Society each Delegate there present shall be entitled to one vote, and no votes shall be taken by States, and the necessary expenses of such meeting shall be borne by the State Societies.

VIII.

At the regular meeting, a General President, General Vice-President, General Second Vice-President, General Secretary, Assistant General Secretary, General Treasurer, Assistant General Treasurer, General Registrar, General Historian and General Chaplain shall be chosen by a majority of the votes present, to serve until the next regular General meeting, or until their successors are duly chosen.

IX.

At each General meeting the circular letters which have been transmitted by the several State Societies shall be considered, and all measures taken which shall conduce to the general welfare of the Society.

X.

The General Society shall have power at any meeting to admit State Societies thereto, and to entertain and determine all questions affecting the qualifications for membership in or the welfare of any State Society as may, by proper memorial, be presented by such State Society for consideration.

XI.

Any male person above the age of twenty-one years, of good character, and a descendant of one who, as a military, naval, or marine officer, soldier, sailor, or marine, in actual service, under the authority of any of the thirteen Colonies or States or of the Continental Congress, and remaining always loyal to such authority, or a descendant of one who signed the Declaration of Independence, or of one who, as a member of the Continental Congress or of the Congress of any of the Colonies or States, or as an official appointed by or under the authority of any such legislative bodies, actually assisted in the establishment of American Independence by services rendered during the War of the Revolution, becoming thereby liable to conviction of treason against the Government of Great Britain, but remaining always loyal to the authority of the Colonies or States, shall be eligible to membership in the Society.

XII.

The Secretary of each State Society shall transmit to the General Secretary a list of the members thereof, together with the names and official designations of those from whom such members derive claim to membership, and thereafter upon the admission of members in each State Society, the Secretary thereof shall transmit to the General Secretary information respecting such members similar to that herein required.

XIII.

The Society shall have an insignia, which shall be a badge suspended from a ribbon by a ring of gold; the badge to be elliptical in form, with scalloped edges, one and one-quarter inches in length, and one and one-eighth inches in width; the whole surmounted by a gold eagle, with wings displayed, inverted, on the obverse side a medallion of gold in the center, elliptical in form, bearing on its face the figure of a soldier in Continental uniform, with musket slung; beneath, the figures 1775; the medallion surrounded by thirteen raised gold stars of five points each upon a border of dark blue enamel. On the reverse side, in the center, a medallion corresponding in form to that on the obverse, and also in gold, bearing on its face the Houdon portrait of Washington in bas-relief, encircled by the legend, "Sons of the Revolution"; beneath, the figures 1883; and upon the reverse of the eagle the number of the badge to be engraved; the medallion to be surrounded by a plain gold border, conforming in dimensions to the obverse; the ribbon shall be dark blue, ribbed and watered, edged with buff, one and one-quarter inches wide, and one and one-half inches in displayed length.

XIV.

The insignia of the Society shall be worn by the members on all occasions when they assemble as such for any stated purpose or celebration, and may be worn on any occasion of ceremony; it shall be carried conspicuously on the left breast, but members who are or have been officers of the Society may wear the insignia suspended from the ribbon around the neck.

XV.

The custodian of the insignia shall be the General Secretary, who shall issue them to members of the Society under such proper rules as may be formulated by the General Society, and he shall keep a register of such issues wherein each insignia issued may be identified by the number thereof.

XVI.

The seal of the Society shall be one and seven-eighths inches in diameter, and shall consist of the figure of a Minute-man in Continental uniform, standing on a ladder leading to a belfry; in his left hand he holds a musket and an olive branch, whilst his right grasps a bell-rope; above, the cracked Liberty Bell; issuing therefrom a ribbon bearing the motto of the Society, Exegi monumentum aere perennius; across the top of the ladder, on a ribbon, the figures 1776; and on the left of the Minute-man, and also on a ribbon, the figures 1883, the year of the formation of the Society; the whole encircled by a band three-eighths of one inch wide; thereon at the top thirteen stars of five points each; at the bottom the name of the General Society, or of the State Society to which the seal belongs.

The Society, Sons of the Revolution in the State of California Its Origin, History and Achievements

Written at the Request of the Publication Committee

BY

Edward Thomas Harden,
One of the Founders.

When it is remembered that a State Society of the Sons of the Revolution is an integral part of the General Society, just as a State is an integral part of the Federal Union, it is eminently proper to give a brief history of the origin of an organization which has been the pioneer in the work of rescuing from oblivion the names, records and deeds of the brave, undaunted men who founded this great and glorious Republic.

For exactly one hundred years the descendants of the heroic men who fought and won the most remarkable and unprecedented war in the annals of history, known as the American Revolution, were satisfied to rely upon tradition for the names and supposed facts as to the part played by their ancestors in that great struggle for freedom and independence; but as can be readily understood, and as has been proven in the light of documentary evidence, these traditions, by reason of vagueness as to events and the uncertain identity of the individuals connected therewith, were valueless as historical data. There were in existence family trees, family Bibles and local histories which gave some facts of great value, but, alas! how little was known of the great rank and file of these unconquerable and conquering men.

History was fairly complete concerning the events and some particulars were given of the principal figures who took part therein, but the lesser lights did not so appear on the pages of history.

Then came the awakening. It came when the hundred years was near at hand, when the centennial anniversaries of the various events of the Revolution, from the battles of Lexington and Concord, which were fought April 19th, 1775, to the evacuation of the City of New York by the British troops, which occurred on the 26th day of November, 1783, a period of eight years and seven months and known as the "Period of the Revolution," were to be celebrated.

There were centennial celebrations of nearly all the events of the Revolution, but the birthday of the United States as a Federal Government, which was July 4th, 1776, was to be celebrated in a manner worthy of so great a Government and the Congress of the United States by ample appropriation provided for a proper celebration in the Centennial Exposition which was held in the City of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, during the year 1876.

On the 22nd day of February, 1876, in the city of New York, at the invitation of Mr. John Austin Stevens, a number of gentlemen met in the library of the New York Historical Society, and then and there organized the Society, Sons of the Revolution, the founders of which were the descendants of Revolutionary soldiers. The purpose of this organization was to participate in the observance at Philadelphia of the natal day of the Nation.

There was in existence at that time only one civic organization of a patriotic character which was composed of the descendants of Revolutionary soldiers and which linked the Revolution with the then present time; that organization was the Society of the Cincinnati. This Society, by reason of the limitations of its organic laws relative to primogeniture and descent from an officer of the Revolution had become moribund in most of the original thirteen states of the Union.

After the observance of the Centennial Celebration of 1878, Mr. Stevens and his associates made every effort to induce the Society of the Cincinnati to amend its constitution so as to grant eligibility to membership to the male descendants of any soldier of the Revolution. Their efforts being futile, on the 4th day of December, 1883, in the historic "Long Room" of Fraunce's Tavern, the New York Society, Sons of the Revolution, was organized, and on the 19th day of April, 1884, was incorporated under the laws of the State of New York.

The growth of the New York Society was most satisfactory and many gentlemen residing in other states joined that Society. The movement became so popular that soon other state societies were formed until, in 1890, the General Society was formed—just as the Federal Government of the United States was similarly established.

It should be stated at this point that so popular have become these patriotic societies that kindred societies of both men and women have since been organized. They now count their membership by the thousands and tens of thousands.

During the time when centennial celebrations were being held, the author of this history, as an humble member of an historic military organization, was a participant in two celebrations—one of which was the centennial of the "Battle of Fort Sullivan" in June, 1876. The name of this fort has been changed to, and it is still known as Fort Moultrie. Standing as the author did, upon the ramparts of that historic fort, at the very point from which the immortal Sergeant William Jasper leaped to rescue the flag that had been struck down by a shot from the enemy's ship, there was born in him a desire and a determination to know more than he then knew of those Revolutionary ancestors, from whom he had been told he was descended.

This knowledge was gained but was not made use of until the organization of the Society, Sons of the Revolution in the State of California.

On April 10th, 1893, the author addressed a letter to Mr. James Mortimer Montgomery, then General Secretary, and who is now General President of the General Society, asking for information and permission to organize a Society of the Sons of the Revolution in the State of California, his adopted state. This letter was transmitted to Mr. Montgomery through a brother of the author who had been a member of the New York Society, but was then the Secretary, and still is, and was one of the founders of the Georgia Society. Mr. Montgomery's reply, dated April 20th, 1893, was a most cordial endorsement of the project, and in this he gave the names of several gentlemen then living in California who were members of the New York Society, and among them the name of Col. Holdridge Ozro Collins. The day after the receipt of Mr. Montgomery's letter, Col. Collins, to whom Mr. Montgomery had also written under the same date, mentioning the receipt of the author's letter, and stating his eligibility, called on him at his residence. The result of that conference was that, on the 8th day of May, 1893, the Society, Sons of the Revolution, in the State of California, was instituted and on the 15th day of May, 1893, was incorporated, under the laws of California, for the period of fifty years, that being the statutory limit. The founders and incorporators were the six gentlemen whose names will be found on the page set aside for that purpose. Five of these gentlemen were residents of Los Angeles—Lieutenant Charles Lee Collins, U. S. A., Col. Holdridge Ozro Collins and Major William Anthony Elderkin, U. S. A., were members of the New York Society; Col. John Miner Carey Marble was a member of the Pennsylvania Society. The author was not a member of any Society. Mr. James Monroe Allen, of San Francisco, the other founder, was a member of the New York Society.

The growth of the Society was not rapid, in fact it was slow; yet it was a steady growth. Each year showed an increase of membership. One of the greatest obstacles was the lack of such Revolutionary records as were to be found in the Eastern States. Our modern Western libraries contained none, and, as a Society, the accumulation of a library was undertaken and extended. This development of a library has been one of the important works of the Society, and it now possesses one of more than sixteen hundred volumes, many of which are priceless. As far as is known, the Society's library contains the complete publications of every State Society, and these publications have in themselves proved invaluable to its work.

This history is not intended to set forth in chronological sequence the growth or affairs of the Society, nor to deal in personal mention except wherein it may be absolutely necessary to give emphasis to the facts.

Before giving an outline of the work of this Society, it is deemed proper to make reference to the object of the organization. It is hoped and believed that the interrogation, "For what purpose?" so often asked, will be answered.

In consequence of the heterogeneity of the population of the United States, in which the vast majority are either foreign born or of foreign born parents, the standard of citizenship established by the founders of this, the greatest, grandest and finest government ever vouchsafed to mankind, was rapidly deteriorating. The observance of the days which marked events and men and which were revered by our forefathers, were passing into decline and disfavor.

Who could re-establish this standard of citizenship or awaken a renewed interest in the observance of our National holidays? None so well as could the descendants of Revolutionary ancestors. Most certainly the founders of the first organization so determined, for this thought is made the keynote of the constitution of every Society of the Sons of the Revolution which has been instituted. No religious creed is recognized. No partisan politics have any place in its affairs. The requirements for membership are a good moral character and proof of descent from an ancestor who loyally supported the cause of the Patriots, either as a soldier, sailor, marine, or civil officer during the Revolution, and who remained loyal to the end of the war. These requirements have been strictly adhered to by the California Society as will be found in the ensuing pages of this volume.

This Society has been peculiarly fortunate in having enrolled among its members three gentlemen, three real sons of Revolutionary soldiers. One of these, Mr. George Washington Peachy, died in 1910 at the age of eight-one years. The other two, Judge Lewis Patrick Phillips and Mr. Francis Marion Lemmon, each of whom has passed his four score years, are still living and honored.

Situated as California is—thousands of miles away from the historic places made famous by the Revolution, it is denied the quickening of patriotic sentiment which is aroused by them—but none are unmindful of duty and all keep fresh the enthusiasm obtained in the observance of days made glorious by heroic ancestors.

This Society has been most loyal and determined in its efforts tending to the general good of the organization. At a meeting of the Society held on the anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill, June 17th, 1894, a memorial to the Congress of the United States was adopted, asking that body to publish the Archives of the Revolution, those precious documents which were in the possession of the various departments of the government. From all the information that was obtainable they apparently were in a condition of chaotic neglect and fast becoming illegible. This memorial was sent to the senators and representatives in Congress. At the meeting of the General Society held in Boston, Massachusetts, in April, 1895, this Memorial was committed to a special committee, and since has been continuously before the General Society as an object for its attention. At the Annual Meeting of the California Society in 1913, by resolution it then adopted a memorial to the General Society, in which all the State Societies were invited to join, praying that the General Society publish a register of the membership of all the State Societies, the same to be carried out along the lines of this volume. The memorial failed in its purpose, but it is hoped that the seed sown by its promulgation may yet spring up and bear fruit.

During the year 1913, the Board of Directors, the managing body of this Society, determined upon a campaign having for its end an increase of membership. This campaign continued and resulted in the membership being increased more than two-fold. With the income derived from that increase, the library was enlarged by more than three hundred volumes at an expenditure of over one thousand dollars.

As an evidence of the patriotism and military ardor of this Society, it should be stated that during the Spanish-American War, although the membership was small, many of its members served with distinction in both establishments of the army, the Regular and Volunteer, and in the Navy. A number of the gentlemen who have joined this Society since that time are veterans of that war.

The California Society is honored by having two of its members officers of the General Society at the present time—Mr. James Mortimer Montgomery as General President, and Col. Holdridge Ozro Collins as General Historian. These gentlemen are life members of this Society and are both members also of the New York Society.

Before closing this history and with no desire of intrenching upon the prerogative of the editor-in-chief, Mr. Orra Eugene Monnette, I wish to say something as to the design and scope of this work.

It is not to give prominence to the name of the member, but to show the right in which his name appears, the name and record of the Revolutionary ancestor, and to give his lineage—the links of evidence by which all the names will be preserved in history.

We boast not of whom we are: we simply point to our ancestors. We had nothing to do with our being born—our being here is the accident of birth. We did not found this government, the most glorious of all governments. It is our heritage, and we have taken our pledge to keep it inviolate as handed to us, the freest and most to be honored of all the governments of earth—a nation blessed of God.

As we read the pages of our country's history, we find them illumined and made brilliant by a light that comes from the graves of our dead heroic ancestors. We call it

The Wondrous Light

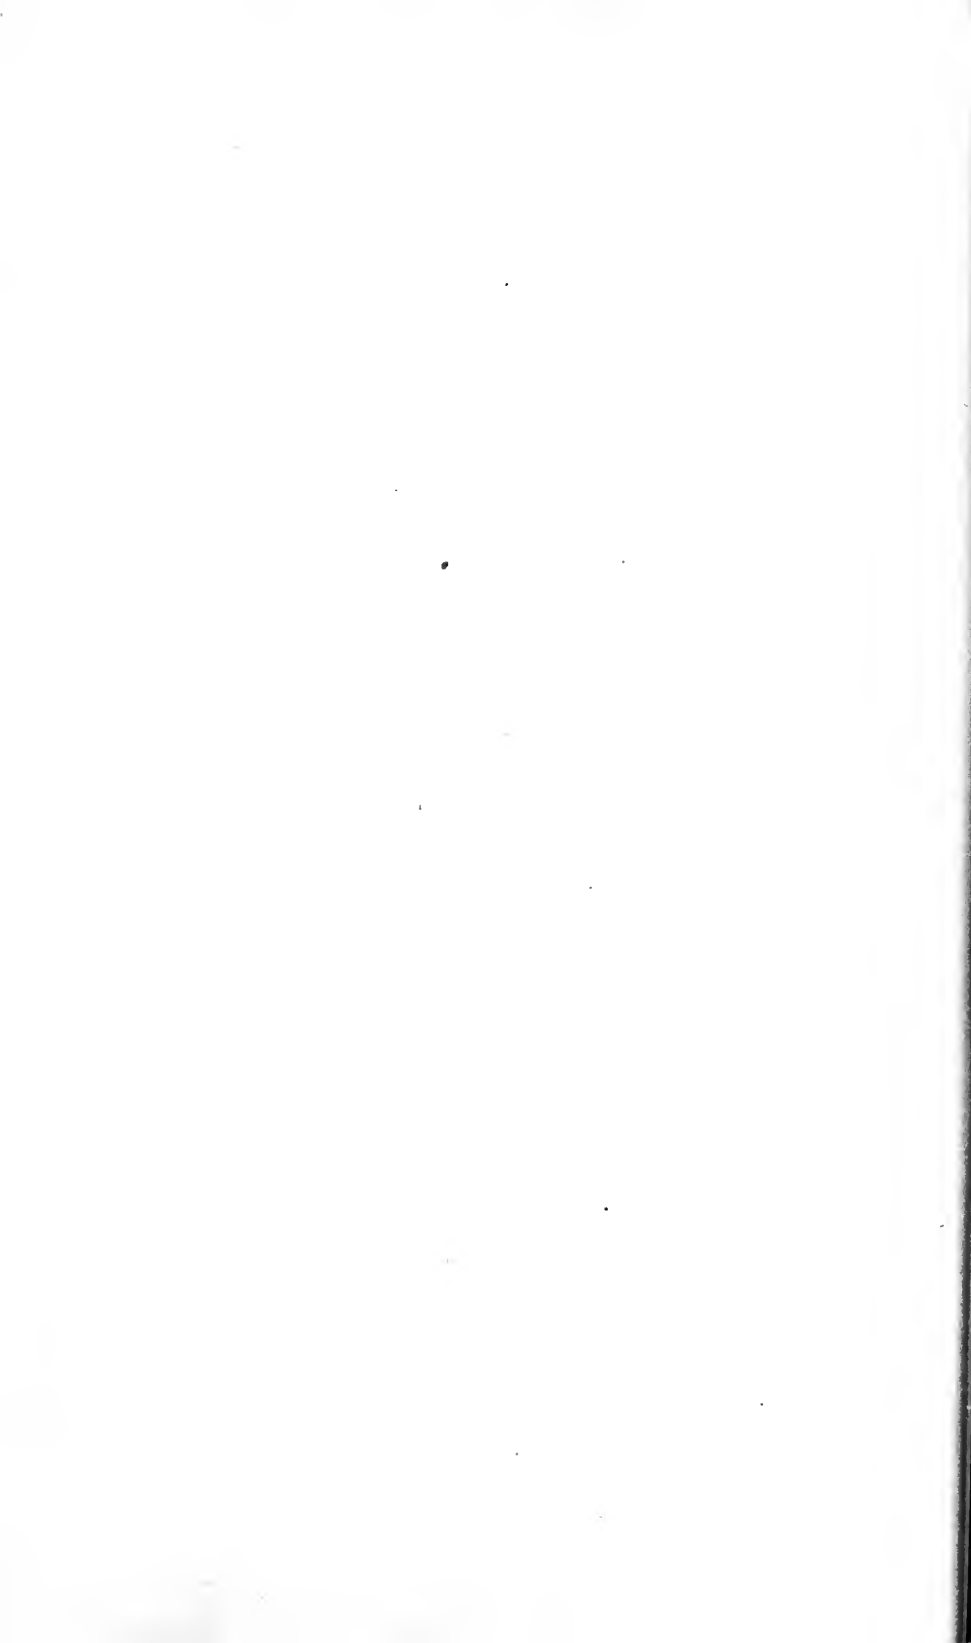

Let the wondrous light, that glimmers
From the graves of heroes dead,
Shine as a radiant nimbus
Of every true American,

Who stands for Truth and Right
In the warfare that is waging Against oppression's might;
And may this light grow brighter
As the nation still shall grow,
And spots now dark forever fade
In the radiance of its glow.
May this Nation grow in greatness
Till all the world shall ring
With praises for a nation
Where each man is a King.

Constitution
of the
SOCIETY, SONS OF THE REVOLUTION
in the
STATE OF CALIFORNIA

Society, Sons of the Revolution in the State of California

Instituted May 8th, 1893

Incorporated May 15th, 1893

CONSTITUTION

Preamble

The California Society, Sons of the Revolution, has been incorporated for the purposes of perpetuating among their descendants the memory of those brave men who perilled their lives and fortunes in the War of the Revolution to wrest the American Colonies from British dominion; for the collection and preservation of manuscripts, records and documents relating to that contest for independence; for the inspiration among its members and their children of the patriotic spirit of their forefathers; for the inculcation of a love of country and veneration for the principles which are the foundation of our National unity, and for the promotion of social intercourse and cordial fellowship among its members.

We acknowledge the supremacy of the General Society in all matters which have been, or which shall be delegated to it, and we pledge ourselves to observe and maintain all laws, rules and regulations for the government and control of the United States Societies which shall be lawfully prescribed by the General Society.

ARTICLE I

Name of Society

This Society shall be known by the name, style and title of "Sons of the Revolution."

ARTICLE II

Membership

Any male person, above the age of twenty-one years, shall be eligible to membership in the Sons of the Revolution who is descended from an ancestor, as the propositus, who, either as a military, naval or marine officer, soldier, sailor or marine, or official in the service of any one of the thirteen original Colonies or States, or of the National Government representing or composed of those Colonies or States, assisted in establishing American Independence during the War of the Revolution between the 19th day of April, 1775, when hostilities commenced, and the 19th day of April, 1783, when they were ordered to cease.

PROVIDED: That when the claim of eligibility is based on the service of an ancestor in the "minute men" or "militia," it must be satisfactorily shown that such ancestor was actually called into the service of the State or the United States, and performed garrison or field duty; and

PROVIDED FURTHER: That when the claim of eligibility is based on the service of an ancestor as a "sailor" or "marine," it must in like manner be shown that such service was other than shore duty and regularly performed in the Continental Navy, or the Navy of one of the original thirteen States, or on an armed vessel, other than a merchant ship, which sailed under letters of marque and reprisal, and that such ancestor of the applicant was duly enrolled in the ship's company, either as an officer, seaman, or otherwise than as a passenger; and

PROVIDED FURTHER: That when the claim of eligibility is based on the service of an ancestor as an "official," such service must have been performed in the civil service of the United States, or of one of the thirteen original States, and must have been sufficiently important in character to have rendered the official specially liable to arrest and imprisonment, the same as a combatant, if captured by the enemy, as well as liable to the conviction of treason against the Government of Great Britain.

Service in the ordinary duties of a civil office, the performance of which did not particularly and effectively aid the American cause, shall not constitute eligibility.

In the construction of this article, the Volunteer Aides-de-Camp of General Officers in Continental Service, who were duly announced as such and who actually served in the field during a campaign, shall be comprehended as having performed qualifying service.

The civil officials and military forces of the State of Vermont, during the War of the Revolution, shall also be comprehended in the same manner as if they had belonged to one of the thirteen original States.

No service of an ancestor shall be deemed as qualifying service for membership in the SONS OF THE REVOLUTION, where such ancestor, after assisting in the cause of American Independence, shall have subsequently either adhered to the enemy, or failed to maintain an honorable record throughout the War of the Revolution.

No person shall be admitted unless he be eligible under one of the provisions of this Article, nor unless he be of good moral character and be judged worthy of becoming a member.

ARTICLE III

Board of Directors

by ballot at each annual meeting of the Society, except that any vacancies

The Board of Directors shall be nine in number, who shall be chosen in said Board may be filled by the Board itself at any time during the interim between the annual meetings of the Society; the number of Directors may be increased or diminished by amendment hereof.

Officers

The Officers shall be a President, a First Vice-President, a Second Vice-President, a Secretary, an Assistant Secretary, a Treasurer, a Registrar, an Historian and a Librarian, all of whom shall be elected annually by the Board of Directors, and, excepting the latter two, shall be elected from among the members of said Board, but the Historian and Librarian may be so elected or from the membership of the Society, as may be desired.

Further, a Chaplain, Genealogist, Marshal, and such other Officers and Committees as may be necessary or as may be at any time directed by the Society, shall be appointed by the Board of Directors either from its own membership or that of the Society.

ARTICLE V

Admission of Members

Every application for membership shall be made in writing, subscribed by the applicant and approved by two members over their signatures. Applications shall contain or be accompanied by proof of eligibility, and such applications and proofs shall be submitted to the Board of Directors, who shall have full power to determine the qualifications of the applicant.

Payment of the initiation fee and subscription to the declaration required by the Constitution of this Society shall be a pre-requisite of membership.

ARTICLE VI

Declaration

Every applicant shall declare upon honor that he will endeavor to promote the purposes of this Institution and observe the Constitution and By-Laws of this Society, and, if he be a citizen of the United States, shall declare that he will support the Constitution of the United States. Such declaration shall be in writing and subscribed by the applicant making it.

ARTICLE VII

Institution Considered

At every meeting the purposes of the Institution will be fully considered, and the best measures to promote them adopted. No question, however, involving the party politics of the day within the United States shall ever be discussed or considered in any meeting of the SONS OF THE REVOLUTION.

ARTICLE VIII

Commemorations

It shall be a standing Regulation that the members shall, when practicable, hold a commemorative celebration and dine together at least once every year.

ARTICLE IX

Seal

The seal of the Society of the Sons of the Revolution shall be one and seven-eighths of an inch in diameter, and shall consist of the figure of a "Minute-man" in Continental uniform, standing on a ladder leading to a belfry, and holding in his left hand a musket and an olive branch, and grasping in his right hand a bell-rop. Above, the cracked "Liberty Bell"; issuing therefrom a ribbon bearing the motto of the Sons of the Revolution: "Exegi Monumentum Aere Perennius." Across the top of the ladder, on a ribbon, the figures "1776," and at the left of the Minute-man, and also on a ribbon the figures "1883," the year of the Centennial commemoration of the permanent evacuation by the British army of American territory; the whole encircled by a band three-eighths of an inch wide; thereon at the top thirteen stars of five points each and at the bottom the legend "Sons of the Revolution"; the following being a facsimile thereof:

The Secretary shall be the custodian of the seal, which shall be identical in every particular with this description.

ARTICLE X

Insignia

The insignia of the Sons of the Revolution shall consist of a badge pendant from the ribbon by a ring of gold.

The badge shall be elliptical in form with scalloped edges, one and one-quarter inches in length, and one and one-eighth inches in width; the whole surmounted by a gold eagle, with wings displayed, inverted. On the obverse side a medallion of gold in the center, elliptical in form, bearing on its face the figure of a soldier in Continental uniform, with musket slung. Beneath, the figures "1775;" the medallion surrounded by thirteen raised gold stars of five points each upon a border of dark blue enamel.

On the reverse side, in the center, a medallion, corresponding in form to that on the obverse, and also in gold, bearing on its face Houdon's portrait of Washington in bas-relief, encircled by the legend, "Sons of the Revolution." Beneath, the figures "1883" and upon the reverse of the eagle, the number of the particular badge engraved; the medallion surrounded by a plain gold border conforming in dimensions to the obverse, upon which members may have their names engraved in script.

The ribbon shall be dark blue, ribbed and watered, edged with buff, one and one-half inches wide and one and one-half inches in displayed length.

The insignia shall be worn by the members conspicuously and only on the left breast on all occasions when they shall assemble as such for any stated purpose or celebration; but the members who are, or have been Directory Officers of the Society may wear the insignia suspended from the ribbon around the neck. The badge shall never be worn as an article of jewelry.

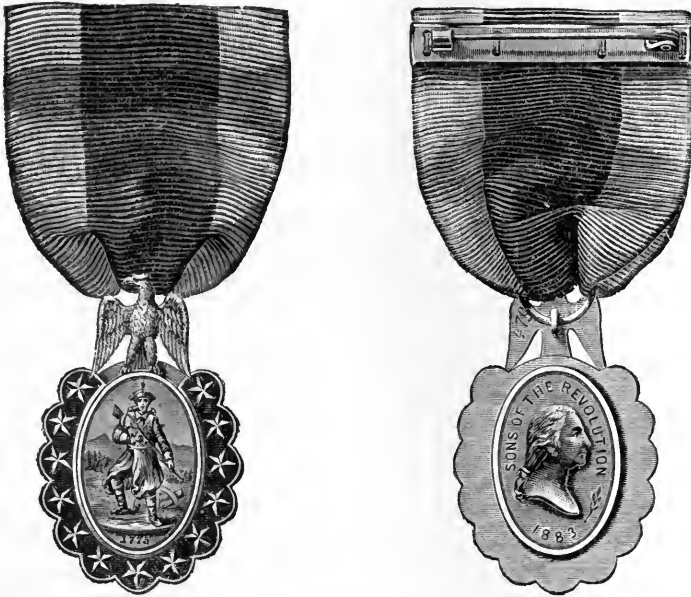

The Treasurer of the Society shall procure and issue the insignia to the members and shall keep a record of all issued by him.

Such insignia shall be returned to the Treasurer of the Society by any member who may formally withdraw, or resign, or be expelled, but otherwise it shall be deemed an heirloom.

No member shall receive more than one badge, unless to replace one, the loss or destruction of which shall first be satisfactorily established.

The following being a fac-simile of such insignia:

(See following page for illustrations of both sides of insignia)

On occasions other than the meetings for any stated purpose or celebration, members may wear a rosette of the prescribed ribbon and pattern in the upper button hole of the left lapel of the coat.

The Treasurer shall procure and issue the rosettes to members.

The following being a fac-simile of the same, which shall not exceed fifteen millimeters in diameter:

Ancestral Record

Every member who shall present to the Registrar, duly verified before an officer authorized by law to administer an oath, a statement in writing, containing the particulars of his marriage, and the names and dates of birth of his children, and such facts concerning his life and ancestry and the ancestry of his wife as he may desire to have perpetuated, shall be entitled to have the same filed among the Archives and spread at large upon the records of the Society; and such member may in the same instrument designate which of his sons or grandsons shall inherit his insignia and number.

ARTICLE XII

Any of the charter members of this Society who, on the 8th day of May, 1893, was a member of another State Society, and who shall desire to retain his older membership, is hereby declared to be a life member of this Society with power to vote at any of its meetings and eligible to any of its offices, and he shall be exempt from the payment of the membership fee and all annual dues so long as he shall retain his membership in the former Society, and pay annual dues therein.

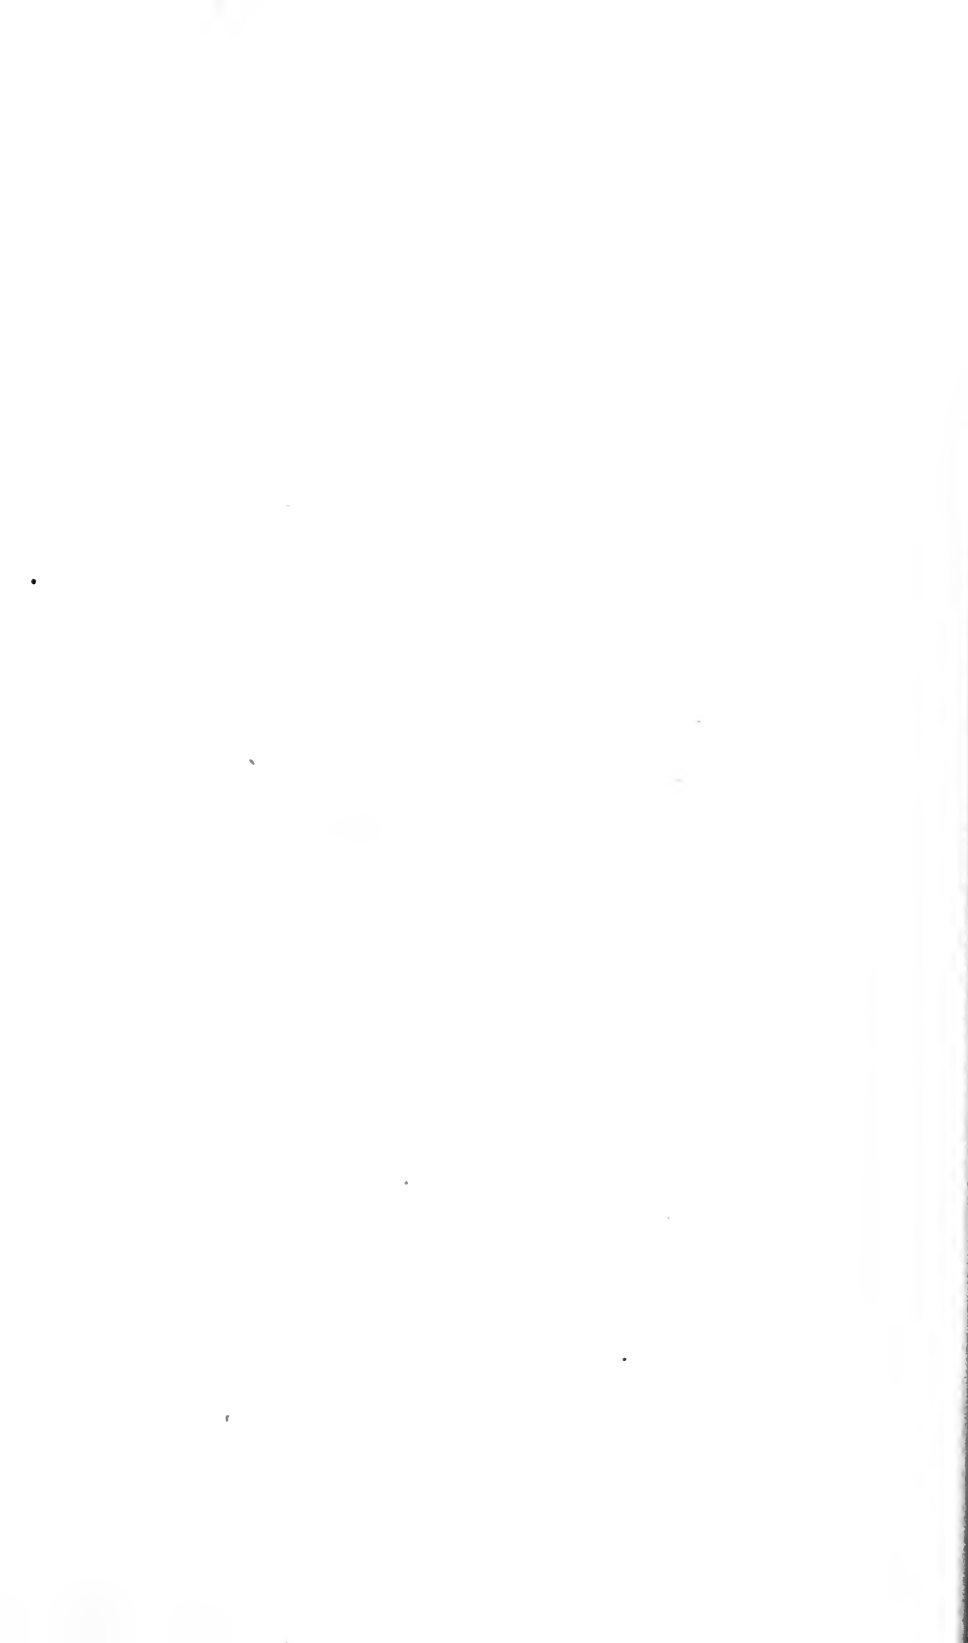

ARTICLE XIII

Alterations and Amendments

No alteration or amendment of the Constitution of this Society shall be made unless notice thereof shall be duly given in writing, signed by the member proposing the same, at a meeting of the Society, nor unless the same shall be adopted at a subsequent meeting, held at least thirty days after such notice, by a vote of three-fourths of the members present;

Provided, however, that an alteration or amendment of the Constitution of this Society can always be made at the annual meeting of the Society if notice thereof shall have been duly given in writing, signed by the member proposing the same and which shall have been filed with the Secretary of the Society for a period of at least thirty days prior to said annual meeting; notice of which shall be mailed to each member at least ten (10) days before said annual meeting.

And, further provided, that in lieu of any of the foregoing provisions, an alteration or amendment of the Constitution of this Society can be made at any time upon the written assent to the proposed alteration or amendment by a majority of the members of the Society duly filed with the Secretary.

By-Laws

of the

in the

By-Laws
of the Society, Sons of the Revolution
in the

SECTION I.

Initiation Fee, Dues and Contributions.

The initiation fee shall be Ten Dollars; the annual dues, Five Dollars, which shall be payable, in advance, on or before the first day of January in every year, and shall become delinquent on the first day of April thereafter. The payment at any time of Fifty Dollars shall thenceforth exempt the member so paying from the payment of any further annual dues, including the current year, and shall constitute a Life Membership in the Society.

Any member who may contribute Two Hundred Dollars to the Permanent Fund of the Society shall be exempt from the payment of annual dues, and this exemption shall extend in perpetuity to his lineal successors in membership from the same propositus one at a time, who may be selected for such exemption by the Society.

SECTION II.

Permanent Fund.

There shall be a "Permanent Fund," to be derived from contributions, and to remain forever to the use of the Society, the income only of which shall be expended.

SECTION III.

President.

The President, or in his absence the First Vice-President, or in his absence the Second Vice-President, or in the absence of all three a Chairman pro tempore, shall preside at all meetings of the Society and of the Board of Directors, and shall exercise the usual functions of a presiding officer under general parliamentary rules, subject to an appeal to the Society, in proper cases under those rules.

The President shall be, ex-officio, a member of all committees. He shall have power to convene the Board of Directors and appoint the place of such meeting when called by him.

He shall also perform such other representative duties on behalf of the Society, either personally or by correspondence, as it, or the Board of Directors may find desirable or necessary, or as customarily appertain to his office, and he shall enforce a strict observance of the Constitution and By-Laws of the Society.

In the event of his decease, resignation from office, neglect to serve, or inability from any cause to act as President, the duties of the office shall devolve upon the First Vice-President; then, in turn, under similar conditions, upon the Second Vice-President until the vacancy caused by such decease, resignation, or neglect to serve, shall be filled, or until the inability shall cease; the Board of Directors shall have the power to determine what constitutes such neglect or inability to serve.

SECTION IV.

Secretary.

The Secretary shall conduct the general correspondence of the Society and keep a record thereof. He shall notify all qualified and accepted candidates of their admission, and perform such other duties as the Society, or Board of Directors, or his office may require of him.

He shall have charge of the seal, certificates of incorporation, By-Laws, historical and other documents and records of the Society other than those required to be deposited with the Registrar, and shall affix the seal to all properly authenticated certificates of membership, and transmit the same without delay to the member for whom it shall be issued or to his proper representative. He shall notify the Registrar of all admissions to membership, and transmit to him the applications and proofs of eligibility of all persons so admitted.

He, together with the presiding officer, shall, when necessary, certify all acts of the Society, and, in proper cases, authenticate them under seal. He shall have charge of all printing and publications directed by the Society or by the Board of Directors. He shall give due notice of the time and place of all meetings of the Society and of the Board of Directors, and shall attend the same. He shall keep fair and accurate records of all the proceedings and orders of the Society, and of the Board of Directors, and shall give notice to the several officers of all votes, orders, resolves and proceedings of the Society or of the Board of Directors, affecting them or appertaining to their respective duties; and, at the annual meeting, and oftener, if required, shall report to the Society the names of those candidates who have been admitted to membership, and also the names of those members whose resignations or voluntary withdrawals have been consented to and accepted, and also the names of those members who have been expelled, or dropped for non-payment of dues, or for failure to substantiate claim of descent. In his absence from any meeting, a Secretary pro tempore may be designated therefor, unless the Assistant Secretary shall be present to act in such capacity.

SECTION V.

Treasurer.

The Treasurer shall collect and keep the funds and securities of the Society; and as often as those funds shall amount to One Hundred Dollars they shall be deposited in some bank in the City of Los Angeles, to the credit of the Society of the Sons of the Revolution, and such funds shall be drawn thence on the check of the Treasurer for the purposes of the Society only.

Out of these funds he shall pay such sums only as may be ordered by the Society, or by the Board of Directors, and shall perform such other duties as the Society, or Board of Directors, or his office may require of him.

He shall keep a true account of his receipts and payments, and, at each annual meeting, render the same to the Society, with a full statement of the financial condition of the Society, when a committee shall be appointed to audit his accounts.

For the faithful performance of his duty, he shall give such security as the Society, or Board of Directors, in lieu of its action therein, may from time to time require.

SECTION VI.

Registrar.

The Registrar shall receive from the Secretary, file and keep of record all the proofs upon which memberships have been granted, declarations of members on admission or adherence to the Constitution and By-Laws of the Society, together with a list of all diplomas countersigned by him, and all documents, rolls or other evidences of service in the War of the Revolution of which the Society may become possessed; and he, under the direction of the Board of Directors, shall make, or cause to be made for file in his office, copies of such original or certified documents as the owners thereof may not be willing to leave permanently in the keeping of the Society.

SECTION VII.

Chaplain.

The Chaplain shall be a regularly ordained minister, and it shall be his duty to open and close all meetings with customary chaplaincy services, and perform such other duties as ordinarily appertain to such office.

SECTION VIII.

Historian.

The Historian shall keep a detailed record, to be deposited with the Secretary, of all the historical and commemorative celebrations of the Society; and he shall edit and prepare for publication such historical addresses, essays, papers and other documents of an historical character, other than a Register of Members, as the Secretary may be required to publish; and at every annual meeting, if there shall be a necrological list for the year then closing, he shall submit the same, with carefully prepared biographies of the deceased members.

SECTION IX.

Assistant Secretary.

The Assistant Secretary shall assist the Secretary in the performance of such duties of that office as the latter may from time to time devolve upon him, and may, in such cases, give required notices, and certify, and authenticate, when necessary, any acts, documents, or records of the Society.

In case of the absence of the Secretary from any meeting of the Society or of the Board of Directors, or of his decease, resignation or neglect to serve, or inability from any cause to act in that capacity, the duties of the office shall devolve upon the Assistant Secretary until the Secretary shall return, or until the vacancy caused by such decease, resignation or neglect to serve, shall be filled, or until the inability shall cease.

SECTION X.

Board of Directors.

The Board of Directors shall judge of the qualifications of each applicant who shall make proper application for admission to membership in the Society and shall have power to admit him to membership therein under the provisions of Section XXIII of these By-Laws.

They may, through the Secretary, call special meetings of the Society as they may see fit; and they may arrange for commemorative celebrations by the Society.

They shall recommend plans to the Society for promoting its purposes, and, when practicable, may digest and prepare business for its meetings, and shall supervise all publications issued in its name, and decide whether copies of records or other documents or papers may be furnished on request to any party, in cases not pertaining directly to the business of the Society and the proper conduct of its affairs.

They shall generally superintend the interests, and shall have the control and management of the affairs and funds of the Society. They shall also perform such duties as may be prescribed by the Constitution and By-Laws, or required by any Standing Rule or Resolve of the Society; provided, however, that they shall at no time be required to take any action nor contract any debt for which they shall be jointly or severally liable.

They shall be competent to consent to and to accept the resignation or voluntary withdrawal from membership of any enrolled member of the Society.

They shall appoint delegates to the General Society.

They may require the attendance of any member of the Society, or any official or committee thereof, at any meeting, for consultation or advice.

The Board of Directors shall meet as often as they may desire, or at the call of the President, or upon the written request of any three members of the same, addressed to the Secretary.

A majority of the Board of Directors shall be a quorum for the transaction of business.

At every annual meeting they shall submit to the Society a general report of their proceedings during the year then closing, and at such other time as may be required by the Society.

SECTION XI.

Expulsion and Suspension.

The Board of Directors shall have power to expel any enrolled member of this Society who, by a conduct inconsistent with a gentleman and a man of honor, or by an opposition to the interests of the community in general or of this Society in particular, may render himself unworthy to continue a member, or who shall persistently transgress, or, without good excuse, wilfully neglect or fail in the performance of any obligation enjoined by the Constitution or By-Laws, or any standing Rule of this Society. Provided, that such member shall have received at least ten days' notice of the complaint preferred against him, and of the time and place for hearing the same, and have been thereby afforded an opportunity to be heard in person.

Whenever the cause of expulsion shall not have involved turpitude nor moral unworthiness, any member thus expelled, may, upon the unanimous recommendation of the Board of Directors, but not otherwise, be restored to membership by the Society at any meeting.

The Board of Directors shall also have power to drop from the roll the name of any enrolled member of the Society who shall be at least two years in arrears in the payment of dues, and who, on notice to pay the same, shall fail and neglect to do so within ten days thereafter, and upon being thus dropped, his membership shall cease and determine; but he may be restored to membership at any time by the Board of Directors, on his application therefor and upon his payment of all such arrears and of the annual dues from the date when he was dropped to the date of his restoration. The Board of Directors may also suspend any officer from the performance of his duties, for cause; which proceeding must be reported to the Society and acted upon by it within thirty days, either by rescission of the suspension or removal of the suspended officer from office, or otherwise the suspension shall cease.

SECTION XII.

Vacancies and Terms of Office.

In the event of the continued absence from the City of Los Angeles or immediate vicinity for a period of ninety days of an officer of this Society; or if an officer of this Society shall die, resign, or neglect to serve, or be suspended, or be unable to properly perform the duties of his office, by reason of absence, sickness, disability, or other cause, of which the Board of Directors shall be the sole judge, said Board of Directors shall have the power by a majority vote of said Board to declare the office of such officer to be vacant.

The Board of Directors shall have power to fill all vacancies which may arise from any cause in any of the offices of the Society and in the membership of the Board of Directors.

All officers of the Society and the members of the Board of Directors shall, from the time of their election or appointment, continue in their respective offices until the next annual meeting of the Society or until their respective successors shall be elected or appointed.

SECTION XIII.

Resignation.

No resignation or voluntary withdrawal from membership of any member enrolled in this Society shall become effective as a release from the obligations thereof, unless consented to and accepted by the Board of Directors.

SECTION XIV.

Disqualification.

No person who may be enrolled as a member in this Society shall be permitted to continue in membership where the proofs of claim of qualification by descent shall be found to be defective and insufficient to substantiate such claim, or not properly authenticated. The Society, or the Board of Directors, may, at any time after thirty days' notice to such person to properly substantiate or authenticate his claim, require the Secretary to erase his name from the list of members, and such person shall thereupon cease to be a member; provided, he shall have failed or neglected to comply satisfactorily with such notice.

Where the Board of Directors shall direct the erasure of a person's name for a cause comprehended under this section, such person shall have a right of appeal to the next annual meeting of the Society; but he shall not be restored to membership unless by a vote of three-fourths of the members present on that occasion, or at a subsequent meeting to which the consideration of the appeal may have been specifically postponed.

SECTION XV.

Annual and Special Meetings.

The Society shall hold an annual meeting in the City of Los Angeles on the second Thursday of January in every year, at which a general election of Directors, by ballot, shall take place.

In such election the polls shall be open two hours, and a plurality of votes given shall determine the choice therefor.

During any election the regular order of business may be proceeded with.

Special meetings shall be held by direction of the Board of Directors, or upon the written request of twenty members of the Society, at such time and place as said Board may direct. At such special meeting no business shall be transacted except such as shall be specified in the notice therefor.

Two weeks' notice of the time and place of the annual, or any special meeting, shall be given by mailing through the Post-office in the City of Los Angeles a written or printed notice to each member of the Society at his last known mailing address; provided, that the notice of a special meeting shall contain a brief statement of the purpose of said special meeting and the matters to be presented and acted upon thereat.

At all meetings of the Society ten members shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

The meetings of the Society for business shall be generally conducted according to Parliamentary Law, and the following Order of Business shall, as far as the same may be applicable, be followed:

1. Meeting called to order by Presiding Officer.
2. Prayer by the Chaplain.
3. Reading the minutes of prior meetings not previously acted upon.
4. Election of Directors, when necessary.
5. Communications from or report of Board of Directors.
6. Reports of Officers.
7. Reports of Special Committees.
8. Unfinished business.
9. Written communications requiring action of the Society.
10. Specially noticed business.
11. Notices of motion of subsequent meeting.
12. Miscellaneous business.
13. Reading the Preamble to the Constitution.
14. Closing prayer by the Chaplain.

SECTION XVI.

Service of Notices.

It shall be the duty of every member to inform the Secretary, by written communication, of his place of residence and of any change thereof, and of his post-office address.

Service of any notice under this Constitution and By-Laws upon any member of the Society, addressed to him at his last recorded place of residence or post-office address, and forwarded by mail, shall be deemed sufficient service of such notice.

SECTION XVII.

Recommendation of Candidates.

No member shall approve an application for membership in this Society unless he shall know the candidate to be worthy, and shall have satisfied himself by due examination of proofs that such candidate is eligible, and will, if admitted, be a desirable member.

SECTION XVIII.

Decease of Members.

Upon the decease of any member residing within the State of California, notice thereof and of the time and place of the funeral, shall be given by the Secretary by publication, and it shall thereupon become the duty of the members, when practicable, to attend the obsequies.

Any member, upon being informed of the decease of a member, shall make it his business to see that the Secretary is promptly notified of the fact, which fact shall also, in due time, be communicated to the Society.

SECTION XIX.

Certificate of Membership.

Every member shall be entitled to receive a certificate of membership, which shall be authenticated by the President and Secretary, and countersigned by the Registrar of the Society, and to which the seal of the Sons of the Revolution shall be affixed.

The certificate shall be in form following:

SONS OF THE REVOLUTION.

BE IT KNOWN, That.....has been duly admitted a member of this Institution in right of the services ofin the cause of American Independence during the War of the Revolution.

Dated at the City of Los Angeles, this.....day of.....in the year of our Lord.....thousand.....hundred and.....and of the Independence of the United States of America the.....

President of the Society.

SEAL.

.....
Secretary of the Society.

.....
Registrar.

SECTION XX.

Marshal.

The President of the Society may, from time to time, in his discretion, designate a member to act, under his direction, as Marshal for the Society in its commemorative celebrations, parades and other meetings, and to perform such duties as usually appertain to such a position.

SECTION XXI.

Alterations or Amendments.

No amendment or alteration of the By-Laws of this Society shall be made unless notice thereof shall be duly given in writing, signed by the member proposing the same at a meeting of the Society, nor unless the same shall be adopted at a subsequent meeting, held at least thirty days after such notice, by a two-thirds vote of the members present.

Provided, however, that an alteration or amendment of the By-Laws of this Society can always be made at the annual meeting of the Society if notice thereof shall have been duly given in writing, signed by the member proposing the same and which shall have been filed with the Secretary of the Society for a period of at least thirty days prior to said annual meeting; notice of which shall be mailed to each member at least ten (10) days before said annual meeting.

And, further provided, that in lieu of any of the foregoing provisions, an alteration or amendment of the By-Laws of this Society can be made at any time upon the written assent to the proposed alteration or amendment by a majority of the members of the Society duly filed with the Secretary.

SECTION XXII.

Proxies.

Any member who is unable to be present at the meetings of the Society, may nevertheless have his vote counted, having first duly authorized, in writing, any other member to act as his proxy thereat.

SECTION XXIII.

Applications for Membership; Elections Thereunder*

All applications for membership shall be filed with the Secretary of the Society and be received and considered by the Board of Directors, providing that the same are in form, initiation fee paid and subscription to the declaration made as provided in Articles V and VI of the Constitution of this Society.

The Board of Directors shall not be required to consider said applications at a formal meeting of said Board, unless some question shall arise as to the interpretation of the eligibility clauses of the Constitution, in which event a formal meeting shall be held for its consideration.

The Board of Directors by vote at a formal meeting thereof or by vote as individual members of said Board of Directors shall have power to admit an applicant to membership in the Society, if he be found by them to be eligible under the Constitution of this Society; provided, however, that five affirmative votes shall be required to elect and two negative votes to reject an applicant.

Upon the receipt of an application for membership, the Secretary or Assistant Secretary shall immediately notify each member of the Board of Directors by written or printed notice (which may be mailed) of the pendency of said application and request his vote thereupon; and, upon the failure of any Director to return a vote within five days thereafter or to be present at a formal meeting of the Board at which said application shall be considered, the vote of such Director shall be recorded in the affirmative.

The endorsement of the application for membership by the President or a Vice-President and by the Secretary or Assistant Secretary subsequent to the taking of a vote upon any application shall be sufficient to constitute an election of the applicant.

*Attention is directed to resolution adopted by the Board of Directors, relative hereto, which is recited at the conclusion of these By-Laws.

Honorable Councillor.

There is hereby created in this Society an official designation of "Honorable Councillor," which shall be an office of honorary distinction solely, carrying with it neither authority, nor obligation, nor duty, in itself, but it shall be awarded by the Board of Directors as a reward of merit, to any member of the Society, who shall be eligible thereto, subject, however, to a previous recommendation therefor or a subsequent ratification thereof by the Society.

No one shall be eligible to such an award unless he shall have been either a charter or a life member of the Society, the latter for a period of at least five years, and shall likewise be in good standing at the time of appointment; and, in addition, either shall have performed long continued and faithful service as an officer of the Society, or shall have bestowed some special honor or distinction upon it, or shall have achieved some notable and patriotic fame as a citizen of the commonwealth.

The award shall continue in effect during the life of the appointee or during good behavior, but may be rescinded by the Board of Directors, for cause, either upon its own initiative or the direction of the Society, subject, however, to the filing with the Secretary of the Society of a formal and verified statement of any member setting forth any grounds of alleged misbehavior.

Further, the Board of Directors shall have power to make such award annually and the name or names of the Honorable Councillors then in office shall be printed in all publications of the Society as a "Roll of Honor" thereof. Upon request of the Board of Directors or by action of the Society, any one of said Councillors may be requested to act with said Board in an advisory capacity, at any time.

As supplementary to the mode of procedure relative to the applications for membership as provided in Section XXIII, of the By-Laws, the Board of Directors, upon March 27th, 1914, adopted the following resolution, for the guidance of the officers of the Society and particularly the Membership Committee:

RESOLUTION

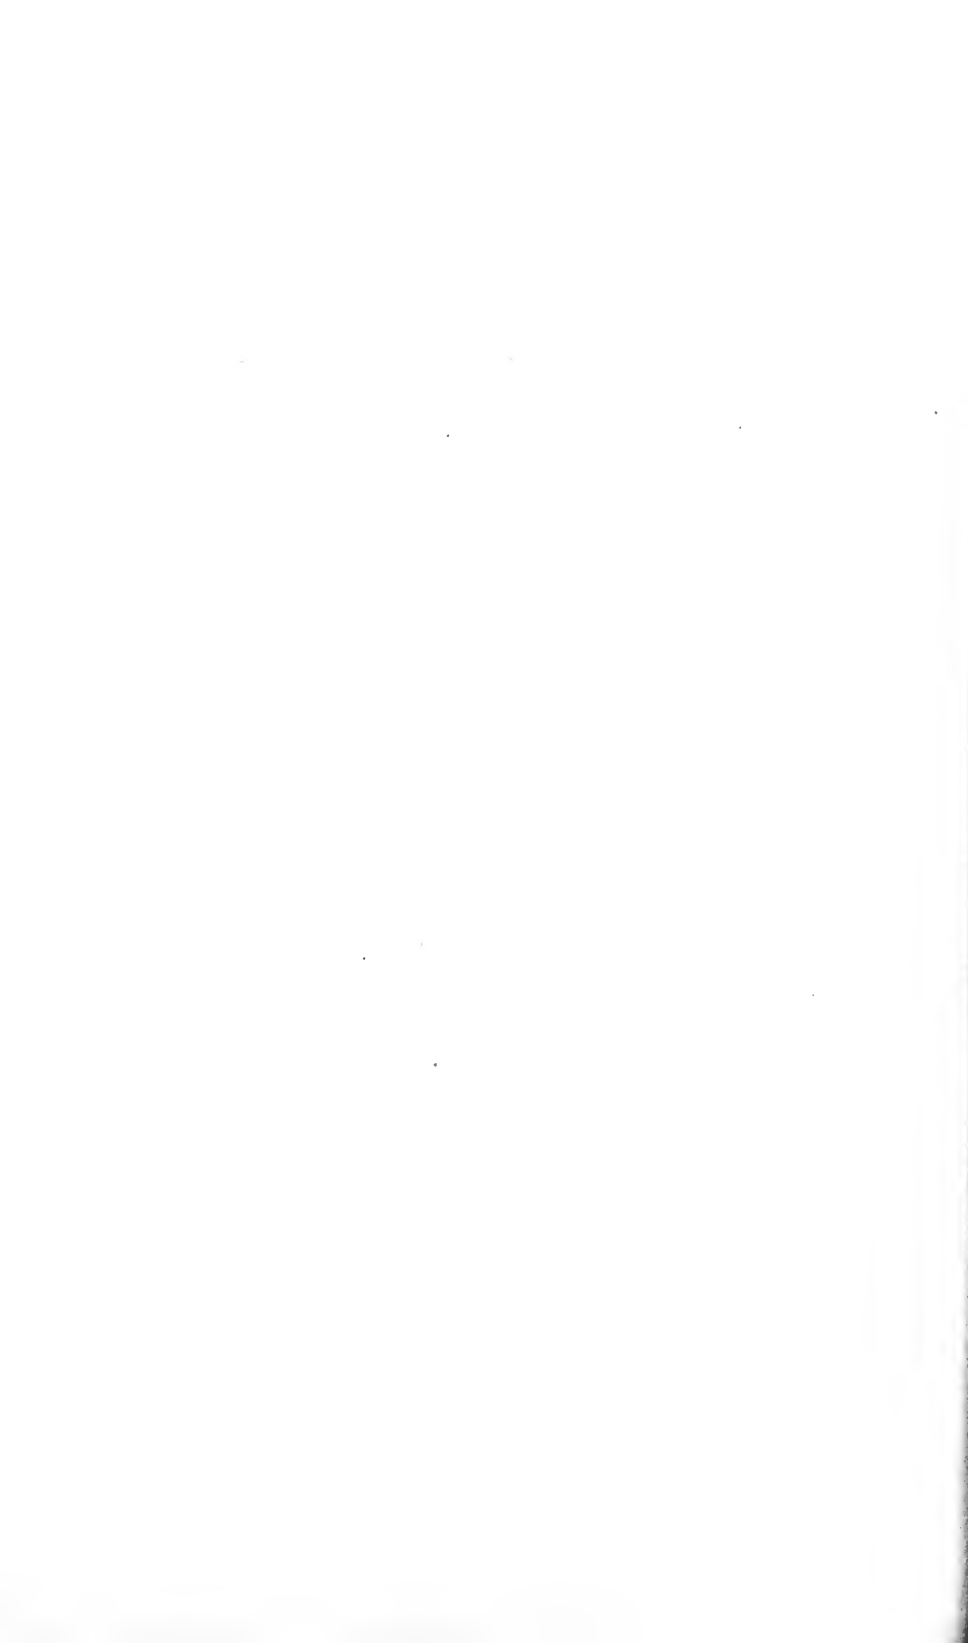

RESOLVED, That, in pursuance of the requirements of the Constitution and By-Laws applicable to the admission of new members, the determination of their eligibility and qualifications, and the powers and duties of the Board of Directors in connection therewith, and further, in supplementing the particular provisions of Section XXIII of the By-Laws recently adopted by the Society relating to the method of taking action upon applications for membership in the Society,

There shall be annually elected by the Board of Directors a standing Committee to be known as the Membership Committee, composed of three members of said Board, excepting the Secretary or Assistant Secretary, who shall not be eligible thereto, whose special duty shall be to examine all original applications for membership and all supplementary records presented by members and to pass upon the same upon two points, namely: whether or not the Revolutionary ancestor of the applicant or member performed the Revolutionary services requisite within the meaning of the Constitution of the Society, and whether or not such services are sufficiently authenticated by record, printed or other evidentiary authority.

It shall be the duty of the Secretary or Assistant Secretary upon the filing of an application for membership, or of a supplementary record, to secure the approval thereof by at least two members of said Membership Committee, prior to any recordation thereof.

Said Membership Committee shall not have the power to reject any application for membership or any supplementary record, but in the event any one of said Committee request it or, for any reason, the necessary approval be not given thereupon, the same shall be referred to the Board of Directors to be considered and determined upon at a formal meeting of said Board.

But, nothing herein shall change the mode of procedure as provided in Section XXIII of the By-Laws, but shall be only supplementary thereto.

Articles of Incorporation
of the
SOCIETY, SONS OF THE REVOLUTION
in the

Articles of Incorporation
of the Society, Sons of the Revolution
in the
State of California

Know all men by these presents: That we, the undersigned, all of whom are residents of the State of California, have this day voluntarily associated ourselves together for the purpose of forming a corporation under the laws of the State of California. And we hereby certify,

First

That the name of said corporation shall be

SONS OF THE REVOLUTION.

Second

That the purposes for which said corporation is organized are social and patriotic, and to perpetuate among their descendants the memory of those brave men who periled their lives and fortunes in the War of the Revolution to wrest the American Colonies from British Dominion, and for the collection and preservation of manuscripts, records, and documents relating to that contest for American Independence.

Third

That the place where its principal business is to be transacted is in the City of Los Angeles, in the County of Los Angeles, State of California.

Fourth

That the term for which said corporation is to exist is fifty years from and after the date of its incorporation.

Fifth

That the number of its Directors shall be five, and the names and residences of the Directors who are appointed for the first year are as follows, to wit:

Names.	Residence.
Holdridge Ozro Collins	Los Angeles, Cal.
John Miner Carey Marble	Los Angeles, Cal.
William Anthony Elderkin	Los Angeles, Cal.
Charles Lee Collins	Los Angeles, Cal.
Edward Thomas Harden	Los Angeles, Cal.

Sixth

That a meeting of said Association was held in Room 59, Bryson Block, in said City of Los Angeles, California, on the 8th day of May, 1893, for the election of directors, at which election a majority of the members of said Association was present and voted. John Miner Carey Marble was elected Chairman and Holdridge Ozro Collins was elected Secretary, and upon the count of the votes cast, the above named gentlemen, to wit: Holdridge Ozro Collins, John Miner Carey Marble, William Anthony Elderkin, Charles Lee Collins, Edward Thomas Harden, were declared duly elected Directors of Sons of the Revolution for the first year of its incorporation.

In Witness whereof, We have hereunto set our hands this 8th day of May, A. D., 1893.

How to Become a Member of the Society, Sons of the Revolution, in the State of California

It is the desire of the Society that the representative and sturdy type of citizenship of California shall seek admission to membership in this Society. With that thought in view a preliminary statement follows as to the origin and nature of the Society, and attention is particularly called to the formulated purposes of the organization:

The Society of Sons of the Revolution was instituted upon the anniversary of Washington's Birthday, 1876, at the City of New York, in the long room of Fraunces' Tavern, and at the present time there is an organized Society in most of the States.

The General Society is composed of delegates from each State Society.

The State Societies are independent in all matters relating to their own government, subject only to the Constitution and delegated powers of the General Society.

This society is non-sectarian, non-secret, and non-partisan in religious and political matters and its purposes are stated in the Constitution, viz.:

"The California Society, Sons of the Revolution, has been incorporated for the purposes of perpetuating among their descendants, the memory of the brave men who periled their lives and fortunes in the War of the Revolution to wrest the American Colonies from British dominion; for the collection and preservation of manuscripts, records and documents relating to that contest for Independence; for the inspiration among its members and their children of the patriotic spirit of their forefathers; for the inculcation of a love of country and veneration for the principles which are the foundation of our National unity, and the promotion of social intercourse and cordial fellowship among its members."

To become a member of this Society the applicant must be twenty-one years of age, possessing a good, moral character, and particularly of good standing in the community. His application for membership must be prepared along the lines of the Constitutional requirements for membership, which are hereinafter given, should be in the form prescribed by the Society, and must receive the endorsement and recommendation of two members of the Society.

1. Genealogical Research.

To those who are not familiar with the methods of securing genealogical data and establishing family history, the field of research appears to be unlimited, uncertain and so difficult of exploration that it presents some discouraging features to the novitiate. However, genealogy is an exact science and the hand-maiden of historical investigation, offering much of interest and certain rewards for its faithful and conscientious pursuit. It has become so popularized in the last twenty-five years and the lineages of so large a number of families, descendants from the Colonial Period, established, that to any one possessing the time and patience, and whose ancestors were in America prior to and during the Revolutionary Period, the problem of finding a Revolutionary progenitor, whose service may not even have been preserved in family record or by indefinite tradition, or of establishing the authentic record of Revolutionary service of an ancestor, whose name as a soldier or sailor has been preserved in the family annals as a matter of special distinction, is not, after all, so impossible of solution, or necessarily beyond the grasp of any one becoming interested, even though his information and lines of research may at first seem so limited.

If possessing no previous knowledge of genealogical research, the wisest and least expensive course is to consult a friend who may possess such knowledge or any officer of a patriotic or genealogical society, who will be pleased to offer aid and suggestions. There are also reputable professional genealogists whose services can be secured at a moderate expenditure of money.

If you have a relative who has already become a member of any one of the Revolutionary patriotic societies, such as; Sons of the Revolution, Sons of the American Revolution, Daughters of the American Revolution, Daughters of the Revolution, Society of the Cincinnati and Order of Founders and Patriots, or if there is in print a published genealogy of your family, the basis for your record is laid. Securing the benefit of this information, your procedure is comparatively easy. If neither source of information exist, then your genealogical foundations must be established from original sources.

To the class who are compelled, because no one has pioneered before them in searching out their family history, to explore entirely new lines of research, a word of caution is not only appropriate but will prove beneficial. A personal experience of some fifteen years had by the writer as a genealogist verifies the importance of this suggestion. The tendency of a beginner is to turn too soon to printed books and records, before fully exhausting the information to be found within his own family and among his own relatives. Postponing the search of outside authorities and the examination of books, the VERY FIRST THING TO DO is to start with oneself, birth, marriage and children, with a care always as to dates and locations, and writing this out in convenient form, let this serve as the foundation upon which the superstructure of genealogical history is to be builded. THE NEXT STEP is the placing upon this foundation in the nature of a corner-stone, of your parentage, correlating the same facts of births, marriages, and children. THE THIRD STEP is the following of the same course with respect to your FOUR grand-parents, neglecting in no instance the names of all children in each generation, for even the names may possess some signification or suggestion as to their origin. THE NEXT STEP is repeating the same process of the earlier generation with your EIGHT great-grand-parents, and so on, tracing YOUR LINE-AGE back to the generations antedating and co-existent with the Revolutionary Period of 1775 to 1783, and the man who is under forty years of age at this time, will be surprised to learn, if he has not thought of it previously, that he has sixteen great-great-grandparents who were possibly living at that Period, and further thirty-two great-great-great-grandparents likewise of possible existence then, one-half of whom were males, any one or more of the latter of whom were of sufficient age to have been participants in the War of the American Revolution. And, when it is understood that boys of the age of ten years served, and very old men, reaching to the ages of seventy-five and eighty years, there is possible the discovery of authentic records of Revolutionary service of from sixteen to twenty of such ancestors. This possibility does not suggest itself until some thought is given to the proposition, but when fully understood certainly minimizes the chances of failure in pursuing a careful and painstaking genealogical research.

Therefore, following along the lines thus laid down, TRACE YOUR LINEAGE BACKWARD, securing the necessary information within your own family sources, using family records and traditions as your guides. When this field has been patiently exhausted, you will have saved yourself much time and expense in the long run and will then be justified in turning to published and original probate and land records of state, town and county, as well as cemetery records and tombstone inscriptions. Then, other sources of information present themselves, as one suggests another, until you shall have to your entire satisfaction established YOUR LINEAGE BACK to the male ancestors who lived during the Revolutionary Period. In this search avoid the confusion existing from the fact that father and son very frequently bore the same name, and be sure of the identification of each with the locality and the record found. Further, the variations in the spelling of names of German, Dutch and French ancestors, arising from phonetic influences in spelling, should be ever kept in mind, for many record searches otherwise baffling have been rendered successful by clear evidence that the family names have undergone many changes in spelling since 1775.

Having found these ancestors under search and, particularly if several have been so established, the finding of the authentic records of Revolutionary service is made probable and reduces itself to a matter of verification.

Original papers exhibiting this service, such as commissions, discharges, muster-rolls, etc., very frequently exist in the family archives. These sufficiently prove the service and are accepted as authority. Certain miscellaneous original manuscripts may be in existence, of which certified copies can be secured and presented as proof. If these show the service, they will suffice. Tradition is not available in proof, except as a guide in search, and the record, to which reference is made, must be fixed in original sources and not have its authenticity based upon the statements or deductions of the applicant or genealogists.

At this point in the order of explanation and suggested guidance, a careful examination of the constitutional requirements for membership in the Society, Sons of the Revolution, in the State of California, should be undertaken. These appear in the following presentation, to which has been added a "Bibliography and Record Sources of Revolutionary Service," which should be of material assistance in preparing papers for application for membership.

2. Constitutional Requirements for Membership.

Any male person above the age of twenty-one years shall be eligible to membership in the SONS OF THE REVOLUTION, who is descended from an ancestor, as the propositus, who, either as a military, naval, or marine officer, soldier, sailor, or marine, or official in the service of any one of the thirteen original Colonies or States, or of the National Government representing or composed of those Colonies or States, assisted in establishing American Independence during the War of the Revolution, between the 19th day of April, 1775, when hostilities commenced, and the 19th day of April, 1783, when they were ordered to cease.

Provided: That when the claim of eligibility is based on the service of an ancestor in the "minute-men" or "militia," it must be satisfactorily shown that such ancestor was actually called into the service of the State or United States, and performed garrison or field duty; and

Provided further: That when the claim of eligibility is based on the service of an ancestor as a "sailor" or "marine," it must in like manner be shown that such service was other than shore duty and regularly performed in the Continental Navy of one of the original thirteen States, or an armed vessel, other than a merchant ship, which sailed under letters of marque or reprisal, and that such ancestor of the applicant was duly enrolled in the ship's company, either as an officer, seaman, or otherwise than as a passenger; and

Provided, further: That when the claim of eligibility is based on the service of an ancestor as an "official," such service must have been performed in the civil service of the United States, or of one of the thirteen original States, and must have been sufficiently important in character to have rendered the official specially liable to arrest and imprisonment, the same as a combatant, if captured by the enemy, as well as liable to conviction of treason against the government of Great Britain.

Service in the ordinary duties of a civil office, the performance of which did not particularly and effectively aid in the American Cause shall not constitute eligibility.

In the construction of this article, the Volunteer Aides-de-Camp of General Officers in Continental Service, who were duly announced as such, and who actually served in the field during a campaign, shall be comprehended as having performed qualifying service.

The civil officials and military forces of the State of Vermont, during the War of the Revolution, shall also be comprehended in the same manner as if they had belonged to one of the thirteen original States.

No service of an ancestor shall be deemed as qualifying service for membership in the SONS OF THE REVOLUTION where such ancestor, after assisting in the cause of American Independence, shall have subsequently either adhered to the enemy, or failed to maintain an honorable record throughout the War of the Revolution.

No person shall be admitted unless he is eligible under one of the provisions of this Article, nor unless he is of good moral character and is judged worthy of becoming a member.

Every application for membership shall be made in writing, subscribed by the applicant and approved by two members over their signatures. Applications shall contain, or be accompanied by, proof of eligibility, and such applications and proofs shall be submitted to the Board of Directors, who shall have full power to determine the qualifications of the applicant.

Payment of the initiation fee and subscription to the declaration required by the Constitution of this Society shall be a pre-requisite of membership.

The initiation fee is ten dollars; the annual dues, five dollars, which shall be payable on the first day of January in every year, becoming delinquent on April first. The payment at one time of fifty dollars thenceforth exempts the member so paying from the payment of annual dues.

Any member who may contribute two hundred dollars to the "Permanent Fund" of the Society shall be exempt from the payment of annual dues, and this exemption shall extend in perpetuity to his lineal successors in membership from the same propositus, one at a time, who may be selected for such exemption by the Society.

Applications for membership must be made in duplicate upon blanks furnished by this Society.

In preparing applications for membership, attention to the following suggestions is recommended, in order to facilitate the work of the Board of Directors:

1. State Revolutionary and biographical record of ancestor fully and concisely.

2. Give authority for each act of Revolutionary service of ancestor.
3. The Society does not accept Cyclopaedias, Genealogical works, or Town or County histories—except such as contain Rosters—as authorities for service, but suggests reference to the records, in print or manuscript, of the several States, and of the United States Departments of War, of the Navy, of State, and of the Bureau of Pensions.
4. In referring to printed works, the volume and page should in all cases be correctly given.
5. References to authorities in manuscript must be accompanied by certified copies, and authentic family papers must be submitted, if required.
6. Every application and duplicate must be signed by the applicant, and sworn to, or affirmed, before a Notary Public, or other officer authorized to administer an oath.

3. Bibliography and Record Sources of Revolutionary Service.

Contrary to a possibly preconceived idea in the minds of one not familiar with the subject, complete rolls or lists of soldiers, sailors and civil participants in the Revolutionary War, with details of service, do not exist. However, the bibliography of the history and events of the Revolution, together with more recently compiled lists and records of the soldiers, sailors and other patriots is quite extensive, and many sources of information are available for investigation.

Therefore, in the preparation of your application papers, the following directions to authoritative guides and standards will be almost invaluable.

a. General.

There are many histories of the Revolution, memoirs of its officers, chronologies of its events and recollections of its participants, published from 1780 down to the year 1860, now nearly all out of print, and there are later city, town, county and local histories, all of which may be of value in tending to establish the record under search, but the merit of which as an authority must be scrutinized as to the character of the statement of Revolutionary service, and particularly so if not susceptible of proof in other ways. Hence, this field of Revolutionary literature, which extends to several hundreds of volumes to be found in the more complete public libraries, is to be covered here.

Original records in the possession of the United States Government, in its several Departments and offices, together with its printed publications; the same of the several States comprising the original thirteen Colonies and some of the Middle Western States; the original records of cities and towns, as particularly in Massachusetts and other New England States, and of counties, as particularly in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Virginia; and all printed books and compilations, published under recognized authority and for the special purpose of preserving Revolutionary records, furnish the more important and main sources of authority. Many historical societies and genealogical organizations of repute have published authentic material, which can be safely used, and without tabulation, the more prominent, such as the N. E. Historical and Genealogical Register, and The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record may be cited. The "Spirit of '76," a magazine long since out of print, contained valuable lists and data. The year books, registers and compilations of the various patriotic organizations based upon the Revolutionary War are suggested sources. The monthly magazine published by the Daughters of the American Revolution has presented many original records. Its reports to the Smithsonian Institution, made under an Act of Congress, possess a certain measure of authority. Its published Lineage Books are invaluable, when based upon proper references. More than 100,000 have joined the National Society of the D. A. R. and its present membership exceeds 90,000.

b. Governmental.

In the United States War Department, in charge of the Adjutant General, are to be found all muster and pay rolls of soldiers in the possession of the government. Abstracts or certificates of service will be furnished to applicants who comply with certain requirements in asking for information.

In the Bureau of Pensions, a division of the Department of the Interior of the U. S. Government, are on file the claim papers of nearly 100,000 Revolutionary soldiers and their widows. The U. S. Commissioner of Pensions, Washington, D. C., will furnish abstracts or certificates of service upon proper request.

Various lists of pensioners have been published by authority of the Government, based upon reports of its various Departments, and the most notable of these is "Pierce's Register," printed in 1786, of which but three or four copies appear to be extant. The original manuscript is in the Treasury Department of the United States, and in the Library of Congress are preserved two printed copies. It exhibits nearly 100,000 certificates issued for payment of soldiers for services in the war. A reprint of this valuable work is being urged. Certain publications of the government showing the pensioners and where resident were issued in 1820, 1835 (pension rolls, by States) and 1841 (Census of pensioners). Vol. 6 of the Minnesota Historical Collections, pp. 502 et seq. gives lists of pensioners of the United States for 1813.

The Liberty Bell

The Society's First Journalistic Endeavor

Under the very efficient supervision of the Publicity Committee of the Society, composed of Messrs. Pierson Worrall Banning, Chairman, Robert Le Roy Beardsley, and Frank Hervey Pettingell, upon March 1, 1915, there was issued and distributed to the membership of the Society the initial number of Vol. I, of "The Liberty Bell." This was the Society's first attempt to print a current and continuous publication, which might reflect in its expression something of the activity, growth and welfare of the organization. It has been so well received and invited so much favorable comment for its continuation that a reproduction of this first issue, as a history marker for the Society, has been thought advisable. Therefore, it follows, in somewhat the same form in which it appeared, to be thereby the more permanently preserved in this publication.—Editor.

SOCIETY, SONS OF THE REVOLUTION
IN THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA

Vol. I

Los Angeles, March, 1915

No. 1

A Foreword

This publication is presented with the hope that a greater interest may be aroused among the members of this Society and their friends, and as it is found advisable other issues will appear.

Some of the purposes of this Society with a short resume of its history follows. It should be an incentive for every member to make every effort to bring in as many new members as possible. In your family and among your acquaintances you no doubt have friends who belong to other State Societies who if properly approached would be glad of an opportunity to affiliate with us. This is your opportunity to do what we greatly need at this time. There are also many desirable, eligible persons, not members of any Society, who would doubtless gladly accept an invitation to join with us.

Sons of the Revolution

The Society of the Sons of the Revolution was instituted in the State of New York, on the anniversary of the birthday of Washington, February 22, 1876, and reorganized on the present basis December 4, 1883.

Following New York, similar societies were formed in several states, and finally a national organization was perfected April 19, 1890, under the name of "The General Society of the Sons of the Revolution," with headquarters in New York City. The General Society embraces the various State organizations, and the objects, government, work and requirements for all the societies are the same. The Society is now well established by State organizations in most of the Eastern and many of the Western States, and is rapidly growing.

The necessity for and the purposes of the Sons of the Revolution are thus stated in the Constitution of the General Society:

"It has become evident from the decline of proper celebration of such National holidays as the Fourth of July, Washington's Birthday and the like, that proper interest in the events and men of the War of the Revolution is less than in the earlier days of the Republic." It attributes this failing interest "not so much to lapse of time as to the neglect on the part of descendants of Revolutionary heroes to perform their duty of keeping before the public mind the memory of the services of their ancestors, and of the times in which they lived, and of the principles for which they contended."

Objects

The objects of the Society are stated, as follows, in the preamble to the Constitution:

"To perpetuate the memory of men who, in military, naval or civil service, by their acts or counsel, achieved American Independence; to promote and assist in the proper celebration of the anniversaries of Washington's Birthday, the battles of Lexington and Bunker Hill, the Fourth of July, the Capitulations of Saratoga and Yorktown, the Evacuation of New York by the British Army, as a relinquishment of territorial sovereignty, and other prominent events related to or connected with the War of the Revolution; to collect and secure for preservation the manuscript rolls, records and other documents and memorials relating to that war; to inspire among the members and their descendants the patriotic spirit of their forefathers; to inculcate in the community in general sentiments of Nationality and respect for the principles for which the patriots of the Revolution contended; to assist in the commemorative celebration of other great historical events of National importance, and to promote social intercourse and the feeling of fellowship among its members."

The Liberty Bell

Our New Year Book

The California Society is now completing a Year Book that will probably equal or lead any such publication ever gotten out by any individual Society of the Sons of the Revolution. This valuable record and reference book not only gives the various lines of ancestry in the Revolutionary War for each member as qualified, but presents the dates of birth and death of each generation. The net result is that there are now listed for reference nearly six hundred Revolutionary War ancestors of the members of this Society.

Many names of unlisted South Carolina soldiers never before published will appear in this edition.

This work was inspired by Mr. Orra E. Monnette, who, with the co-operation of Mr. Leon L. French, has compiled a most valuable and authentic record. The publishing of this work will cost much more than anticipated.

It is to be hoped that the members of this Society will evidence their appreciation of the arduous work on the part of the committee, embracing many days and nights of hard work at great inconvenience and sacrifice to their own personal affairs, by subscribing for one or more copies. The edition is limited.

Free speech is a precious right, and so is free action. But the tongue has no more right than the hand to abuse its freedom.

Prominent Visitors

The General Registrar of the General Society of the Sons of the Revolution, Hon. George Eltwed Pomeroy of Toledo, is stopping at Hotel Huntington, Pasadena.

Another prominent visitor in our midst is Mr. Robert Taylor Varnum, of the New York Society. He is now the guest of Mr. H. E. Huntington.

Our General Secretary, Prof. William Libbey, of Princeton, N. J., writes that he and Governor Fielder, with other members of the Governor's Staff (31 in all) will be in Los Angeles on May 15.

"Breathes there a man with soul so dead
Who never to himself hath said,
This is my own, my native land;
Whose heart hath ne'er within him burned
As home his footsteps he hath turned From wandering on a foreign

The Liberty Bell

New Members

It is with pride that this Society is able to state that during the past year the membership has almost doubled. This is one indication that the interest in the work of this Society is rapidly increasing.

The group of hard workers for the greater development of this Society, continues to press its efforts upon all sources that can be reached for a further growth of membership this year. At present the Society has a membership of about two hundred, and it is hoped that the next few months will show an additional one hundred or more new names enrolled.

The New Year Book of this Society should prove a great incentive towards interesting new members. It will enable many who desire data regarding their ancestors to find such authenticated information within its covers. Thus with our growing interest, and the unusual facilities offered through our large reference library and the new Year Book, we should expand and grow as no other Society of the Sons of the Revolution ever has done.

For those not in possession of the necessary information to enable them to join this Society, arrangements can be made through the Secretary's office to have family records investigated.

Send names of prospective members to the Secretary of the Society, Mr. Robert Le Roy Beardsley.

We want your sons and nephews to join.

The California Society of the Sons of the Revolution was instituted May 8th, 1893, being now twenty-one years old. Its Hall and Library are at 814 San Fernando building, Los Angeles.

Secretary's Notes

The volume of correspondence falling to the office of the Secretary of this Society is far greater than the members ever anticipated. During the year 1913-1914 the Secretary's files showed over twenty-five hundred letters to Senators, Congressmen, Adjutant-Generals, Librarians, Patriotic Societies, Genealogists, Book Dealers, Historical Societies and other persons.

During the preceding three years the Society did not average over forty letters a year.

This hard work on the part of the Secretary has been amply repaid by the many volumes of books that have been donated to the Society library; by the added interest that it has produced not only among our members, but also among those interested in the work.

The Library of the Sons of the Revolution in the State of California now has over 1600 volumes of reference books, histories of states, counties and cities, genealogies and other editions and records many of which can not be obtained at any price. In connection with this Society, the Society of Colonial Wars has its library in the same place. The combined libraries bring a total of over two thousand volumes of the greatest value to the work of this organization. These books are for the use of the members of this Society and their friends.

Hon. David Hewes, care Hewes ranch, near Orange, Cal., is the grandson of one of the Revolutionary War soldiers. A short time ago he presented the library of this Society with a very fine genealogy of the Hewes family.

The California Society of the Sons of the Revolution, at Los Angeles, has appointed the following delegates to the International Congress of Genealogy to be held at San Francisco July 26th to 31st, 1915, under the auspices of the California Genealogical Society: Frank H. Pettingell, Col. Freeman G. Teed, Orra E. Monnette and James R. Page.

The Liberty Bell

The Triennial Report of the Proceedings of the Meeting of the General Society of the Sons of the Revolution is ready for distribution to the members of the Society. Those members not yet receiving their copy can obtain the same by calling at the Hall of the Society.

The suggestion has been made that the various Patriotic Societies of Los Angeles form a Federation, having common headquarters with various halls, libraries and other accommodations.

Last Annual Meeting

The Annual Meeting of the California Society of the Sons of the Revolution was held January 14th, 1915, at the hall of the Society. It was preceded by a luncheon at the Bristol Cafe, where there was a large representation. The new officers of the Society elected at that time are:

President, Arthur J. Waters; Vice-President, Orra E. Monnette; Second Vice-President, Col. Freeman G. Teed; Secretary, Robert Le Roy Beardsley; Assistant Secretary, Leon L. French; Treasurer, James R. Page; Assistant Treasurer, Willis M. Dixon; Registrar, Herbert L. Cornish; Chaplain, Rev. Richard D. Hollington; Historian, Richard Ingalese; Marshal, Loren O. Crenshaw; Librarian, Willis M. Dixon; Genealogist, Pierson W. Banning.

Notes

There have been admitted to membership in this Society since its organization 264 gentlemen.

There are on hand several applications for membership as well as a number of Supplemental Applications by members.

This Society has had three members whose fathers served in the Revolutionary War. They are Lewis Patrick Phillips, Francis Marion Lemmon and George Washington Peachy, the latter now deceased.

There are nine Life Members in the Society who are exempt from dues. Become a Life Member at the nominal cost of $50.

MISSION OF SAN CARLOS BORROMEO DE MONTEREY, NEAR CARMEL.

California Chronology

BY DR. ORRA EUGENE MONNETTE

A California Book

As was stated in the "Introductory Note" this is distinctively a California book. It has been sought to give it a character which should reflect in its pages the patriotism and distinction which belongs to the California people just as strongly and positively as to those who live in the eastern portions of the United States and who have some special claims on account of location to the traditional and actual events of the Revolutionary period.

With this particular purpose in mind, the following "California Chronology" has been included in this work in order to establish in the minds of the reader something of the history, romance and patriotic intensity of this splendid State. This compilation is neither exhaustive nor detailed, but an attempt has been made to give the most important dates which have marked the most striking and forceful events of California history. It is worth while to note that this compilation is a pioneer in its field as no similar tabulation of the chronology of California has ever been attempted. It has been compiled upon the authoritative works of history as a basis and has received the careful criticism of the heads of the reference departments of both the State Library at Sacramento, California, and the Los Angeles Public Library. As to the latter, the valuable cooperation and assistance of Miss Susanna C. Ott and Miss Laura C. Cooley should be mentioned for credit. It is believed that this will not only enhance the value of this publication of the Society but will at the same time prove a valuable handbook or compendium of California history of ready and convenient use and value.

California Chronology

COMPILED BY ORRA EUGENE MONNETTE*

Origin of the name, "California." The name California is first used in a romance published in Spain in 1510 and written by Garcia Ordoñez de Montalvo, the translator of the Amadis de Gaul, and called Las Sergas de Esplandián, or the Adventures of Esplandian. The Sergas is often referred to as the fifth book of the Amadis. In this book, which was an extremely popular piece of literature at the time of the conquest of Mexico, there is an island called California. By "California" there was implied insularity coupled with riches.

"Know," says the Sergas, "that on the right hand of the Indies there is an island called California very close to the side of the Terrestrial Paradise; and it is peopled by black women, without any man among them, for they live in the manner of Amazons. They were of strong and hardy bodies, of ardent courage, and great force. Their island was the strongest in the world, with its steep cliffs and rock shores. Their arms were of gold, and so was the harness of the wild beasts they tamed to ride, for in the whole island there was no metal but gold."

Sixteenth-century cartography, at this date and later, particularly in the maps, "Lenox Globe" and "Sylvanus Map," persists in the idea of North America as a group of islands. A continuous search for a passage through this archipelago, leading to Asia, was the goal of subsequent voyages of discovery. It was the result of this universal notion that California was discovered.

1513

Vasco Nuñez de Balboa, a Spanish navigator, crosses the Isthmus of Panama and discovers the Pacific Ocean.

1515

Francisco Pizarro, a Spanish adventurer, who had been associated with Vasco Nuñez de Balboa, when the latter discovered the Pacific Ocean in 1513, visits the Pacific South American Coasts and becomes the discoverer of Peru.

1519

Alonzo Alvarez de Pineda is the first European to view the broadly flowing waters of the Mississippi River, but he is not generally credited as its discoverer, that honor being universally given to Hernando de Soto.

1519

Hernando Cortés, at the head of a Spanish expedition, undertakes an exploration and conquest of Mexico.

1520

Fernao de Magalhaes, whom we know as Ferdinand Magellan, a Portuguese navigator, discovers and makes passage of the straits afterwards bearing his name, and is the first European navigator to cross the Pacific Ocean.

1521

Spanish conquest of Mexico by Hernando Cortés is completed and the country is called "Nueva España," or "New Spain."

1521

Fernao de Magalhaes discovers the islands subsequently known as the Philippine Islands. Other voyages across the Pacific Ocean, with these islands as an objective point, had a direct bearing then, and an influence later, upon the history of California.

1522

The circumnavigation of the globe by the sailing vessels, which had been commenced by Fernao de Magalhaes, who was killed in 1521 during the voyage, is accomplished by a return to the point of previous embarkation.

1522

Previous to Magellan's voyage the belief had existed that North America was an archipelago and was traversed by an inter-oceanic strait, later called "Anian," connecting the Gulf of St. Lawrence with the North Pacific Ocean. After the discovery of the Straits of Magellan and the voyage across the Pacific, this belief becomes popularly current and accepted.

1524

Gonzalo de Sandoval carries the following strange story to Mexico from Colima: "California is represented as an island, rich in pearls and gold. It was said to lie at a distance of ten days' journey from the province of Ciguatan, and to be inhabited by women only." This account is transmitted to the Emperor Charles V. of Spain by Hernando Cortés, in the Carta Quarta de Relacion.

1524

Francisco Pizarro, who had visited Peru in 1515, sets sail from Panama, with his partner, Diego de Almagro, an adventurer like himself, and joining to himself Hernando de Luque, a priest possessed of some money, ventures upon an expedition and conquest of this rich empire of Peru; and sailing southward from Panama, explores the southern Pacific Coast. The expedition proves an inspiration for a later conquest.

1526

Francisco Pizarro, financed by Gaspar de Espinosa, mayor of Panama, undertakes a second expedition to Peru. Again he sails from the city of Panama, southward along the Peruvian coast.

Francisco Pizarro enters upon and completes the conquest of Peru. He defeats the Inca Atahualpa, and taking over the cities of Peru, with their immense treasures, governs the same under the title of Adelantado. He sent his brother, Hernando Pizarro, to Spain to obtain honors for the conquistadores. Returning in 1535, with various honors; Francisco Pizarro receives at the hands of Charles V. of Spain, the title of Marquis and a grant of the Chilean region for Almagro. It is noteworthy that during this conquest and occupation, he was accompanied by Hernando de Soto, who later explores the Mississippi River.

Fortuñ Ximénez, a Spanish adventurer, and mutinous pilot of Cortés' Expedition, discovers the eastern coast of Baja California, or Lower California, at what was later known as Santa Cruz Bay. Here Ximénez is killed.

1535

Hernando Cortés visits Baja California to found a colony, lands where Ximénez had been killed, and gives to what he thought was an island, the name of "Santa Cruz" (La Paz). Whether this Santa Cruz of Cortés was an island at the mouth of the bay, or the mainland of Baja California which he thought was a large island, is not known, although it would seem that it might be the latter, as he says: "I arrived at the land of Santa Cruz, I was in it and had complete knowledge of it," and he would not speak of so small a body as one of the islands at the mouth of the bay as "land."

1536

Hernando Cortés crosses the Gulf of California and explores the lower portion of Baja California and also the Pacific Coast of Mexico.

1536

Alvar Nuñez Cabeza de Vaca, a Spanish adventurer in North America, and belonging to the expedition of Panfilo de Narvaez to Florida in 1528, crosses the Mississippi River. He is the second European to do this.

Alvar Nuñez Cabeza de Vaca appears in the City of Mexico with his wondrous tales of having traveled on foot three thousand miles from Florida, of his wanderings for many years in unknown lands, now Texas and Arkansas, and of the fabulous wealth, gold and precious stones, of the "Seven Cities of Cibola." These wonderful tales inspired Cortés and his military associates to the succeeding voyages and expeditions of discovery and exploration which resulted in the discovery of California.

1537

The colony founded by Hernando Cortés on Lower California at Santa Cruz is a failure and abandoned.

Fray Marcos de Niza, an Italian Missionary and explorer, under the direction of Francisco Vasquez de Coronado, Governor of "New Galicia," undertakes the exploration of northwestern Mexico and becomes the "Discoverer of Arizona." He is inspired by the wonderful tales told by Cabeza de Vaca of the rich cities of Cibola of which the latter had heard on his overland journey of three years previous.

Fray Marcos de Niza makes his wonderful journey into the unknown wilds alone except for the negro Estevanico, who had been with Cabeza de Vaca, and four Indians. He returns with even more wonderful tales than had Cabeza de Vaca, as he had seen the cities from a hill, being afraid to go nearer owing to an uprising in which Estevanico was killed. The cities which were the lure of so many adventurous souls were merely the terraced houses of the Pueblo Indians.

Francisco de Ulloa, a Spanish soldier and explorer, and a lieutenant of Cortés, having been with the latter in 1535, makes a Pacific coastwise voyage and explores the Gulf of California, proving that California is not an island. The first record of the name as applied to the peninsula appears in the map in Preciado's diary of Ulloa's expedition.

1539

Francisco Preciado, a Franciscan padre and diarist of the expedition of Francisco de Ulloa, employs the name "California" many times in his account of Ulloa's expedition, which is the first time the name appears in print as applying to an actual body of land. He discriminates between "Isle of California" and "Land of Santa Cruz."

Hernando de Soto, Spanish gentleman, explorer, and adventurer, effects a landing at Tampa Bay and leads a remarkable expedition for the next three years through Florida, Georgia, perhaps through Carolina, Tennessee and Alabama, descending the Alabama River to Mobile Bay. He turns northward, and crosses Mississippi and the river of the same name, and explores almost to the Missouri River.

Francisco Vasquez de Coronado, governor of New Galician, incited by the wonderful tales of the "Seven Cities of Cibola" and of Quivira, as told by Fray Marcos on his return, sets out on an expedition accompanied by 300 Spaniards and 800 Indians. During the next two years the party explores from the Grand Cañon of the Colorado across Arizona and New Mexico, as far north as central Kansas and east to central Texas. He explores the country as far north as the Moqui villages of Tusayan, only to find that the wonderful cities of Cibola were the communal houses of the Pueblo Indians.

1540

Hernando de Alarcón, a Spanish-American navigator, employed by Don Antonio de Mendoza, viceroy of New Spain, is the first European to touch California soil, and, entering the Gulf of California, ascends the Colorado River for more than one hundred miles on an expedition of discovery, co-operating with Coronado.

1540

Garcia Lopez de Cardenas, one of the captains under Coronado, discovers the Grand Canyon of the Colorado.

1541

Domingo del Castillo, one of Alarcón's pilots, re-explores the Gulf of California and charts its shores; he publishes a notable map of the Gulf of California and the Colorado River which is recognized as both accurate and authoritative. He describes California as a peninsula.

1541

Francisco Pizarro is killed by a band of conspirators under Juan de Rada in vengeance for the previous execution of Almagro, his former associate.

1542

Hernando de Soto, re-discovers the Mississippi River, which has a direct bearing upon the subsequent Louisiana Purchase and the opening of the Great West to the Pacific Coast.

Juan Rodríguez Cabrillo, a Portuguese navigator, is employed by Pedro de Alvarado, governor of Guatemala, for a voyage under the flag of Spain, to the north. Alvarado dies before the voyage is commenced, but Cabrillo is confirmed by Mendoza. He sails from Navidad to the north and discovers the Bay of San Diego, thus becoming the true discoverer of California, although Alarcón in his voyage up the Colorado saw and probably landed on California soil. Cabrillo visits many of the islands along the coast, among them Santa Cruz, Catalina and San Clemente, and sails as far north as Point Conception. His important discoveries are cut short by his death.

Alonzo de Santa Cruz, the cosmographer royal of Charles V. of Spain, publishes his map showing California as in the lower part insular and in the upper part peninsular.

1542

Don Antonio de Mendoza, viceroy of New Spain, sends six ships under Ruy Lopez de Villalobos, across the Pacific to "note the products of the Western Islands," and Villalobos reaching them, re-christens them Las Philipinas, the Philippine Islands, in honor of Philip II of Spain.

1542

A party of Spaniards visits the present site of Santa Fé, New Mexico, and finds there an abandoned Indian pueblo.

1543

January 3rd, Juan Rodríguez Cabrillo, the true discoverer of California and the first explorer of its coast, dies on the Island of San Miguel and is probably buried there.

1543

Bartolomé Ferrelo, a native of the Levant, and Cabrillo's chief pilot, takes command of the expedition and voyages as far north as the forty-second degree of latitude, to within four degrees of the mouth of the Columbia River. He reports the new discoveries to Cortés.

1564

Miguel Lopez de Lagazpi is commissioned by Luis de Velasco, Viceroy of New Spain, to subdue the Philippine Islands, which he accomplishes in the next seven years, founding the City of Manilla.

1568

Bernal Diaz del Castillo, who had served as a common soldier with Hernando Cortés and had been in one hundred and nineteen battles, and who had been present at the siege and capture of the City of Mexico in 1521, commences his notable history of the Spanish conquest.

Sir Francis Drake*, an English admiral and navigator, acquires immense treasures as a freebooter in the Spanish harbors on the Pacific Coast. Sails northward on a voyage of exploration and anchors in the bay receiving his name, most likely the bay in the embrasure of Point Reyes, also identical with Cermeño's Bay.

*This expedition of Drake was a rude awakening to the calm possession of the Spaniards. Not only because of the danger to the Philippine galleons, but also because of the fate of the country over which Drake had raised the flag of England.

Sir Francis Drake orders religious services to be performed with the Indians as witnesses in order to convey to their minds the idea of the everlasting God who created heaven and earth and reigned above. This is carried out on the shores of Drake's Bay, by the celebration of the English forms of service and is the first Christian rite ever held on the soil of California; being representative of the established church of England as under Queen Elizabeth, it was undeniably a Protestant service. The following is the quotation from the World Encompassed: "Our generall, with his companie—fell to prayer—. In the time of which prayer, singing psalmes and reading of certaine Chapters in the Bible, they sate very attentively—."

1580

Sir Francis Drake returns to England, his ships laden with spoils, and, having gained enduring glory by circumnavigating the globe (it being the second time this had been achieved), he enters Plymouth Harbor, England, having started therefrom in 1577 upon Magellan's earlier course, though not then contemplating a periplus of the world.

1582

Bernal Diaz del Castillo has lodged in manuscript form as the result of continuous application and prodigious labor for many years his remarkable history entitled Historia Verdadera de la Conquista de la Nueva España. This covers the explorations and conquests of the Spaniards and contains many references to California, and the author states that it was Cortés who first gave it the name. However, this history remains in manuscript form for fifty years after this date.

Francisco Lopez Gomara, secretary and chaplain of Cortés, publishes his Historia general de las Indias (La conquista de Mexico).

*NOTE—It is interesting to note that several members of the California Society, Sons of the Revolution, are descendants of Captain Francis Drake of Piscataway, New Jersey, a grand-nephew of the navigator, viz: Charles Hanson Scott, Harry Kistler Scott, Alexander McClurg Drake and Orra Eugene Monnette.

1584

Francisco de Gali, under command of Viceroy Pedro de Moya de Contreras, starting from a port of New Spain, crosses the Pacific Ocean and returns again to within two hundred leagues of the northern coast of Alta California, and then traverses the coast southward, skirting the islands on the California shores. On this voyage, he discovers the Japan Current, thus making an easy return trip from the Philippine Islands to Mexico. This had a very important bearing on the history of California. As, owing to the length and dangers of the trip back from the Philippines it was necessary to have a port of repairs for the galleons, before reaching Mexico; and as the return by the Japan Current brought the galleons along the shores of California, California thus becomes a commercial necessity to Mexico. It was this that caused the King of Spain to desire California, and not her own worth, as that was never known nor appreciated by Mexico.

Thomas Cavendish, second English circumnavigator of the globe, and, like Drake, a freebooter, sails through the straits of Magellan, preys upon Spanish vessels, and exploring the Pacific Coast of Mexico to Lower California, returns to England. He thus performs the third periplus of the globe.

1587

Pedro de Unamunu, a navigator of Macao, is sent by Viceroy Contreras on an exploring expedition to discover islands to be used as refitting stations for the Philippine galleons. Unamunu does not find these islands nor, indeed, any others, but discovers a bay which he called Puerto de San Lucas, probably the Bay of Monterey, thus antedating the discovery of Viscaïno by fifteen years.

1588-1594

"The Silver Map of the World" appears, which is assumed to be "A contemporary medallion commemorative of Drake's voyage (1577-80)," and on this map is engraved "Californoa."

1591

Juan de Fuca, a Greek navigator whose real name was Apostolos Valerianos, in the employ of the Viceroy of Mexico, explores the Pacific Coast and sails into the Bay which is now known as the Gulf of Georgia, and having for twenty days steered through its intricate windings and numerous islands, returns with a belief that the entrance to the long desired passage into the Atlantic had been found; that is, "Anian." The Straits into Puget Sound still bear his name. Juan de Fuca really claims to have made the voyage completely through the Straits of Anian from the Atlantic to the Pacific. This had a very great influence on the geography of the time.

Sebastian Rodríguez Cermeño, sailing from the Philippines on a voyage of discovery of islands to be used as ports of refuge for the Philippine galleons, is driven into a bay behind Point Reyes, latitude 38° , along the coast of California. This bay is probably the Francis Drake Bay. The ship is wrecked, but some seventy escape in a viroco and later, sailing down the coast, reach a "very large bay," latitude 37° , which is very likely Monterey. Thus is added another possible "discoverer" of Monterey before Vizcaino.

1597

Gonzalo de Francia, boatswain of a ship under Sebastian Vizcaino, visits Santa Cruz Bay and, later (1629) writes to the King: "We came upon un puerto grande which was called El Puerto de la Paz,—and an island at the mouth of it which was called Island of Women, who were without men, none passing over to them except in summer on rafts made of reeds."

1598

Juan de Oñate, a Spanish explorer, under commission of Viceroy, Don Luis de Velasco, to colonize the district north of the river Rio Grande, which was confirmed by the Viceroy, Gaspar de Zuñiga y Acebo de Monterey, sets out on an expedition with a large force of soldiers, Indians, wagons and cattle, and crossing the Rio Grande, founds San Gabriel, the first capital of New Mexico.

1598

Juan de Oñate extends his explorations into the territory later comprising Arizona and traverses the edges of the desert and fertile mountain valleys which had been discovered sixty years before.

1599

In revenge for the murder of a number of Spaniards, Oñate decides to attack the city of Acoma, the great stronghold of the Pueblo Indians, standing on its almost impregnable cliffs. But the great cliffs were not proof against cunning, and the Spaniards divided themselves in two parties, one of which climbed the walls during the night and the other, making the front attack the following morning, take the city. In all history there is no more desperate battle, nor none fought at so dizzy a height. Of the 3000 Indians but six hundred were left and they were forced to leave their homes and live in the valley.

1600

An excellent map is published by Tattonus in this year, showing Lower California a peninsula. The early cartographers persisted in the insular idea. From 1541 (the map of Castillo), to 1622 the peninsula idea gained ground, but again from 1622 to 1746 a reaction toward the idea of California being an island prevailed, even against the distinct proof to the contrary in Kino's entradas.

1601

As a part of his conquest of New Mexico and of his further explorations Oñate makes an expedition into the country of the Quivira.

1601

Antonio de Herrera, Historian General of New Spain, publishes his account of the Cortés expedition, and states that between 1535 and 1537, the Spanish leader called the waste about him "California."

Sebastian Vizcaino, a Spanish explorer, having become Chief Pilot of New Spain and commissioned Captain-General for a second California voyage by the Condé de Monterey, explores the west coast of Alta California north to Cape Blanco de San Sebastian, latitude 42° . Vizcaino enters the great Bay, which had been previously visited by Ferrelo Unamunu and Cermeño and names it the Bay of Monterey in honor of the Viceroy of Mexico.

In this expedition of Vizcaino, a vessel, under the command of Juan Martin de Aguilar, becomes separated from the others in a storm and Aguilar sails north on his own responsibility as far as Cape Blanco in Oregon, latitude 43° or further. He sails up a river which receives the name Aguilar upon current maps. To him is given the credit for the discovery of the mouth of the Columbia River, although it is doubtful if he went that far.

Sebastian Vizcaino publishes maps showing the Port of Monterey and the San Francisco Bay of Cermeño (Puerto de los Reyes). This latter bay is also identical with Sir Francis Drake's Bay.

1604

A second exploration of the territory now included in the State of Arizona is made by Juan de Oñate. On this exploration Oñate followed the Colorado River to its mouth, being the first European to accomplish this.

1605

The settlement or pueblo of San Gabriel in New Mexico after continuing for seven years is abandoned. While it thereby loses its antiquity as a permanently inhabited town, yet in later years the town of Chamita is founded on the same site.

1605

The town of Santa Fé, now in the State of New Mexico, is established by Juan de Oñate on the site of at least one prehistoric pueblo and is given the name of "La Ciudad Real de la Santa Fé de San Francisco." Oñate enslaves the Indians of the neighborhood and proceeds to open up extensive gold and silver mines. Santa Fé is the second oldest white settlement in the United States, that of Saint Augustine, Florida, alone exceeding it in point of age, and antedates the settlement at Jamestown by two years and the landing of the Mayflower in Boston Harbor by fifteen years.

1606

Enrico Martinez, a Mexican engineer and royal cosmographer of Spain, constructs a noted canal in the Valley of Mexico, and publishes the observations and surveys, made by Vizcaino in 1602, of Alta California, in thirty-two charts, which are still preserved in the archives of the Council of the Indies.

1609

King James I. of England makes his second grant of land on the North American Continent, in Virginia, known as the Jamestown Charter, being dated May 23, 1609, the seventh year of King James' reign; the inland limit of this grant or charter was from sea to sea, that is from the Atlantic to the Pacific, the southern boundary being thirty-four degrees, North latitude, and the northern boundary thirty-eight degrees, North latitude; and it is interesting to note that his northerly limit as finally settled passes into the Pacific Ocean, just north of San Francisco and that this southerly limit as finally settled passes about three miles south of the city of Redlands, through the city of Riverside, and into the Pacific Ocean at about Santa Monica, California, so that all of the Pacific Coast line from Santa Monica to the Golden Gate was the westerly limit of this Jamestown Grant, though never legally established or right of control exercised.

1611

Sebastián Vizcaino explores the region about Japan in hopes of finding the islands Ricas de Oro y Plata, islands of gold and silver. (The Armenian Islands of Villalobos and Unamunu). The existence of these mythical islands probably due to a folk-talk of Japan.

1622

Appears a map of "The World" by Kaspar Van Baerle, and on this California is drawn as an island of great size and of rectangular form. Other maps from this year (and in succeeding years to 1746) replace the peninsula of California by an island.

The manuscript history entitled "Historia Verdadera de la Conquista de la Nueva Espana" which had been written during the labors and studies of a period of many years by Bernal Diaz del Castillo and which had been hidden among the archives of a library in Spain for a period of fifty years and long after his death, is at this date brought to light and published to the world. It immediately secures an eminent position as historical evidence and authority and brings more positive attention to the discoveries and explorations of Hernando Cortés and the country then called "California." This history of the conquest of New Spain refers to Cortés as having discovered "an island" and that on that account Cortés was heartily cursed by his followers—a starving band.

Francisco de Ortega names one of the islands in the lower gulf of California Espiritu Santo. It was probably either this island or Cerralvo to which the name California was first given.

(Note—With subsequent historians, it is a matter of speculation as to what land, whether Lower California itself, or some islands off the coast, was first spoken of as "California." The quotation exactly from Richman is: "It"—the land to which the name California was first given—"may have been Cerralvo (the Santiago of Cortés), or Espiritu Santo, (so named by Ortega in 1632), both at the mouth of the Bay of Santa Cruz.")

1630, 1646-1647

Robert Dudley, Duke of Northumberland, an English Nobleman, and historiographer, publishes his three-volume work, Arcano Del Mare, and describes in Il Mare d'America Occidentale, the trips of the Galleons from the Philippines making the northwest coast of America. He defines the "Vermillion Sea" as beginning "at the Cape Santa Clara of California," etc., and as so many others, calls California an island.

1647

Father Joannis Bisselius, a Jesuit, contributes to the geographical literature of the age his Argonauticon Americanorum and proposes to name all the regions of the eastern and northern part of North America with the western kingdoms of Quivira and Tolmum, Estotilandia, and then turning to the south, on the west coast, he begin with California. He writes: "The kingdoms and regions better known to our navigation are these: those which lie on the south sea, Zurium, in an oblique direction from the west; in these after Quivira and the lands of the Tolmi, in the same extent of coast, the regions of California are stretched out on the sea toward the east (orientum versus). The back of this land is shut in by mountains from which flows into the ocean the river Farrellónes. The sides are surrounded by water in the manner of arms. On the right indeed, which looks toward the south, the South Sea; on the left however, toward the north, it is bordered by a certain gulf running transversely up beyond the middle of the length of California. Some call this the Vermillion Sea."

1652

George Horn, in his notable work, on the origin of the people of America, traces the origin and migration of peoples by similarity of words; and writing of Corea thus curtly refers to the derivation of the name California from the name of the Coreans: "Hi Coreani primo in Californiam venerunt; quae nomen suum a Caoli habet."

1653

Appears the notable work entitled Sir Francis Drake Revived, containing an account of his four several voyages and his dangerous adventures for gold and silver. It included the World Encompassed.

1669

Peter Heylyn publishes his famous Cosmographie in four books in which he describes California as an island.

1682

René-Robert Cavelier, Sieur de La Salle, a young Frenchman of Rouen, France, makes his famous exploring tour in the middle west, floats down the Mississippi River to its mouth, takes possession of its vast basin in the name of France, and calls it "Louisiana," in honor of the king. This event bears direct relationship to subsequent Pacific Coast history.

1686

Captain Charles Swan, for the English, makes a voyage and enters California waters, carrying as a pilot and historiographer William Dampier, a navigator. Dampier eventually makes four circumnavigations of the globe and publishes his adventures in a number of thrilling volumes.

Beginning of the Jesuit Mission System in Baja or Lower California, under Fathers Eusebio Francisco Kino, missionary and royal cosmographer, and Juan Maria de Salvatierra, assistente at Los Chimpas, as visitador. First mission, Loreto de Concho, founded at Loreto, Lower California, October 25th. In the succeeding seventy-two years, eighteen missions are there located, all but one by the Jesuit order, and the famous "Pious Fund of California" is established.

The Pious Fund had its origin in voluntary contributions in Mexico for the maintenance of Jesuit missions in California. The members of this company administered the fund until their expulsion from Spanish territory in 1768, when the government assumed charge until 1840 when it was turned over to the newly created Bishop of California, who administered it until 1842, when the government again assumed control. At this time the government sold all the properties belonging to the fund, agreeing to pay to the missions of California six per cent per annum on the total selling price. This pledge has been the cause of a number of international difficulties between the United States and Mexico since California has been a part of the United States, but the question was finally settled in 1902 at The Hague, and Mexico pays to the bishops and archbishops of California $43,000 annually.

William Dampier publishes A New Voyage Round the World, describing the lands visited on his voyages and the inhabitants, their customs, religions, etc., and makes reference to California which he also depicts as an island.

1708-1711

In these years is made the voyage to the South Sea and around the world by the ships Duke and Duchess of Bristol, commanded by Woods Rogers. Edward Cooke was second captain on board the "Duchess" and in 1712 publishes a journal of all the memorable transactions experienced during the said voyage. William Dampier, who really projected the expedition, went as pilot to the Duke.

1709

Woods Rogers in his visits to the Pacific waters rescues Alexander Selkirk, the original of Daniel Defoe's Robinson Crusoe, from the Island of Juan Fernandez, three hundred miles off the coast of Chile. Selkirk is described as "A man in goatskins, who looked wilder than the first owners of them."

1719

Captain George Shelvocke makes a voyage to the Pacific Coast. It is very interesting that the sailor, Hatley, of this expedition was the Ancient Mariner who shot the albatross of Coleridge's famous poem.

1728

Vitus Behring, a Danish navigator, employed by Peter the Great of Russia, sails through the straits since bearing his name. By this voyage the question whether or not Asia and North America were one continent was indisputably settled.

1728

William Betagh publishes an account of a voyage round the world and of a remarkable enterprise begun in the year 1719, chiefly to cruise piratically on the Spaniards in the Great South Ocean.

1739

John Georgius Gemling publishes a rare tract which appears to have been prepared as a thesis for a university or college degree, entitled Disputatio geographica de vero Californiae situ et conditione. This is a little known but important publication.

1741

The Russian government orders a second voyage to discover and explore the islands west of Asia. North America is first sighted by Alexei Chirikof, the commander of one of the two boats under Behring, and which had become separated from its companion in a storm, at latitude 55°. He sails as far south as Vancouver's Island. He returns to Siberia without again seeing Behring. Behring thirty-six hours later sights Mt. St. Elias and takes on water on Kyak Island, latitude 59°, 40', and returns to Siberia without any further explorations.

1740-1744

George Anson, Esq., later Lord Anson, as commander in chief of a squadron of his Majesty's ships, is sent upon an expedition to the South Sea and makes a voyage round the world. The experiences of this expedition were afterwards published from his papers and materials by Richard Walter, M.A., who had been Chaplain of his Majesty's ship, the Centurion, on that expedition. It made the most popular book of maritime adventure of the eighteenth century.

1745

Russian sailors, coming from the north, descend upon and take possession of the Aleutian Islands.

1747-1756

As a result of the commercial war started in London over the Indian trade and fur traffic, Arthur Dobbs had fitted out two vessels for this purpose and if possible to open the route to the South Seas; one of these was named California and under command of Captain Francis Smith the voyage is undertaken, of which a full account later appears. This is the first vessel to bear the name California.

Miguél Venegas, a Mexican priest, publishes in Spain his history of California, Noticia de la California. This work has been translated into English, Dutch, French and German, and has become the basis of all later histories. In it Venegas says he thinks the word California originated from two Latin words calida and fornax, meaning hot furnace, though he doubts the Spanish adventurers "had so much learning." He also suggests that the origin may be an Indian word, possibly kali forno, meaning high hill.

As a supplementary note to the foregoing, the following authorities with reference to the etymology of the name California should be included although the year dates do not come within the limitations of this Chronology:

(Professor Jules Mareou in 1876 publishes in the Annual Report of the Chief of Engineers of the U. S. Army, his Notes upon the first discoveries of California and the origin of its name. He ascribes to Cortés the division of the Mexican region into "tierra frio, tierra templada, tierra caliente, and tierra californica, or cold regions, temperate regions, hot regions, and regions like a furnace, from the two Latin words, calida and fornax, hot furnace.

In 1893, an article appears in the San Francisco Chronicle by M. L., who states that the words cal y forno mean lime kiln in the language of the Indians of Lower California, and that the author heard one of them use it as such, and he believes that Ulloa, remembering the name California as used in the Sergas de Esplandián, gives the name to the peninsula.

Professor George Davidson, President of the Geographical Society of the Pacific, in 1910 publishes his monograph on the origin and meaning of the name California. He accepts the hypothesis of the Sergas de Esplandián, and gives as the etymological derivation of the word California two Greek words, meaning beauty and bird.)

By decree of the Spanish Cortés, the Jesuits are expelled from Mexico and all Spanish territory; and their missions offered to the Franciscans.

1769

The Abbé, Jean Chappe D'Auteroche, voyages to California for an observation of the passage of the planet Venus over the face of the sun, June 3, 1769. This celestial phenomenon was visible only upon the coast of California. Spain knew of the expedition and fearing the possible results hastened to dispatch Don Gaspar de Portolá upon his mission of occupation and colonization of upper California. The Abbé Chappe died while in Lower California and was there interred. Monsieur de Cassini publishes an account in 1772.

1769

Conquest of Upper California is ordered and committed to Don José Gálvez, the Visitador General of Mexico and San Francisco de Croix, Viceroy. Captain Gaspar de Portolá is made civil and military commander of the country, and Fray Junipero Serra, Father President of the missions.

1769

Beginning of the civil and religious reduction of Alta California, by an expedition under Governor Don Gaspar de Portolá and Father Junipero Serra.

1769

July 14th, starting from San Diego of an expedition of sixty-seven soldiers, friars and artisans northward to find the Bay of Monterey, the real objective of the whole expedition, all under command of Portolá. In the company was Sergeant Jose Francisco de Ortega, who first discovers San Francisco Bay, while out hunting.

1769

Founding of the first (1) Franciscan Mission at San Diego, July 16th; the full name of the mission was San Diego de Alcalá. There has been much discussion as to the origin of the name. The Bay was named by Vizcaino simply San Diego, after his flagship, but the mission was named by Serra after the saint whose day it was and not Santiago (San Diego) de Compostella, patron saint of Spain, as has often been said.

1769

San Francisco Bay is given this name for the first time, although still with the idea that it was the St. Francis Bay of Cermeño. A late authority, Richman, says: "The truth is that until 1774, the year of the Anza expedition, it had not so much as been settled just where the port of San Francisco was, where the presidio and mission were to be founded. What, however, was presumed was that the estuary of 1769 and 1770 (the present San Francisco Bay) was appurtenant to the old San Francisco Bay of Cermeño. On a map of 1772 the present San Francisco Bay is called Estero de San Francisco. (Estuary of San Francisco, or arm of the old bay of Cermeño.)"

1770

Eusebio Francisco Kino, a missionary of Sonora, makes a final entrada to the Colorado, following it as far north as 35 degrees, proves practically that California is not a peninsula.

1770

Fray Francisco Garcés, resident minister of San Xavier del Bac, Arizona, makes the third of his entradas, and in this one, the most important, travels down the Rio Gila and the Colorado, nearly, if not quite to the mouth of the latter.

On May 24, in a second overland expedition to find Monterey, Portolá discovers and recognizes the bay. On the 31st, Captain Juan Perez anchors his ship San Antonio in Monterey Bay and on July 9th the (2) mission and presidio of San Carlos Borromeo de Monterey is founded, the second mission and the first presidio, or fort. It becomes the first capital of California.

Note—Monterey was not a pueblo in the beginning, but a presidio. There were three forms of local government set up in California, the presidio, or military centers, the missions, which were never very far from the presidios, for the sake of protection, and the pueblo, or municipal settlements with regular colonists. These pueblos had a regular governing body and alcalde. The colonists all had town-lots and a suerte, or field for irrigation, beside the use of the public grazing pastures. These properties were not to be sold, nor could they be mortgaged. The settlers were subsidized by freedom from taxation for a number of years, and in Los Angeles each family received ten pesos a month. The only pueblos founded directly in early California were Los Angeles and San José (that is, from the very first, they had a municipal government. Monterey was a presidio, or fort, it did not have a municipal government until 1826.)

1770(?)

This is the probable date of the publication of Miguél Costanso's Diario historico de los viages de mar y tierra hecos al norte de la California, although it is not positive, as the edition was suppressed in Mexico for a number of years because it was thought the work gave too much information concerning California into the hands of the English. The work is of the utmost value, being the first book that relates exclusively to California, and contains a most complete account of the Portolá expedition to find the bay of Monterey.

1771

Mission of (2) San Carlos at Monterey is removed to the valley of Carmelo.

1771

Founding of (3) Mission of San Antonio de Padua, at Los Robles, July 14th.

1771

Founding of (4) Mission of San Gabriel, "The Queen of the Missions," in a valley of the Sierra Madre Mountains.

1772

Founding of (5) the Mission of San Louis Obispo de Tolosa, September 1st.

1774

Juan Bautista de Anza, commandante of the presidio of Tubac, in Arizona, marches, in company with Fray Garcés, across the Colorado desert to San Gabriel and then north to Monterey, trying to open a practical overland trail from the California missions to Mexico, through Arizona.

1775

Juan Manuel de Ayala, Lieutenant of the Royal Navy of Spain, and his ship San Carlos, are the first to enter the harbor, Saint Francis Bay, (Cermeño's and identical also with Drake's Bay). Ayala selects point for fort and for mission, the Dolores mission.

1776

Anza makes a second journey from Tubac with colonists intended for the presidio of San Francisco. Reaches San Francisco in company of Pedro Font and José Moraga, and surveys the coast about the bay. Positions for the presidio and missions are decided on.

1776

Fray Garcés makes his last great overland journey. Accompanies Anza as far as Yuma, and then leaving the party crosses the Mojave desert and reaches San Gabriel.

1776

James Cook makes the last of his four voyages under the English flag. It is this fourth voyage that is of especial interest to California. He sails by the way of the cape of Good Hope and discovers the Hawaiian Islands. Reaches California at the altitude of Cape Mendicino and skirting the coast to the north discovers Nootka Sound, thus laying the foundation for the Nootka controversy at a later date, and sails through the Behring Straits as far north as Icy Cape. Cook dies on the voyage, but on the return while at Canton, a discovery of great historic and commercial value is made to the effect that the supposed valueless furs, which had been traded for knives and trinkets with the Indians of the Nootka Sound vicinity, brought fabulous prices in China. This laid the foundation for the great fur trade of the future, and opened up so many and such intricate commercial and diplomatic controversies that Cook's voyage has come to be reckoned as most important in its historic bearing.

1776

Founding of the (6) Mission and Presidio of San Francisco de Asis, by two Franciscan monks, Palou and Gambon. The presidio was founded September 17th, but the mission, a league or so away from the presidio, was not founded until October 4th, on a small creek called Dolores. Hence the mission is commonly known as Dolores Mission. Fathers Palou and Gambon assume charge of the mission.

1776

Founding of (7) the Mission of San Juan Capistrano, November 1st.

1777

Founding of (8) the Mission of Santa Clara, January 12th.

1777

The pueblo of San José de Guadalupe, the first purely civil settlement in California, is founded by Gov. Felipe de Neve on the Rio de Guadalupe. The colonists consisted of fourteen heads of families, 66 persons. They were granted house lots and planting lots and free use of the public grazing fields, under charter of the pueblo system. The lands could not be sold nor mortgaged. The colonists were free from taxes for a number of years, and furnished a certain number of domestic animals and seeds. The government was under an alcalde or magistrate, and a council elected yearly.

1781

Founding on the Rio Porciuncula (Los Angeles River) of the pueblo of Los Angeles under direction of the governor, Felipe de Neve. The pueblo was called Pueblo de Nuestra Senora la Reina de Los Angeles, City of our Lady, the Queen of the Angeles. At the beginning there were eleven heads of families, forty-six persons all told. Los Angeles was the second of the early pueblos. From 1835 Los Angeles vies with Monterey for the honor of being the capital of the province.

1782

Founding of (9) the Mission of San Buenaventura, March 31st.

1784

August 28th, Father Junipero Serra dies at the age of seventy-one years at his own Mission at San Carlos, in his loved valley of Carmelo. For fifty-four years he had been a Franciscan priest, thirty-five of which had been spent in missionary labors, fifteen of which had been spent in California, during which nine missions were established and over five thousand eight hundred Indian neophytes converted from heathenism to Christianity.

1784

Father Francisco Palou, friend and biographer of Serra, becomes Father President of the missions until 1786, when he retires to the prominent position of father guardian of the College of San Fernando in Mexico. Here he writes his Vida del Junipera Serra, and edits his Notices de la Nueva California. The first becomes the standard for the life of Serra, and the latter is the first book written in what is now California.

1785

Jean François de Gallaup, Count de la Pérouse, under commission from the French government to explore the North Pacific coast of North America for the purpose of finding the Straits of Anian (for this ghost was still unlaid), visits California. He leaves a very interesting journal of his visit, full of shrewd observations on the affairs of the country, the mission system, treatment of the Indians, etc.

1786

Fray Fermin Francisco de Lasuen becomes father president of the missions.

1786

Founding of (10) the Mission of Santa Barbara, by Father Fermin Francisco de Lasuen. This is the first mission founded by Father Lasuen and is dedicated December 4th.

1787

Captain Robert Gray, an American discoverer, from Rhode Island, is appointed to command the sloop Washington, which is equipped by merchants of Boston for trade with the Indians on the Pacific Coast, and makes the voyage successfully.

1787

Francisco Palou publishes his famous and extensive history relating to upper California. This includes a symbolical portrait of the Venerable Padre Fray Junipero Serra, typifying his apostolic labors and recounting the stories of the foundations of the California missions. As his closest friend and biographer, Padre Palou, says of Father Serra that "his laborious and exemplary life is nothing but a beautiful field decked with every class of flowers of excellent virtues."

1787

Founding of (11) the Mission of La Purísima Concepcion, near the present town of Lompoc, December 8th.

1788-1789

John Meares, an Englishman, voyages to the northwest coast of North America for the purpose of fur trading. Complications arise between him and the Spanish authorities, which assume large proportions, almost embroiling the two countries in war. Meares's voyage has importance out of proportion to its geographic value, for it was on his discoveries that England, later, based her claims for the Oregon territory.

1790-1792

Captain Robert Gray, returning from his Pacific Coast voyage in another sloop, named the "Columbia," makes the noteworthy record of being the first to carry the United States flag around the earth. Upon a second voyage in this ship to the Pacific Coast, he discovers the Columbia River, which he names after his vessel.

1790 to 1795

George Vancouver is commissioned by the King of England to explore the northwest coast of America and makes a remarkable voyage of discovery to the north Pacific Ocean and round the world, in the Discovery, sloop of war, and armed tender, Chatham. He carefully examines and accurately surveys the northwestern coast, including the port San Francisco. A published work of this voyage, in 1798, is superior to any of its kind and constitutes the chiefest source of authority of that period.

1791

Founding of (12) the Mission of the Holy Cross at Santa Cruz, September 25th.

1791

Founding of (13) the Mission of Maria Santísima de la Soledad, that is, "Our Lady of Solitude," commonly called Soledad, October 9th.

1796

Francisco Palou, Spanish friar, who was the founder of the San Francisco mission in 1776 and the successor of Junipero Serra as president in 1783, passes out of the history of California. The exact date of his death is unknown.

1796

Arrival in Monterey of the Boston, the first American trading vessel to visit California. From this time begins a regular system of contraband trade between the Americans and the Californians, more or less connived at by the local officials. The Yankee traders exchanged manufactured goods for otter skins (which were exchanged again in China for teas, silks, etc.). The trade was of necessity contraband as the Mexican government would not, at this time, permit the Californians to trade with any one but the home country.

1797

Founding of (14) the Mission of San José de Guadalupe, in honor of Saint Joseph, patron saint of California, near San José.

1797

Founding of (15) the Mission of San Juan Bautista, in honor of Saint John the Baptist, June 24th.

1797

Founding of (16) the Mission of San Miguel Arcangel, in honor of Michael, the Archangel, July 25th.

1797

Founding of (17) the Mission of San Fernando Rey de España, September 8th.

1798

Founding of (18) the Mission of San Luis Rey de Francia, June 13th.

1803

Arrival of the Lelia Byrd, Capt. Shaler, in San Diego harbor. She is suspected of contraband trade and ordered to leave. Does not comply without having first made sure of a number of otter furs. Is fired upon by the fort, but escapes.

1803

President Thomas Jefferson concludes the greatest diplomatic achievement in the annals of the United States by the acquisition of the vast, unbounded region beyond the Mississippi known as Louisiana. Its contiguity to California made the later conquest and cession of the latter the more easy of accomplishment.

1803

James Burney, a captain in the Royal Navy of England, publishes his Chronological History of the Discoveries in the South Sea or Pacific

Ocean and writes: "In what manner this country came to be distinguished by the name California is left uncertain. It is not believed that the name was derived from the natives; as the missionaries who have since resided among the Californians, have not at any time heard of such being applied to any port, bay, or part of the country. Some have conjectured that on account of the heat of the weather, Cortés formed the name California, from the Latin words calida and fornax."

First expedition of General Zebulon Montgomery Pike, American soldier and explorer, to the headwaters of the Mississippi River.

1803

June 26th marks the death of the venerable friar, Padre Fermin Francisco de Lasuen at San Carlos, for thirty years a missionary in the province and for eighteen years president of the missions.

1804

Founding of (19) the Mission Santa Inés, in the mountains seventy miles distant from San Louis Obispo, September 17th.

1805

Lewis and Clark, with their company, after a journey of a year and a half through the wilderness, reach the coast November 15th, and look upon the blue waters of the Pacific Ocean.

1805

Previously and subsequently to this date, for a certain period of years, the name "The Californians" was popularly current—by which term was intended to include solely the Mexican residents in California.

1806

General Zebulon Montgomery Pike completes a great exploring tour of the middle west in which he crosses the plains to the site of Denver, and discovers "Pike's Peak," then turning southward to the head waters of the Rio Grande.

1806

Nikolai Petrovich Rezanoff, representative of the Czar of Russia, visits the Russian colony in Alaska, and seeing the immediate necessity of providing the colony with food nearer than that sent from China, decides to visit California to open negotiations with the government for the purchase of breadstuffs, of which California had a surplus; and also with the ultimate end in view of founding within the limits of California a Russian colony.

1810

William Alden Gale, a Boston trader, visits California as a clerk on the Albatross and becomes noted by his nickname, Cuatro Ojos, by reason of his spectacles; but his name was also translated into Tormenta, "a gale"; and he was sometimes called Cambalache, or a "barter." He was the pioneer in the hide trade with Boston.

Appears Alexander von Humboldt's Political essay on New Spain, which contains references to the early voyages to California.

1812

The Russian settlement is eventually founded at Bodega Bay, and called Fort Ross. It is more properly a trading post and ship-yard than a fort. A lively trade with California was kept up for the support of the colony at Sitka, and with Europe and Asia in the export of skins. But in the end the otter and seal become scarce and the fort was disposed of to John Augustus Sutter.

1813

The Spanish Cortés passes a decree looking toward the secularization of the missions. From the beginning the idea had been that the mission system was only a temporary expedient for the civilization of the natives, and was supposed to last but ten years. This time was extended as it was seen to be too short. But there began to grow a feeling of dissatisfaction with the system as it was felt the Indians were not trained in independence and in the knowledge of citizenship. The government decided that the missions should be secularized, that is the Indians were to receive their lands to use individually—the missions had only ostensibly been keepers of the lands for the rightful owners, the Indians. The religious work was to be turned over to parish priests, and the missionaries were to seek new fields. The Indians were to be gathered into pueblos to learn the duties of self government and self-support. This plan was not carried out for twenty years, though it came up again and again in the intervening years. This scheme of secularizing the California missions amounted in effect to government confiscation.

1813-1814

Appears the account of Langsdorff expedition of 1803-1807. The Russian, Resanoff, was one of this expedition.

1814

John Gilroy, a Scotchman, born as John Cameron, is the first foreigner to settle permanently in California. Having run away from home, he comes as a sailor on the ship Isaac Todd and is left sick and stranded at Monterey. He is baptized at San Carlos as Juan Antonio Maria Gilroy.

1816

Otto von Kotzebue, commanding a scientific expedition from Russia, visits California. In the party was Dr. Eschscholtz, for whom the California poppy was named, Eschscholtzia californica. The published account of this expedition forms a very valuable contribution to the scientific literature of the period and the place.

1816

Thomas W. Doak is the first American settler in California. He was a native of Boston and came to the Pacific coast on the Albatross. He was baptized at San Carlos as Felipe Santiago.

1817

Founding of (20) Mission of San Raphael, near San Francisco, December 18th.

1818

The first man to whom English was a native tongue reaches Los Angeles—Joseph Chapman from Massachusetts, a member of the crew of that Bouchard, who sailing under letters of marque, ravages the coast of California, in 1818. He marries Señorita Guadalupe Ortega, builds the first grist mill in southern California at San Gabriel, and lived for some thirty years as José, El Inglés.

1769-1821

Spanish regimé in California has now lasted under, successively, ten governors, namely:

Don Gaspar de Portolá,
Felipe de Barri,
Felipe de Neve,
Pedro Fages,
José Antonio Romeu,
José Joaquin de Arrillaga,
Diego de Borica,
José Joaquin de Arrillaga,
José Dario Arguello,

Pablo Vicente de Sola, last of the Spanish governors, held over until 1822.

1769-1821

Marks the Spanish era of California during which is built the historic El Camino Real—the King's Highway—which finally connected the twenty-one Franciscan missions, over a stretch of seven hundred miles of its length between San Diego and Sonoma, and which was traveled by the lonely Indian, Franciscan friar, the religious neophyte, the soldier and adventurer, and has become the subject of song and story for many a year.

1821

Spanish era ends, when Don Augustin de Iturbide, at the head of a victorious army, throws off the yoke of Spain and establishes the independence of Mexico, and, creating a separate empire, becomes himself Emperor Augustin I. California passes under jurisdiction of the Mexican Emperor, whose agents plan a seizure of the missions.

1821-1846

Mexican era continues for twenty-five years under the governors—

Pablo Vicente de Sola,

Luis Antonio Arguello,

José Maria de Eschendiá,

Manuel Victoria,

Pio Pico,

José Figueroa,

José Castro,

Nicholas Gutierrez,

Mariano Chico,

Juan Batista Alvarado,

Manuel Micheltoarena,

Pio Pico again, who was the last Mexican governor.

1823

San Vincente, the agent from the new government of Mexico to California, enters into a contract with an English trading company for the sale of all the hides and tallow of the province.

1823

Founding of (21) the last Mission, that of Saint Francis of Solano, near the present city of Sonoma.

1824

Indian uprising at Santa Ynez.

1826

Captain Jedediah S. Smith, under permit from the United States to hunt in the far west, and his party of hunters and trappers, are the first Americans to go overland across the continent to California.

1826-1827

Visit to San Francisco and Monterey of the English ship, Blossom, Capt. Frederick William Beechey. He publishes a full account of his voyage in which he speaks at length of the necessity of Spain's taking more active interest in the affairs of California if she wished to hold the country. "It is too important to be permitted to remain in its present neglected state," thus over-shadowing the intervention of some foreign power.

1827-1828

Visit of the Frenchman, Auguste Duhaut-Cilly. Of contemporary accounts of California, this of Duhaut-Cilly's is the most extensive.

1829

Abel Stearns, a native of Massachusetts, becomes a resident of California, acquires extensive holdings of land and other property rights from the Mexican government and is a notable character for his day.

Captain James P. Arthur visits California in the Brookline and makes the claim to have been the first to raise the United States flag in California. This was, of course, a crude representation of the emblem.

"Arthur and his little party were sent ashore at San Diego to cure hides. They had a barn-like structure of wood, provided by the ship's carpenter, which answered the purpose of storehouse, curing shop, and residence. The life was lonesome enough. Upon the wide expanse of the Pacific they occasionally discerned a distant ship. Sometimes a vessel sailed near the lower offing. It was thus that the idea of preparing and raising a flag, for the purpose of attracting attention, occurred to them. The flag was manufactured from some shirts and Captain Arthur writes, with the just accuracy of a historian, that Mr. Greene's calico shirt furnished the blue, while he furnished the red and white. It was completed and raised on a Sunday, on the occasion of the arrival of the schooner, Washington, Captain Thompson of the Sandwich Islands, but sailing under the American flag." So writes honest Captain Arthur: "These men raised our national ensign, not in bravado, nor for war and conquest, but as honest men to show that they were American citizens and wanted company."

Alfred Robinson, a native of Massachusetts, comes to California as clerk for the Boston trading company, Bryant, Sturges & Company. Mr. Robinson marries Ana Maria de la Guerra y Noriega, and becomes one of the early and respected American settlers. He publishes his Life in California in 1840, one of the best books of the period.

1831

David Douglas, the famous Scotch botanist, visits California in an earnest and adventurous search for botanical specimens. He examines California flora and ten years later the botanical results of his trip are published by Sir William Hooker.

1831

Insurrection against the Mexican governor, Manuel Victoria, headed by such prominent Californians as Echeandía, Pio Pico, Juan Bandini, and others, as the result of the spirit of the growing liberalism and democratic principles—the very principles which made the American occupation so possible later—against the arbitrary methods and militarism of the governor, as shown principally in his refusal to convene the disputación. For the first time in the history of California, blood is shed between men of Spanish extraction in a bout on the outskirts of Los Angeles, in which Captain Romualdo Pacheco and Avila were killed, and the Governor himself severely wounded. Pablo de Fortilla, Commandante at San Diego, participates.

Further secularization of the missions by Mexican authority is undertaken as well as confiscation of their property. The action really went into effect then although it was not fully consummated until 1845.

Under rules known as Prevenções de Emancipacion the missions are secularized. All Indians, Christians for twelve years, all married men and widowers with families, and all such as are competent to make a livelihood, are gathered together in pueblos and initiated in the laws of self-government. To each family is granted house-lots, planting lots and pasture lands, and live stock. The mission churches are turned over to the parish clergy and the other properties are sold.

1834

José Maria Padres, a native of Pueblo, having become a military leader under the Mexicans with the commission of Lieutenant-Colonel, associating with José Maria Hajar, devises the Hajar and Padre's colonization scheme and comes to California as a director of a colony of 250 persons.

1835

Richard Henry Dana, Jr., voyages to San Francisco Bay in the trading brig Pilgrim, afterwards transferred to the Aleri, and later recounts his experiences and describes California in his book Two Years before the Mast.

1835

San Diego becomes a municipality, but remains such only three years, as the population decreases to such an extent that in 1838 there were not enough people to entitle it to a council. De Morfras reckons the population to be between one hundred and one hundred and fifty. From 1838 to the Mexican War, San Diego is governed as part of the sub-prefecture of Los Angeles.

1835

Near the best anchorage and three miles northeast of the Mission, a small trading village, Yerba Buena, is founded on San Francisco Bay, and it is to this settlement rather than to the presidio of San Francisco or the mission of Dolores that must be given the origin of the present city of San Francisco.

1836

A new revolution is started in California against existing authority. This was decidedly the outcome of the same growing spirit of democracy and liberalism as shown under the Victoria revolt. It is a revolt by the younger California, the spirit of liberalism and democracy, under Juan Bautista Alvarado, a young clerk of the customs, against the spirit of centralization and despotism of the Mexican government as evinced in the new constitution, in which all departments of the government, legislative, executive, and judicial were practically in the hands of the central executive in Mexico. California was reduced to a department of that government and could not be considered as exercising the functions of a state. However, this revolt is successful and California is created a separate and independent government with Alvarado as governor.

One of the central figures in the Revolution of 1836, is Isaac Graham, who had been a Tennessee hunter, and who organizes what became known as the Kentucky riflemen; this adventurous character is described as wild, reckless, a crack shot, and a hater of Mexicans. Operating from his distillery at San Juan, he is aided in his organizing of the riflemen by William R. Garner and John Coppinger, both Englishmen, and Louis Pombert, a Frenchman, of some prominence in early California affairs, is made sergeant, that is, next in command to Graham.

1839

John Augustus Sutter, a Swiss, comes to California with the idea of forming a colony of his countrymen, a sort of Swiss Utopia. He becomes a naturalized Mexican citizen and receives a grant of eleven square leagues of land along the Sacramento River. He buys Fort Ross from the Russians.

1839-1840

Thomas Jefferson Farnham, a native of Maine, travels overland to Oregon; makes a voyage on the Pacific to the Hawaiian Islands and returns to California and back to the United States through Mexico. He publishes in 1846 an account of his, Adventures in California and Scenes on the Pacific Coast.

1840

Monterey becomes the capital of California, so designated by the Mexican junta under the presidency of Alvarado.

1840

Arrival of Eugène Dufloy de Mofras, a Frenchman, commissioned by his government to make a scientific exploration and report on Oregon and the Californias. M. de Mofras was assisted in every way by both the secular and religious authorities of California, and he was given access to all the documentary material of the province, so it was possible for him to make a more complete report on the affairs of the country than could any of the other narrators. From the mass of material he had the literary judgment to arrange and select a work of marked ability, discrimination and historic value.

Threatened uprising of the foreign element known as the Graham Trouble. Forty-six suspects, English and Americans, are captured and exiled to Mexico. About twenty of them are purged of conspiracy and allowed to return to California and granted compensation.

The revolution headed by the Carrillos and supported by a small party of Americans under the Tennessean named Graham is of short duration and is soon put down. General José Castro and Mariana Vallejo, names to become famous in California history, come into prominence.

1840-1841

Sir James Douglas, a Scotchman, and representative of the Hudson's Bay Company of London, visits California and records the events of his visit in a diary or journal, which later receives the title of Douglas' Voyage from the Columbia to California. With the Salinas and Santa Clara valleys the English visitor was so delighted that he was moved to pronounce California "a country in many respects unrivalled by any other part of the globe."

1841

Captain John Augustus Sutter builds a fort, which he calls "New Helvetia," which became headquarters for friendly Indians, white trappers and early travelers. "Sutter's Fort," as it was popularly called, was in the natural line of travel both from the Oregon country and from the east, and Sutter being an exceedingly hospitable person, his place became the rendezvous and the Mecca for all the overland travelers. Many of them remained there under Sutter's employ and many went to other places.

1841

First overland emigrant train, under John Bidwell, called Bartleson-Bidwell Company, crosses the Great Plains and reaches California.

1842

Commodore Thomas ap Catesby Jones, American naval officer, cruising in western waters, lands and captures the town of Monterey, under the erroneous impression that war had been declared against Mexico. He holds possession for just one day.

1843

Stephen Smith, a native of Baltimore, arrives in California with the first steam engine ever seen upon the coast; also, he brings with him three pianos, which are the first ever heard in California. He receives commission from the Mexican authorities and in 1844 erects both a saw-mill and a grist-mill.

1843-1844

General John Charles Frémont's first expedition to the west.

1843-1844

General Frémont's second overland trip to the west for the purpose of surveying a route to the Pacific, and his first to California. He comes by the way of Carson's river and Johnson's Pass.

1845

Annexation of Texas, March 1st.

1845

Frémont's second expedition to California. Suspicion is aroused by the California government and he is ordered to leave the department. This Frémont refuses to do and fortifies himself on Gavlin's Peak, and raises the American flag. But he quits his defences and departs for Oregon.

1846

Samuel Brannan, born in Maine, a Mormon elder and chief of a colony sent from New York on the Brooklyn, comes to California to take charge of a Mormon colonization scheme.

1846

Patrick Breen, an Irishman, who first came to America in 1826, comes to California overland from Iowa with the Donner party. Himself, his wife, Margaret, and seven children survive the perils of that terrible journey. Breen's original Diary of the Donner Party is an authority upon the incidents of that journey.

1846

Lieut. Archibald Gillespie arrives with dispatches for Frémont at the receipt of which Frémont returns to California. (May 8th.)

1846

One hundred and seventy horses for General Castro, which rumor had, were to be used for the purpose of driving the Americans out of California, are seized by Frémont. (June 5th.)

1846

Bear Flag Revolution. The flag of "The Republic of California," with its lone star and painted image of a grizzly bear, is first raised at Sonoma. Captain Ezekiel Merritt, accompanied by William B. Ide and a small band of Americans, captures the Mexican General Mariano Guadalupe Vallejo and his aides. The new republic lasts twenty-six days.

The famous scout, Kit Carson, appears with General Frémont, and the Haros and Berreyesa are killed.

There are so many and such contradictory stories concerning the murder of the Haro brothers that the real facts are not definitely known. At the very best, the responsibility of the death of the men, justly or unjustly, must rest with Frémont and not with Carson. This has been one of the scandals of the Frémont Expedition. The most violent supporters of Frémont do not deny that the men were killed without knowing anything of their guilt or innocence. It was reported that they were killed in revenge for the murder of two Americans, Cowie and Fowler.

There was also a story circulated that the men had deliberately permitted themselves to be captured with false orders in their boots purporting to announce an attack on Sonoma by the Californians, for the purpose of deflecting the American troops to the protection of Sonoma, and thus permit the closely pressed Californians to escape.

War declared between Mexico and the United States, May 3rd. The American flag raised at Monterey, July 7th, by Commodore John Drake Sloat.

1846

Josefa Bandini de Carrillo, the wife of Don Pedro Carrillo, who had been appointed provisional governor of California in 1837, manufactures with her own hands the first United States flag in full and proper form ever unfurled to the breezes of sunny California; this is on the occasion of the arrival in San Diego of Commodore Stockton of the United States Navy and General Kearney of the United States Army. Commodore Stockton raises the silk flag to the masthead of the first American war ship ever to sail the Pacific Ocean.

1846

Commodore Robert F. Stockton arrives at the Port of Monterey and Commodore Sloat appoints Stockton Commander-in-Chief of the American forces, and the latter undertakes the conquest of California against the Mexican General José Castro.

1846

Commodore Robert F. Stockton takes possession of San Diego for the United States and establishes a fort there which is still known as Fort Stockton.

1846

Los Angeles is easily captured. Stockton and Frémont enter the city August 13th without opposition; Píco and Castro have fled to Mexico; and Lieutenant Archibald H. Gillespie is placed in command of the south with Los Angeles as headquarters and with orders to maintain martial law. Trouble arises through, possibly, a too strict interpretation of his orders, and Gillespie finds himself surrounded. He capitulates and is allowed to retreat with the honors of war.

The Californians who identify themselves with this revolt are Captain José Maria Flores, José Antonio Carrillo, Andrés Píco, and Serbulo Varela.

A party of Americans under B. D. Wilson while hunting for Castro are met by a company of Californians at the Chino Ranch near Los Angeles, and a skirmish ensues in which three Americans are wounded and one Californian is killed.

1846

Arrival of General Stephen W. Kearney, who has just completed the conquest of New Mexico. He and Gillespie meet the Californians under Andrés Pico at San Pasquale, December 6th, and a bloody battle ensues with serious loss to the Americans; and Kearney was only rescued from his perilous position by a detachment of Stockton's men. It is the only battle of any importance in the history of California.

1846-1847

The Donner party, consisting of eighty-four persons, in an overland trip from Independence, Missouri, are caught in the snows of the high Sierras, and through starvation and exposure, over forty of them perish before relief arrives.

1847

Yerba Buena exchanges its name for that of the Mission and the Bay of San Francisco.

1847

Monterey becomes the military capital of California, under the occupation by United States authority.

1847

Los Angeles is recaptured January 10th and the famous treaty is signed between Colonel John C. Frémont, as Commander of the American forces, and Andrés Pico, Commandante of the California forces, at a point near Cahuenga Pass, within the present limits of Hollywood. With this capitulation all of California comes under the United States rule.

1848

Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, February 2nd, terminates the Mexican War, by the terms of which California is ceded to the United States; its affairs are committed to the charge of Colonel Richard B. Mason. He became the military governor succeeding Kearney. By the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, Texas, the western part of Colorado and New Mexico, all of the present states of Arizona, Nevada, Utah and California, an extensive and valuable portion of the Great West, were ceded to the United States.

1848

James Wilson Marshall, a native of New Jersey, discovers gold at Sutter's Mill, January 24th, and the rush of gold-seekers to California commences. The exact day of the month that gold was discovered has never been settled, Marshall himself says, "on or about the nineteenth." But he also says he is not sure of the date. However, a man named Bigler, who kept a diary, has the date the twenty-fourth, and as he was on the spot at the time, most likely is correct.

1849

In February, is witnessed the arrival in San Francisco Bay of the steamship California from New York with the first party of gold seekers from the Atlantic States. In March, the Oregon arrives, and in June there are two hundred square-rigged vessels lying in the Bay.

1849

During this year the numerous and mighty caravans of horses, wagons, cattle, men, women and children make their devious and dangerous way across the overland trail. This is the coming of the "Argonauts," celebrated in Californian history as the "Forty-Niners."

1849

This year marks two important developments: (a) The growth of population during this period. In 1845, the estimated census was 18,000, including Indians, while in 1850 it was estimated at 150,000. (b) The struggle for order, for this was not a period of complete recklessness. There were many reckless people, many criminals, and much to try the temper of the most conservative, but still there arose and grew a steady feeling for law and order that had its final outcome in the convention and constitution.

1849

A constitutional convention is organized at Monterey, September 1st. The Californians, in framing a State Constitution, which is signed October 13th, exclude slavery from the soil by a unanimous vote. Under it Peter H. Burnett is elected Governor, and the new Legislature chooses John C. Frémont and William M. Gwin as United States senators. San José is made the capital of the State. The great seal of the State is designed by Major Robert Selden Garnett, is presented to convention by Caleb Lyon, and is engraved by Albrecht Kuner in changed form. Hittell, an eminent authority, says: "The constitution, notwithstanding its haste, was one of the best, if not the best, of the thirty-one state constitutions in effect at the time. Though nearly every portion was copied from some other instrument, there was a rare choice and combination." By the terms of the constitution, slavery was unanimously voted down; the boundary was defined; provisions were made for the establishment of public schools; and the question of taxation was settled.

1849

The necessity of an interior city being felt, and the site of Sutter's Fort being inadequate, a new town-site was laid out below the fort. Town lots were sold and Sacramento had its beginning. In January, 1849, the first frame house was built.

1850

California admitted to the Union September 9th. California is at last admitted after months of waiting and dilatory action on the part of Congress. She comes in a free and sovereign state with her own constitution, governor and legislature, the only state in the Union with this distinction.

1849-1851

Occur at short intervals, the five big fires, in which the city of San Francisco is almost completely destroyed, property to the value of twenty-five million dollars being burned up in the conflagrations.

1851

First Vigilance Committee. As protection against the outlawry and crime of the city, the citizens of San Francisco organize themselves into a vigilance committee, with regular constitution binding them "to perform every lawful act for the maintenance of law and order, and to sustain the law when properly administered; but not to be deterred in the punishment of any crime by any quibble of the law, by the insecurity of the prisons, or the corruption or laxity of those in authority. An occasion soon occurred for their action. A man accused of theft was caught with the stolen goods, tried, sentenced to be shot, and the sentence duly carried out.

1851

Capital of State removed to Vallejo.

1852

Appears Francisco Saverio Clavijero's Historia de la Antigua ó Baja California.

1852-1854

Sacramento swept by two disastrous fires partially destroying the town.

1853

Capital of State located at Benecia.

1854

Capital of State finally removed to Sacramento.

1856

Second Vigilance Committee. On May 15th, the Vigilance Committee is again organized for the purpose of punishing one James Casey, who had murdered James King of William, editor of the Evening Bulletin, and the champion of the cause of law and order. As before, the Vigilance Committee duly tried the prisoner and sentenced him to death along with another murderer named Cora.

1856

The first railroad in California is opened for business with Sacramento and Folsom as its terminals.

1859

Convention held in San Francisco for a Pacific railroad, subsequently constructed over the Sierra Nevada mountains.

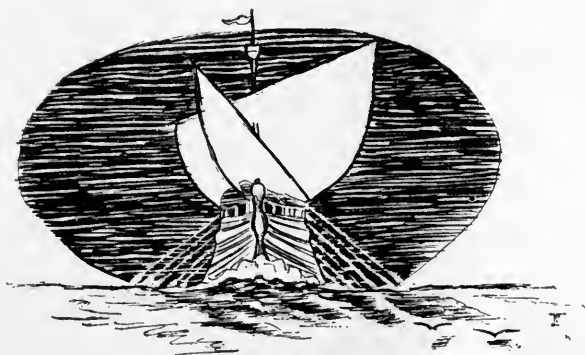

1859

September 13th, David Colbreth Broderick, United States Senator from California, engages in a duel with David S. Terry, in which Broderick is killed. The challenge grows out of the anti-slavery agitation, in which Senator Broderick is an uncompromising opponent of slavery and delivers severe strictures on the subject in the California campaign of this year. This is an important event as it was the culmination of an important period.

1860

Application of name "California" in 1510, considered by the noted American writer, Edward Everett Hale, (PROCEEDINGS AMERICAN ANTIQUARIAN SOCIETY, April 30th, 1862, p. 45; ATLANTIC MONTHLY, vol XIII, p. 265).

As supplementary to the foregoing "California Chronology," the following letter written by a relative of one of our members, Mr. Abram Ehle Pomeroy, in the year 1851, is given as illustrative of the conditions in California at that time.

CALIFORNIA IN 1851

Lassons Ranch, California,

March 12, 1851.

Dear Brother:

I hardly know in what way to begin to apologize for my neglect in not having written you for so long a time. In fact I have no good reasons unless I claim that I have not received any answer to the one (& only one) that I wrote you near a year since, but whether you wrote me or not I have no good reasons for not troubling you occasionally & I hope & trust that you will let me occasionally hear from you. I am now stopping on Lassons Ranch, it is situated on the most northerly route or road from the States on the Sacramento River about 100 miles above Sacramento City and about 250 miles from San Francisco. I am this season engaged in farming and gardening. Shall cultivate probably from 80 to 100 acres, the soil is excellent & is easily cultivated, in fact it is almost impossible to raise vegetables especially without irrigation. Frank, Sheldon & myself last season were engaged jointly in mineing on Feather River, principally in damming and draining the beds of the River & with us as it was with all others who were operating upon that Stream it proved an entire failure, we not only lost our whole summers work but all that we had previously made. Since which time Frank has been stopping in Sacramento City, keeping a Restaurant and doing tolerably well. Sheldon is on a Steam Boat, gets good wages & lays up his money & as for myself after leaving Feather River I came down to Sacramento City with the intention of going into business, but after remaining there a short time the Cholera broke out and from its severity, I thought it most prudent to leave and again I went to mineing at which I continued until the middle of December, but for the want of water, I was compelled to leave the location we had selected, as we have had no rains this winter to raise the water in the ravines. We had flung up something like 3000 buckets of earth, which yet remains to wash when the rains do come if ever, as we have had no rains since the first week in January & then but very little. An old acquaintance and friend of mine had bought this Ranch, & persuaded me to come up & cultivate it. It contains 36 square miles of sand bars, 12 miles on the Sacramento River & extends back 3 miles, a large majority of it is excellent sand and it has the reputation of being one of the best Ranches in California. They have discovered a new pass in the Sierra Nevada Mountains, in fact, a regular sink or rent in the mountains, being an excellent road without a single eminence in passing the mountains, it has also another advantage, about 30 miles of Desert and good water on the Desert. After passing the Sierra Nevada Range you enter what is termed the Feather River Meadows, a valley on the North Fork of the Feather River covered with the most luxuriant growth of clover and other grasses, in fact, these valleys are the best pastures I ever saw in any country they follow this valley to within a short distance of the Sacramento Valley, it is believed this route is far preferable to any of the others heretofore travelled, & if the Emigration should take it it will make a ready sale for all of our effects, as we are right at the termination of the road & of course the greater the demand the better the prices. Anyhow, I am and shall be here this Season, & hope I may meet with better success than I did the last. I probably shall not do any worse. I can write you no news about California, it is an old story, and as the papers in the States give you all that is new or interesting, you of course are better posted in California news than I am. I will say this much for California, that the climate I do consider delightful, but it never can be an agricultural country or not so to any extent. Vegetation where the soil is moist grows beyond anything I ever saw, but the amount of such sand is limited & stock & Gold Digging will be the principal production. Gold I think will be found here for ages but not in the quantities it has heretofore. Although for years it will pay a miner reasonable wages when the expenses of living and operating are reduced to a reasonable standard.

Remember me to your wife & ch—I was going to say children but put it Charley. Also to all our folks, Gilbert &c, Uncle Shull &c, &c. Do write me soon and direct to this Ranch as we are to have a Post Office here after the first of April & if I was a Whig I might be P. M. I suppose, which would be a very lucrative office here as probably the office will not take in fifty dollars a year. I am in receipt of letters from home monthly. I received one a few days ago from my wife. My family were at the time she wrote (Dec.) in good health, but wanted me home, but I must try California a little longer, with the hope that I may yet get paid for coming.

From

Your Aff't Brother,

Mr. R. H. Pomeroy.

The Virginia Charter

The Virginia Charter and the Settlement of Jamestown, Virginia

Mr. Willard Atherton Nichols, one of the honored members of this Society, has recently prepared a monograph upon the Virginia Charter and the Settlement of Jamestown, Virginia, which emphasizes a very important and interesting fact in connection with early California history. The suggestion that a large portion of the present State of California was in fact included within the very liberal limitations of the Virginia Charter, and that, inferentially, it had the effect of bringing the territory of California under the possible control and possessory right of Virginia, though never actually established or exercised, is so very vital and instructive that the Publication Committee has thought it the due of Mr. Nichols to reprint his contribution to California history in this publication. The article is so well written and so important that it will be widely read and discussed and, therefore, will certainly enhance the value of this book. As a supplementary article to "California Chronology" appearing in the preceding pages, it will also bear a close relation of both interest and instruction.

EDITOR.

Much has been written upon these subjects and the archives relating to them are by no means scanty.

In the main, the histories of these important events cannot be fairly criticized, although some writers have resorted to special pleading to prove a claim of the leadership for these incidents in the remarkable development in religious and civil liberty, as well as in the social and material prosperity, of this country.

The charter, or charters, for there were two of them, are interesting documents and are well worth studying, but their study is not the purpose of this paper. The writer only desires, in the main, to call attention to their territorial scope, and to the realization of their aim in that direction.

James I followed Elizabeth in her readiness to grant land that did not belong to the English crown, especially if it was particularly valued by the Pope of Rome, but it is true that both of these monarchs provided in their grants that no claims should be made upon territory already in the possession of any Christian prince.

The limit inland from the Atlantic coast line in the first charter, dated April 10, 1606, was 100 English miles; but in the second charter, dated May 23, 1609, the seventh year of James's reign, the inland limit was from sea to sea, from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The writer has not found any definite reason given for this remarkable change in the western boundary. Some writers consider that it was made under a misapprehension as to the great extent of territory it covered. They reason that the width of the continent was not known nor even conceived at that time, but that the idea was that it was not much farther from sea to sea at that point than it is in Mexico and Central America, regions comparatively well known at that period through the Spanish explorations from ocean to ocean. It is undoubtedly true that explorers even in 1609, had not given up the hope of discovering a water passage from the Atlantic to the Pacific along the north Atlantic coast, and many explorations of tidal rivers were made, particularly on the Atlantic side, with this in view. In 1607, the Chickahominy was explored for that purpose, and so was the Hudson River in 1609 by Hudson.

That this change was made for the purpose of including much territory to the west which common report had marked as abounding in gold and precious stones—the land of “The City of Gold,” etc.—seems credible; much more so than that King James, the pedant and patron of learning, had no idea of the vast extent of the continent to the westward. This original limit of 100 miles must have been very unsatisfactory, as eager explorers under the first charter had conclusively settled that there was no “El Dorado” within that limit at least.

The early rumors of the wonderful riches of Cibola sent to the Spanish court, and the journey of Coronado undertaken to discover it, with his reports to the Spanish King of its unsatisfying results and of the visit of his assistant, Friar Marcos to Quivira, farther to the north on the same comparatively fruitless search, must have been well known to the court of James.

Their latitude, that of Cibola a little north of 34 degrees North and of Quivira about 40 degrees North latitude were also reported and were of record.

Then again, a map of North and South America had been published in Belgium by Wytfliet in 1597, showing the Pacific coast on the 34th degree of North latitude to be about 83 degrees west of the Atlantic coast on the same latitude, or a width of continent of at least 4400 miles. We now know that this distance is from about 120 degrees west of Greenwich to about 76 degrees and 30 minutes west, equivalent to about 2300 miles. Wytfliet's map gives the width along the 45th degree of North latitude as about 4800 miles, while now it is known to be about 3000 miles. The recorded opinion of some scientific men of the time shows a conception of the width of the continent to have been greater rather than less than the reality.

It therefore seems to the writer that King James knew full well the wonderful area he was granting, and that he, with many others, including Coronado and the Spanish explorers, considered the mineral riches of the country by no means to be despised, although not up to the fabled standard, as far as explored.

Here we find the motive of the extension of the charter limit—the common one in early exploration—the lure of gold.

In this connection, we can here call attention to the characteristic tenacity of purpose in the Anglo-Saxon race. Three hundred years ago claim was laid to this strip of territory, extending from 34 degrees North latitude to 45 degrees North latitude and from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Spain and France in time entrenched themselves strongly within these limits in the west, but American enterprise and capacity for pioneer work of the enduring kind, gradually brought about the successful and undisputed ownership by people of English descent of all the territory claimed by King James the First of England. Its southern limit takes in Cibola the famed, and Quivira the other goal of the gold seekers is certainly well within its northern boundary, although its exact location is a matter of conjecture.

That it took a long extended and patient waiting and much expenditure of lives and money to realize this claim as named in the early charters, is well known. The results of the early French-Indian Wars made it possible for England in 1783 to cede to the United States of America, its Anglo-Saxon offshoot, this territory from the Atlantic to the Mississippi.

The Louisiana Purchase of 1803 added almost as much. The annexation of Texas caused the Mexican War which resulted in the United States securing by treaty of peace in 1848, the remainder to the Pacific ocean, this last addition completing the chain, and only then taking in by far the greater part of Arizona and New Mexico, the area covering the land of golden promise to Coronado and of the avaricious hope of King James.

In 1848, the Anglo-Saxon claim of 1609 had been made good. It is of local interest to know that we of Redlands and Los Angeles are tied by land boundaries to the Jamestown Colony founded in 1607, for 34 degrees North latitude, the southerly limit of the grant of 1609, passes about three miles south of Redlands, through the city of Riverside, and into the Pacific ocean at about Santa Monica. Its northerly limit, as finally settled—38 degrees North latitude, passes into the Pacific ocean just north of San Francisco, so our coast line, from Santa Monica to the Golden Gate, was the westerly limit of the Jamestown Colonial possessions of record.

King James, no less than the thrifty Elizabeth, kept the mercantile side of his colonial enterprises well in mind, although perhaps not so clearly expressed in the preambles to his charters, as that part in the charters in question stating that their chief motive was "the advancement of the Divine glory by bringing the Indians and savages resident in those parts to human civility and a settled and a quiet government." Poor Indians, poor savages, one can only exclaim upon reading the history of the oppression and practical extermination that went with the bringing of them to "human civility" in the parts contained within the limits of the Jamestown grants, and indeed within the limits of the entire grant extending from 34 to 45 degrees North latitude.

By this grant or charter, authority was given to search for mines, paying the King one-fifth of all gold and silver and one-fifteenth of all copper; to coin money; to invite and carry over adventurers; to repel intruders; to levy duties for their own use during 21 years; and to export goods from England free of all imposts for 7 years. Lands in the Colony were to be held of the King, and colonists and their children were to have all the rights of the native born Englishmen.

A few months after the granting of the charter, James issued instructions for the government of Virginia, in which he appointed a Council and established the Church of England as the authorized form of worship.

One of the first undertakings of the settlers, and that within eight days of their arrival, was an expedition to the Falls of the James River (Richmond), to search for a gold mine reported to be there. At one time in 1608, some glittering bits of yellow mica found in a small stream near Jamestown, were mistaken for gold dust and a veritable gold rush set in, everything being neglected for the time being for it; and a cargo of the worthless stuff was shipped to the Company in England.

In these days of magazine filling, there has been much written to controvert well established opinions as to the relative importance of certain historical facts; upon the lack of justification of certain New England methods of protesting against taxation without representation; upon the unreasonableness of the War of the Revolution—the Loyalists being the true patriots; upon the selfish and ignoble motives governing Washington and those who framed our Constitution, etc., etc.; and claiming as a logical deduction, from their criticisms, that it would have been much better for the country if the rebels of 1775 had been overpowered and hung. It is not worth our time to refute such foolish theories. But when it comes to an argument to belittle the importance to the New World, of the settlement at Plymouth, by an attempt to prove that our prosperity and remarkable advancement in free government come from Jamestown rather than from Plymouth and New England, because of the fact that the settlement of Jamestown preceded Plymouth by 13 years, it does seem germane to this paper to point out some differences between Jamestown and Plymouth, and to claim for the latter the credit, for "our characteristic institutions," of the vast territory embraced by King James's grants of 1606 and 1609.

Dean Hodges is reported to have said in a paper upon the subject a few months ago in Boston, "It is commonly taken for granted among intelligent people that our characteristic institutions and especially our liberties, civil and religious, began at Plymouth. As a matter of historical fact, they began a dozen years before at Jamestown"; Alexander Brown says of the founding of Jamestown, "If the enterprise had then resulted in failure, the United States would not now be in existence."

It is true that Jamestown was settled first; it did hold the first regular church services, and it did have the first representative assembly for political affairs, all under royal permission and control. But all that did not mean worship of God according to the dictates of one's conscience, nor did it mean freedom in self government. These came from Plymouth and New England, from their dissenting forms of worship and from the town meetings. From Jamestown would have come established church and state, concentration of land holdings and a privileged class. From Plymouth have come freedom of public worship, small land holdings and a representative democratic government.

It may be argued that early congregationalism in New England was as far from free worship as was the rule of the established Church of England. This was probably true to a great degree in the beginning, for the early immigrants in New England came for that very freedom—none others need have come. The Pilgrims sought this freedom first in Holland, but on account of their discontent at being in a foreign land, and of having their children under foreign influences, however kind and genial, in short this land not being English, they decided to remove to the New World, already well known to them by the repeated attempts of English people to establish colonies there, where in unoccupied land they could form conditions to suit themselves. The Pilgrims took with them to Plymouth, but more particularly did those of the Massachusetts Bay Colony who followed them, their share of the religious intolerance of the age. Jamestown was by no means free from it.

The first article in the regulations for colonies settling under these Jamestown grants was that religious service shall "be that now preferred and established within our realms of England." In 1642, three congregational ministers came from Boston to Virginia to disseminate their doctrines. Their stay was but short, for by enactment of the Assembly, all ministers other than those of the Church of England, were compelled to leave the Colony.

In 1648, the dissenters among the colonists in Virginia had increased to 118 in number, and they were punished for their dissent by imprisonment and banishment, and all opposition to the established church was decisively quelled.

The character of the colonists coming to Jamestown and then to Virginia, and to Plymouth and later to New England, were entirely different. To Jamestown came at first only men, some of them leaders of the noble class, so-called, but by far the greater part of them adventurers in the modern sense of the word, many of a roving disposition gained by participating as soldiers in the foreign wars then just closed, and who were from this disposition a cause of worry and trouble to the home government;; others who had not been unacquainted, as evil doers, with the interior of English prisons, who also left their country for the country's good; and all governed, naturally, by a desire to live as easily as possible.

To Plymouth came men with their families, some indeed of armigerous descent, but the greater part of them merchants, artisans and farmers, all earnest sturdy men who sought not ease nor personal comfort, but men eager for work and for chances for overcoming obstacles. They welcomed the severity of the climate and the untractableness of the soil. They were free from the trammels of the Established Church; what else mattered to them? At the end of their first year, to give thanks to God for the results, scanty indeed, of their attempts at self-support, the first Thanksgiving Day service was held, and, as Fiske says, "then began New England."

The mild climate of Jamestown and the large area of productive and easily worked soil in its vicinity, made life and work easier and more attractive to such people as came over to them.

In fact although it is claimed by some that this settlement saved America to the English by its permanency, by its continued existence for thirteen years before the Pilgrims came, it possibly would not have survived had not its leaders, undoubtedly from the example of the Plymouth Colony, seen before it was too late, the necessity of encouraging the making of homes by marrying its men and by bringing in families; and they took action along these lines.

The Jamestown Colony was primarily a trade and business adventure. The settlement of Plymouth was essentially an ethical movement. The Pilgrims did have to connect themselves in a business way with a commercial Company in England to obtain the means of emigrating to America. They did have to agree to repay these advances, and next to self-support which was of the most frugal kind, their efforts were steadily directed to pay back the loans, which was speedily done, first by notes given by the leaders to expedite the payment of this debt, which were afterwards taken up by the settlers. Within a few years, by 1633, in fact, they were as independent in estate as they were in person. Notwithstanding the salubrity of the climate and the productiveness of the soil, the advances of the Company in London which financed the Jamestown settlement, were never repaid in full and this Company, after several years, wound up its affairs with a substantial loss.

Tobacco was the first paying crop of the Jamestown Colony, and upon this crop the Colony prospered greatly until over-production brought financial disaster. At the first meeting of the Assembly, or House of Burgesses, held in the chancel of the church in Jamestown on July 30, 1619, tobacco was authorized as currency, at three shillings for the best per pound, and at eighteen pence for the second quality. The clergy was paid by a levy of tobacco, and in the autumn of 1621, when the practice began, under the auspices of the government, of shipping young women of respectability and above reproach, for wives for the Colonists, above referred to, the latter were obliged by law to pay 120 pounds of tobacco as the cost of transportation of their government supplied wives, subsequently increased to 150 pounds.

The Pilgrims and Puritans bartered with food-stuffs, so far as the writer has learned.

About the last of August, 1619, a Dutch man-of-war brought in and sold to the Jamestown settlers, twenty negroes, thus introducing slavery into this country. With this addition to the laboring force, of slaves, largely increased in numbers annually by importation and by birth, the plantation system of living became general, and the close communion of towns, as in New England, became impossible. This led the Virginia Colony away from democracy to a government by a few large proprietors. Slavery never got a firm foothold in New England, and the small headway it had made was effectually stamped out by the last of the seventeenth century through the efforts of the Quakers of Rhode Island, and of the other New England Colonies.

It is possible that the large use and ownership of slaves made life a little less material to the Southern planter in time, and that the close hard struggle for existence of the Northern citizen, gave also in time, to the latter, a commercial money-making reputation, that they would not have developed under easier conditions of life, but this struggle also made more hardy, sturdy men than the other system, men who soon felt confined by the limits of New England, and who then swarmed to the West to complete the winning of the territory so grandly given to America by King James.

Before the war Southerners, as a rule, kept at home, and rarely took any part in the upbuilding of the West, or of the East for that matter, except so far as their influence was felt in legislative halls at home or at the seat of the general government. From the very beginning of our Colonial history, northern men with their families settled in considerable numbers in the southern colonies and states, as well as in much larger and controlling numbers in the West.

Today all this is changed. Slavery has gone and with it the exclusive plantation life. Enterprising southern men are found as residents in all the large towns and centers of activity in the land, and participating most effectively in all the interests, civil, business and religious, of the community. The descendants of Jamestown and of Plymouth are now working as one people in all sections of our great country, and along the same lines, to advance civilization.

I will close with an extract from a paper by Rev. Morton Dexter of Boston, comparing Plymouth with Jamestown.

"Suppose that William Brewster and Captain John Smith * * * could appear among us this afternoon and address us * * *. Suppose them to be well informed concerning the history of our country and the wonderful fruition of the little seeds which they helped to plant * * *. And if Brewster should turn to Smith and say, "Which colony, Captain, yours or mine, has had the larger influence in promoting this fortunate conditions of things?" Smith was so intelligent and fair-minded a man that I believe he would reply, "Well, Elder, Jamestown must not be belittled. It has done much and has done it will. But on the whole I will admit that Plymouth has done the most and the best."

REPRESENTED IN THE MEMBERSHIP
of the
SOCIETY, SONS OF THE REVOLUTION
in the
STATE OF CALIFORNIA

Note—The omission of names, dates and places from this compilation does not necessarily mean that they are not known, but simply that they are not contained in the written applications on file with this Society.

The references given herein are those given in the applications, with some few additions, and do not purport to be all possible references. Some references include both genealogy and service.

Services rendered before or after the Revolutionary period (April 19th, 1775, to April 19th, 1783,) and titles acquired before or after such period are omitted from this compilation, as beyond its scope.

The Society will be glad to have additional information, names, dates, places, services, etc., furnished it, so that any future issue or enlargement of this work may be more complete. It will also be glad to be advised of any errors or omissions herein.

The lineages and records of services presented herewith comprise the important and material portion of this work.

Those based upon the records of this Society have been carefully and painstakingly digested from the original applications, and records supplemental thereof, one file with it.

The indexes appearing here have been carefully compiled, and are presented for the purpose of making available names and services which have hitherto been difficult to find, owing to their appearing in unindexed, though authoritative, works.

The lists of sailors and marines have been carefully compiled from original sources.

The lists of South Carolina and Maryland names, although heretofore published, are difficult of access and, to many, entirely unavailable. They are therefore reproduced here.

The list of sailors presented here through the courtesy of The Naval History Society, is, although short, extremely valuable.

The list of the Last Men of the Revolution seems a unique, though logical, part of a compilation of this character.

Every name appearing in the body of this work will be carried into the index.

The Last Men of the Revolution

The Last Men of the Revolution

It is interesting to know who were the last survivors of the patriotic men who served in the Revolutionary War. Reverend E. B. Hilliard of Hartford, Connecticut, in 1864, published a volume in which he gave biographical sketches and altogether a list of twenty of the last survivors. They are given below. A similar list was afterwards repeated in "The Spirit of '76," in its issue of November, 1898, with additional dates and some variations, which is also given below.

"Death of an Aged Man."—"Abram Fitz-John Channell died in Georgeville, C. E. (Canada, East.—Ed.), on the 9th inst, aged one hundred and ten years." "He was born in Shefford, Bedfordshire, Eng., and was apprenticed to Harris Varden, tailor, Whitehorse Yard, Drury Lane, London. At eighteen years of age he was impressed, and made one or more cruises on board an English man-of-war." "He then engaged in the merchant service, and in the course of a few years found himself in Chebaco Parish, Ipswich, Ms., where for many years he successfully carried on the business of tailoring and hotel keeping." "He resided for many years in that part of Ipswich now called Essex." "From Essex he removed to his late residence in Canada." "He was a man of great activity, energy and enterprise, and his uniform habits of temperance doubtless contributed many a year to his long life." "He had descendants of the fifth generation whom his own eyes have looked upon, and whom his arms have held."—"Journal, January 21, 1858."

The above article, reprinted in Vol. 13 of the New England Historical and Genealogical Magazine, at page 38, is again reprinted here as an item of interest, it concerning one of the Revolutionary Patriots whose services on behalf of the struggling colonies is more fully set forth on a preceding page of this record.

Revolutionary Soldiers of South Carolina

Referring to the introduction to the list of South Carolina Soldiers, following, it should be noted that, unfortunately, it has been impossible to obtain the remainder of the list or any complete list of the Revolutionary Soldiers of South Carolina for publication in complete and all inclusive form. It appears that the Historical Commission of South Carolina has already published in printed form certain of the Revolutionary Records of the State, and, further, has under contemplation a publication which will be complete and comprehensive. The work is in charge of Mr. A. S. Salley, Jr., Secretary of the Commission, who is a very competent historian and genealogist.

In a recent communication, Mr. Salley has given the Publication Committee a very careful explanation of the source and authoritativeness of the lists of Revolutionary Soldiers, originally published in "The State," then later in the D. A. R. Magazine and now repeated in this volume. It would appear that possibly some names are included in the list of persons, who did not perform actual military service, and, for that reason, anyone using the lists of names here printed should verify the record by investigating the original sources. This will be the wise and safe course to pursue, using the names here given as an index or guide to the original records.

It should also be explained that the punctuation and arrangement of this list are not made by the Editors, but the whole matter is simply reproduced as formerly published.

Revolutionary Soldiers of South Carolina

The Publication Committee has planned to make this volume of permanent value as a reference book and to include such matter as would tend to make its use the more extended. Therefore, it was decided to include a list of the Revolutionary Soldiers of South Carolina, which first appeared in the columns of the Columbia (S. C.) State (a newspaper), beginning January 4, 1904, and running at more or less irregular intervals to February, 1905. The list was headed "The Revolutionary Rolls," and at the top of each installment was the following heading:

"It is the purpose of The State to publish from time to time the names of the Soldiers in the Revolutionary War, as they have been culled from the quantity of loose documents discovered by Secretary of State Gantt, in the State House. It was thought for many years that the names of the men who fought under Marion, Sumter and Pickens had been lost; it is hoped that these papers will in a large measure restore them. While these rolls will be far from complete they will be of no little interest to the people of South Carolina of this generation, and will at least preserve the names, and the record of some of the deeds of our ancestors. These records have been edited by and are published under the supervision of the Secretary of State."

As originally published, those names beginning with the letter "C" followed those beginning with the letter "A" and those beginning with "B" came later. They are here alphabetically arranged, but otherwise will be printed as originally given. It is to be regretted that the list closed with the letter "H" and no attempt was made to complete it. As the office of the "State" was destroyed by fire and all papers burned, it is extremely difficult to get hold of a copy at present.

The list of soldiers which follows were, in part, published by the Daughters of the American Revolution in their monthly magazine, first known as the "American Monthly Magazine," Volume 42, No. 3, issue for March, 1913, at page 140. The name was changed to the "Daughters of the American Revolution Magazine" and this list continued through the six numbers of Volume 43, that is, the issues for the months of July, August, September, October, November, and December, 1913, and through No. 1 of Volume 44, that is, the issue for the month of January, 1914. In the last issue a notice of discontinuance of publishing the list of soldiers was given and, by the courtesy of Mrs. Amos G. Draper, Genealogical Editor of that magazine, the unpublished portion of said list of soldiers was very generously furnished by her to the Publication Committee for inclusion in this book. The portion of the list already published has been repeated here in order to make it as complete as possible. Further, the Secretary of State of South Carolina was written to in the hope that in some way the remainder of the list not originally published in The State could be secured.

Sailors, Marines and Officers of the American Navy During the War of the American Revolution

There does not appear to exist any complete or well defined list, in printed form, of the Sailors, Marines and Officers of the American Navy during the War of the American Revolution. There are many records in existence in the offices of the United States Government at Washington, and original documents and papers most carefully preserved in the Library of Congress. A few printed authorities have appeared to which reference has been made in the bibliography and record sources of Revolutionary service presented in the earlier pages of this volume. These are excellent and authoritative as far as they go. In addition nearly all of the original thirteen colonies maintained vessels and ships, which while not organized so closely as a navy, participated with great force and vigor in the conflict. The records and lists of the officers and sailors manning these vessels and ships are to be found in the various state archives and with one or two important exceptions are not in print.

On account of the situation as outlined in the foregoing, the Publication Committee has judged that it would add to the value of this publication, as a reference book, and for the special purposes for which it is published to include the following list of Sailors, Marines and Officers of the American Navy during the War of the American Revolution. It should be specifically noted that this list is incomplete; and also, that several lists which are in print and more or less acceptable are expressly omitted. The names given upon the following pages have been gathered from the sources indicated at the head of each list of names. Due and proper acknowledgment are here given to The Naval History Society, with headquarters at 247 5th Avenue, New York City, Mr. Robert W. Nesser, secretary; and to the Library of Congress, Washington, D. C., and Miss Maud Burr Morris of the latter city, a very courteous and competent genealogist for the courtesy and co-operation given to the Publication Committee, both in procuring for printing and in permitting to be reprinted the records here given.

Note.—A comparison of names given in Paullin's Naval History, on which Allen based his list, shows some discrepancies, as follows: Joseph Nicholson (instead of James); Thos. Grennel (not Grinnell); and, in the Marine List, Maj. Samuel Nichols (not Nicholas).—Editor.

Quoted from Gardner W. Allen's "Naval History of the American Revolution" in two volumes.

"A list of Revolutionary officers was compiled in 1794, 'formed from Minutes of the Marine Committee and Navy Boards, and from Rolls of the several vessels.' A previous list had been given out by the Board of Admiralty, September, 1781, which is an incomplete register of the officers of that date. The following list has been made up from these two lists. The names of Captains which are numbered, comprise those appointed October 10, 1776, in order of rank. The numbered Lieutenants were commissioned October 12, 1776; some had earlier commissions, the date of which is given when known. Annexed to the main list will be found a number of names not included in either old list, but comprises officers commissioned in France and other places. To make a wholly complete and accurate list would be impossible."

Supplemental List of Members and Ancestors

Since the page proofs for this book were corrected and returned to the printer, thus preventing any further expansion of the main body of the book, the following gentlemen have been admitted to membership in the Society, Sons of the Revolution, in the State of California.

As it is the desire of the Editors to make this work as complete as possible in every particular, the names, addresses and Revolutionary Ancestors of such new members are here included, thus bring the contents to a close as of May first, nineteen-fifteen.

A Monument To You

The coming generations will form their estimate of those which have preceded them by the manner in which they shall have preserved for them, the historic and patriotic features of their times. It is certain that one of the greatest monuments possible to erect is builded of literature, history, books and libraries.

Every one may not be able to present books, records and exhibits which shall be preserved to posterity in suitable quarters, carefully cared for, but there are other ways in which generous persons may build for themselves and descendants monuments of enduring value.

Possibly you may possess genealogical books, genealogical or historical manuscripts or notes, or historical collections bearing upon American History and patriotic subjects; possibly you have a desire to assist through some other means because you do not possess such books or records to present to such an organization as ours; possibly it may take the form of a bequest of money or a trust fund, or the income from some source, or the gift of real estate or a memorial building and hall, with means to maintain, suitable to the gift. Whatever it may be, remember that your making this Society the beneficiary under your will, is a monument not only to your own good name, that of your family descendants and ancestors, but is a more positive testimonial of your patriotism and loyalty to the great American Cause, the making permanent of the early history and days of this country, than almost anything else you can do.

To the thousands of friends and members of the Cause, and users of the privileges of our Hall and Library, it will be a permanent and abiding monument to those whose interest, whose efforts and loyalty have made themselves immortal and everlasting.

Therefore, the following suggestions may prove of value now, in helping you to place yourself and your memory permanently in generous recollection before the patriotic and loyal members of the United States of America—Our Country.

FORM of BEQUEST

I give and bequeath to the "Society of the Sons of the Revolution, in the State of California," a corporation organized under the laws of the State of California, for its corporate purposes, the sum of.....dollars.

FORM of DEVISE of ALL REAL PROPERTY

I give and devise to the "Society of the Sons of the Revolution in the State of California," a corporation organized under the laws of the State of California, for its corporate purposes, all that certain lot, piece or parcel of land; (here describe the property).

FORM of BEQUEST of PERSONAL PROPERTY

I give and bequeath to the "Society of the Sons of the Revolution in the State of California," a corporation organized under the laws of the State of California, for its corporate purposes, certain personal property, to wit: (Here describe the property, books, manuscripts, etc.)

LIBRARY, ARCHIVES and MUSEUM

The Society, Sons of the Revolution, in the State of California with a membership of about 250 and growing rapidly, maintains its permanent headquarters and library at 814 San Fernando Building, Los Angeles. This Society is a corporation, organized under the laws of California.

The Society appeals to the general public and to all interested in the maintenance and upbuilding of sound American patriotism and in the dissemination of facts and teachings of American history, for contributions and gifts of books, pamphlets, manuscripts, magazines, newspapers or clippings and periodicals, either current or out of print, bearing particularly upon Revolutionary and Colonial history; records and lists of Revolutionary soldiers and immigrants; state, county and town histories; genealogies, biographies, heraldic and kindred compositions, marriage, birth and death records, etc. This appeal is made particularly to authors, compilers, genealogists and historians, also to genealogical, biographical and historical societies and associations.

The objects of this Society are patriotic and civic, entirely unselfish and not mercenary.

The funds of the Society are obtained by moderate dues and voluntary contributions, therefore books cannot be readily purchased.

The library in connection with the Society is one of the recognized libraries of the City of Los Angeles and State of California, and while under private control, is open to the public and used by approximately five thousand people yearly. It embraces about two thousand volumes and publications, many being rare works. Being restricted to its specific field of work, it is more extensive proportionately than many municipal and county libraries.

Whoever may read this announcement and feel inclined to aid a worthy and truly American cause, is most earnestly solicited to donate any books, pamphlets, manuscripts or things of an historical nature, etc., to this library, for which due credit will be given and a courteous acknowledgment of the Society's gratitude.

Name Index

Note.—As its title implies, this index is confined to the names appearing in this book. Attention is called, however, to the fact that names appearing in the sections entitled “References” in the subdivision entitled “Revolutionary Soldiers and Lineage” are not indexed. This is true of all names appearing solely as or in references. With this exception every name in the book is carried in this index.

Attention is also called to the fact that variations in spelling have not, as a rule, been cross-indexed. The name appears once only in the index, and then in the same form as found in the body of the book. As many of the names indexed are from original records they appear in both the body of the book and this index in the same quaint forms of spelling so often encountered in the original records of the Revolutionary Period. For example, the name “John Wright” does not appear in this index. The name of “John *Wh*right” does appear, but is indexed as spelled in the body of the book and not cross-indexed.

Therefore, in consulting this index, care should be used to look for every possible form of spelling the name sought for.
